CORPORATION OF CALCUTTA.

Second Publication under section 415, Act II of 1888 of Bye-laws passed by the Commissioners in Meeting and awaiting confirmation under section 414.

J. COWIE,
Secretary to the Corporation.

Section 412—(d) The conditions under which persons shall be permitted to drive registered carts.

7. He* shall give correct information about his own name, age and residence, the name and residence of the owner, the place where the cart is ordinarily kept and such other particulars necessary to establish his own identity and that of the owner of the cart as he may be required by the Registering Officer to state at the time of each half-yearly registration.

8. He must carry with him, when plying for hire, the cart license for the then current half-year, and produce it whenever required for the inspection of all Municipal and Police Officers and the hirer of the cart.

(e) Regarding the height and mode of construction of buildings.

Re building of portion of old buildings.

1. Whenever any old masonry building has been taken down to an extent exceeding one-half of such building, such to be measured in cubic feet, the re-building of the portion thereof shall be deemed to be the erection of a new building, and such portion shall be subject to the regulations of the Act and to the bye-laws respecting new buildings.

Construction of outer walls and foundations.

2. Every masonry building shall have its outer walls constructed of brick or other hard and incombustible substance, and the foundation shall be the solid ground, or concrete, or other solid substructure on which the footings shall rest.

Footings to walls.

3. Every person who shall erect a new building shall construct every wall of such building so as to rest upon proper footings. He shall cause the projection at the widest part of the footings of every wall on each side of such wall to be at least equal to one-third of the thickness of such wall at its base, unless an adjoining wall interferes, in which case the projection may be omitted where that wall adjoins. All walls of houses intended to be used as dwelling houses shall have a damp proof course at or above the level of the ground floor.

He shall also cause the diminution of the footings to be in regular offsets, or in one offset at the top of the footings, and he shall cause the height from the bottom of the footings to the base of the wall to be at least equal to two-thirds of the thickness of the wall at its base.

All walls and return walls to be bonded together.

4. In the case of any building exceeding one storey in height, every wall shall be properly bonded and solidly put together with mortar, and no part of such wall shall overhang any part underneath it, and all return walls shall be properly bonded together.

This rule is not intended to apply to cornices or mouldings where otherwise admissible.

Thickness of walls.

5. Every wall and every return wall of such building shall be of such thickness as may be considered safe by the Commissioners having regard to the height of the buildings, the materials of which it is constructed, and the purposes to which it will be put; provided that is shall not be lawful for the Commissioners to require more than is required by Appendix I.

Support of beams and girders.

6. All beams and girders shall be supported by a sufficient breadth of brickwork, stone or other solid substance to secure the stability of such beam or girder.

Roofs, skylights, &c., to be of incombustible material.

7. The roof of all buildings shall be externally covered with some incombustible material. Also every gutter shoot or trough in connection with the roof of such building shall also be constructed of incombustible materials.

8. Every person intending to construct an oil, flour or soorky mill or an iron foundry shall, at the time of applying for sanction to the erection thereof under section 236 or 247, distinctly state that the building or hut will be used for that purpose.

9. Any person obtaining approval to build under section 238 or section 247 shall construct the house or hut in accordance with the plan approved of by the Commissioners. No prosecution under this bye-law shall be commenced without the sanction of the Commissioners.

For new huts built in bustees under Section 247.

10. In any bustee when new huts are being added under section 247 to existing ranges or clusters of huts, they shall be so erected as to block up no existing roads or paths, and so as to keep as far as practicable in line with the existing main lines of huts which are to be taken as directing lines. In no case shall the roadway left between two new huts, or between a new hut and an existing hut, be less than nine feet in width.

11. If new ranges of huts are being erected they shall be built in regular lines with a road or path of a minimum breadth of nine feet between every two lines. The direction of the lines will be determined by the Commissioners in accordance with the position of the land, the preference being given to footpaths running due north and south.

12. Any road as above terminating in a cul de sac shall have a sufficient space at the end not less than 15 feet in width to enable a conservancy cart to turn round.

13. Such roads shall remain private property, but shall be kept open for the passage of conservancy carts, without thereby conveying any right of property in them to the Municipality.

* The two immediately preceding bye-laws which have already been confirmed are :—

5. When loading or unloading goods in streets which admit of the passage of two carts abreast, the carter shall rest his cart alongside of the footpath with one of its wheels touching the curb stone.

6. He shall light his lamp as soon as it becomes dark and obey all reasonable orders of the Police on duty.

14. No new huts shall be erected at a greater distance than 100 feet from the nearest part of one of the above roads unless otherwise specially sanctioned by the Commissioners.

15. The space between the walls of any two new huts or of any new hut and any adjacent existing hut or building shall not be less than three feet for ventilation. But this rule will not apply to two or more huts built in continuation and composing one "bari."

16. Every new hut which may be built abutting on a road or footpath, whether public or private, shall be so built as not to project on the road or footpath, and also shall be so constructed as not to allow rain-water from its roof to fall upon or injure the same.

17. No new huts shall be erected unless sufficient privies have been provided to allow of at least one privy for common use to every 100 residents.

18. By section 247 every new hut must have a plinth at least two feet above the level of the centre of the nearest public road, but this will not suffice unless the ground on which it stands is also sufficiently raised to admit of surface drainage.

19. Such surface drains may be required by the Commissioners for the drainage of all new huts as the circumstances of the bustee and the position of the nearest sewer may render practicable.

20. When any new drain has to be constructed for the benefit of any hut or huts, the owners of which are tenants at-will, notice will be served on the owner of the land, and if the drain is constructed by the Commissioners in default, he will be charged with the cost thereof, but if such drain fall into subsequent disrepair after construction, the owner of the hut or huts for whose benefit the drain was constructed shall be charged with the cost of its repair.

21. Every person who re-builds the sides and roof of any hut shall apply to the Commissioners for approval thereof under section 247.

(f) Regarding ventilation and the extent to which space must be left for the free circulation of air as required by the provisions of section 243 of Act II (B.C.) of 1888.

1. With respect to masonry buildings which are to be newly erected on any site previously unbuilt upon, the following provisions shall have effect, namely:—

The foundation of any such building shall not be constructed on any site which has been filled up with street or other refuse, unless such refuse is either properly removed or unless a period of 20 years has elapsed from the date when the refuse was deposited.

Provided that, with the consent of the General Committee, the period of 20 years may be reduced to not less than 10 years if the state of the soil after investigation is found to be such as to admit of it.

2. No new masonry building which abuts on a street of a less width than 40 feet shall be erected to a greater height than two storeys without the special consent of the Commissioners in meeting.

3. Every such building intended to be used as a dwelling shall be so constructed that the whole of at least one side of every room thereof shall either be an external wall or abut on an interior open space or on a verandah. Such interior open space shall have an area equal to not less than one-fourth of the aggregate floor area of all the rooms abutting thereon, and shall not be in any direction less than 6 feet across. Such external wall shall, where it faces a street of less than 16 feet in width, have between it and the boundary line of the owners' premises an open space of not less than 2 feet in width. At the sides it may be attached to the adjacent premises, but if not so attached at the sides and in every case at the back, it shall have a space of 4 feet along the whole side of the building between it and the boundary line of the owners' premises or between it and the inner edge of the boundary wall, if that boundary line is a wall. And every open space, whether exterior or interior, required by this clause, shall be and be kept free from any erection other than a boundary wall and shall be open to the sky, and shall be and be kept open to access from each end thereof.

4. Every open space or interior court-yard referred to in the above rule shall be raised at least one foot above the level of the nearest street, so as to admit of easy drainage into it.

5. Every room intended to be used as a dwelling room in any such building, except a room in the roof thereof, shall be in every part at least 10 feet in height from the floor to the ceiling.

6. Every such room shall have a clear superficial area of not less than 80 square feet.

7. Every such room shall be ventilated by means of doors or windows which open directly into the external air or into a verandah and have an aggregate opening equal to not less than one-fifth of the superficial area of the side of the room which faces an open space.

8. The Commissioners may exempt from the provisions of clauses (e) or (f) any particular building or class of buildings to which the rules or any particular rule may appear to them to be inapplicable.

(g). Drainage, cess-pools, privies, cow-houses and stables.

1. No privy connected or unconnected shall be constructed underneath a dwelling room.

2. All connected privies and urinals shall be constructed, so that one wall at least shall be an outer wall of the building.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

A Dictionary of the Economic Products of India.

BY DR. GEO. WATT, C.I.E.,

Reporter on Economic Products.

Published under the authority of the Government of India in the Revenue and Agricultural Department.

The first two volumes of this work are now ready for issue, and intending subscribers are invited to register their names with the Superintendent of Government Printing, Calcutta.

The Dictionary is intended to deal with the products of India—animal, vegetable, and mineral; each product being treated after a uniform plan, the paragraphs of which give the scientific, vernacular, and European names; habitat or source; history; properties and uses, both chemical and industrial; trade statistics; markets, &c. The work is arranged alphabetically according to scientific nomenclature, but commercial and important vernacular names are also given as cross references so that little difficulty need be experienced in finding the account of a product even when its scientific name is unknown to the reader.

An important feature of the Dictionary consists in the fact that derived information is in every instance given under quotation marks, and with a reference to the original publication. Numerous contributions have, however, furnished the results of new discoveries, and confirmed the vernacular names; so that the Dictionary is not only a complete compilation of published information, but has been brought abreast of the most recent inventions and discoveries.

Volume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 559 royal pages; Volume II embraces the letter C in 689 pages; Volume III is in course of preparation, and will contain the letters D, E, F, and G. The whole work will, it is expected, be completed in six volumes by 1891; but a seventh volume may also be issued consisting of an index to all the vernacular and other names contained in the Dictionary; and this as a work of reference, it is hoped, may prove of considerable value.

The price to subscribers will be in India Rs. 30 and in England 2 guineas, payable in advance, for the complete set An extra charge for packing and postage will be made for the set—in India, at 8 annas per volume, and for England at 2 rupees 6 annas per volume.

For copies bound in half calf or half morocco, Rs 6 and 8 shillings respectively will be charged extra for the whole sets.

No copies will be issued to non-subscribers till the work is complete, and no single volume will be sold separately The price to non-subscribers will be Rs 45 in India, and 3 guineas in England, exclusive of packing and postage.*

ORDERS ON THE MEMORIAL AGAINST THE ASSESSMENT PROVISIONS OF THE CALCUTTA MUNICIPAL CONSOLIDATION ACT OF 1888.

MUNICIPAL DEPARTMENT (MUNICIPAL).

Darjeeling, the 7th June 1890.

RESOLUTION.

READ—

A memorial presented to the Lieutenant-Governor on the 9th May 1890 by Maharajah Sir Narendra Krishna Deb, K.C.I.E., on behalf of the Calcutta Rate-payers' Committee, praying for certain amendments in the Calcutta Municipal Consolidation Act, II (B.C.) of 1888.

A note prepared by the Hon'ble Sir Henry Harrison, Kt., with its appendices, dated 26th May 1890, commenting on the memorial.

This memorial of the rate-payers of Calcutta, praying for the amendment of the assessment clauses of the Calcutta Municipal Consolidation Act of 1888, has been signed by a very large number of residential house-owners, and there are included among the signatories the names of some of the most distinguished and influential citizens of Calcutta.

2. The memorial raises questions of great importance, affecting the justice and equity of municipal taxation, which have lately been under the special consideration of the Legislature, and impugns some of the fundamental provisions of a law which was passed after full deliberation, and has only been for a little more than a year in force. The arguments contained in it were discussed in the Bengal Legislative Council, and were again repeated in a memorial addressed to His Excellency the Governor-General in Council, which is referred to, and largely quoted from, in the present memorial. Those arguments were rejected, and it was deliberately decided that the Act should be left to its operation. Notwithstanding these facts the Lieutenant-Governor, having regard to the weight and influence of the signatories, and to the strong feeling which, within His Honour's cognizance, the assessment sections of the new Act have excited in Calcutta, has deemed it advisable to take the present opportunity to enquire again thoroughly into all the circumstances which led to the enactment of the provisions of the law to which the memorialists object, and to place on record in a complete form the reasons which, in his opinion, rendered legislation on the subject imperatively just and necessary. With this object a copy of the memorial was transmitted to the Hon'ble Sir Henry Harrison, the Member of the Bengal Legislative Council who was in charge of the measure, for such observations as he might wish to make. The reply received from him, which is herewith published with the memorial, is an able, elaborate, and conclusive vindication of the provisions of the existing law.

3. Under the old law [section 104 of Act IV (B.C.) of 1876] it was enacted as follows :—

"The estimated gross annual rent at which any house or land liable to rate under this Act might reasonably be expected to let from year to year shall, for the purposes of any rate to be imposed under this Act, be held and be deemed to be the annual value of such house or land."

The section of the present law [122 of Act II (B.C.) of 1888] to which the memorialists take exception is as follows :—

"For the purpose of assessment under this Act, the annual value of land and the annual value of any house built for letting purposes, or ordinarily let, shall be the gross annual rent at which such land or house might reasonably be expected to let from year to year, less, in the case of a house, an allowance of 10 per cent. for the cost of repairs, and for all other expenses necessary to maintain the house in a state to command such gross rent.

"The annual value of any house not built for letting purposes, and not ordinarily let, shall be 5 per cent. on the sum obtained by adding the estimated present cost of building the house, less a reasonable amount to be deducted on account of depreciation, if any, to the estimated value of the land valued with the house as part of the same premises.

"When a house is occupied by the owner under such exceptional circumstances as renders a valuation of 5 per cent. of the cost of building, less depreciation, excessive, a lower percentage may be taken."

4. The prayer of the memorialists is directed against that portion of the new section which relates to the assessment value of houses built for residential purposes. The exact words of the memorial are—

"The amount spent in the building or enlargement of a family dwelling-house affords therefore, in the vast majority of cases, no criterion as to the owner's means or position in life, and should not, it is submitted, be adopted as the basis of taxation. Such houses should be rated at the annual letting value, to be determined with regard to the purposes for which they were built and for which they are capable of being used."

And again—

"Your memorialists believe that there is no difficulty in practice, in the generality of cases, to ascertain the letting value of any house property. They submit that such letting value is the fair and proper basis of assessment, and it is unaccountable to them why, in the case of a residential house, the cost price of the building, together with the value of the land on which it stands, should be taken as the basis of assessment; while, in the case of tenanted houses, rent should be considered as a fair criterion for assessment."

5. The English law on the subject of rating is that the net annual value of hereditaments shall be the rent at which they may reasonably be expected to let, after deducting the probable average cost of repairs, insurance, &c. The memorialists desire to see the English law applied in Calcutta. They ignore, however, the radical difference between England and India in sentiments, manners, and custom. In England there is no prejudice against living in a hired house, the houses let on hire in a street are generally more numerous than those in the occupation of their owners, and there is no difficulty whatever in assessing the reasonable rent of a residential house with reference to the rent actually paid by similar houses, with similar advantages, in the immediate locality. But in India, where there is the strongest possible prejudice against living in a hired house, and all the houses over large areas, with very few exceptions, are occupied by their owners, it is impossible to institute any fair standard of comparison with the rent of houses let on hire. If such a standard were adopted, if, that is to say, residential houses were compared with houses built for letting on the basis of their cost, accommodation or cubic feet of material respectively, it would have led to an enhancement of assessment of residential houses much greater than it is now under the present Act. It became necessary therefore to adopt some other standard of value for residential houses in Calcutta, and after full consideration it was decided that a fair valuation of this class of houses would be attained by the assumption of an annual payment of 5 per cent. on the true value of the house and land as the hypothetical rent, with a lower percentage to meet exceptional cases.

6. According to the argument of the memorialists, residential houses should be compared, not with houses built for the purpose of letting, but with the few résidential houses which the owners have for some reason or other been compelled to leave, and for which they have been compelled to obtain such tenants as they can get with no market and all the prejudices against this form of living. It is assumed in the memorial that the person occupying his own house is not a tenant, and that some other tenant must be found, and that the rent this other tenant would pay should be ascertained and fixed as the basis of valuation. Although there is in the parts of Calcutta to which reference is made no efficacious demand for hiring family houses; although it is admitted that the prejudice against maintaining one's family in a hired house is so strong that "a person would rather have two or three cottahs of his own with tiled huts to live in than live in a hired pucca house;" although the feeling on this subject is so marked that even buying a house ready built by some one else is regarded as less desirable than building one for one's self, and in consequence a house built as a family residence is at so marked a disadvantage in finding any tenant, other than the owner, compared with all other classes of houses, as to depreciate its value by about one-half when tried by this test alone, it is nevertheless urged that for purposes of municipal assessment such a house should be valued at the amount of rent which it would obtain if let to another person. This argument, as Sir Henry Harrison points out, is as fallacious from the standpoint of English law on the subject of rating as it is contrary to fairness and justice. The authorities cited conclusively show that, according to English procedure, when a property is not usually let, a hypothetical tenant is assumed; and the owner of the house, if he actually does occupy it, is regarded as among the possible hypothetical tenants, and the annual value of the tenancy to him is then calculated in exactly the same way as the new section of the Act calculates it. This is the only manner in which the real value of houses which are never let on hire can be ascertained in comparison with houses built for letting purposes. The purpose for which the house is built must be looked to in both cases. In the latter case the letting value is a fair criterion; in the former it is not.

7. It is an incontrovertible principle that the taxation of property for the purposes of municipal administration should be proportioned to its value. But residential houses in Calcutta have hitherto not been taxed on this principle, and it is precisely because these houses were not being rated at a reasonable value, having regard to the purposes for which they were built—occupation by their owners—but at a letting value, having regard to a totally different purpose, i.e. hiring by a person not the owner, to whom they were never let, that the new section of the law was deemed necessary. Sir Henry Harrison demonstrates with much force in his special note on the subject that it is the owners and occupiers of their own houses who paid least and for whom most was done under the old law. The statistics he furnishes show that, as a whole, they derive far more by way of municipal benefits than they pay; while they have been assessed at very much less than the fair amount due from them. They show that the mercantile wards of the town pay a large portion of the rates and taxes for which the residential wards receive benefits, and that for all other sources of municipal income outside rates the incidence of taxation is as much against the trading and mercantile community as it is in the matter of rates. In other words, the interests of the trading and commercial community have in practice (though not of course deliberately) been rendered subservient to those of the ground landlords. It is well known that during the past ten or fifteen years the value of land has doubled or quadrupled in value, while the assessment value, even under the operation of the new Act, affords an increase during six and a quarter years of only 22·8 per cent. It was to remedy what Sir Henry Harrison justly calls "the scandal of the under-valuation of houses occupied by their owners" that the new section of the law was passed. The Lieutenant-Governor recognises that those persons who have not hitherto realised how much they have previously been under-assessed in comparison with less favoured classes may not unnaturally protest against a law which, in providing for a more equal system of assessment, imposes increased burthens on themselves; but the Lieutenant-Governor is thoroughly satisfied that the new system is more equitable than the old one, and that it would be improper for the Government, notwithstanding the high position of the signatories and the importance which he attaches to their protest, to hesitate in upholding the efforts of the Legislature to equalise the incidence of taxation.

8. Under the old law no deduction was allowed for repairs. It is estimated therefore that under the old law the so-called owners, who are also the occupiers of huts in bustees, were over-assessed by about 25 per cent.; that the occupiers and owners of houses, offices, shops and places of business, built for letting purposes, were over-assessed by about 15 per cent.; that owners of bustee lands and the owners and occupiers of large public buildings were on the whole correctly assessed, though there is reason to believe that in some cases such buildings were too highly valued; while owners living in their own houses, built for such occupation and not for letting purposes, were under-assessed by 30 to 50 per cent. if tested by the rule for valuing Government buildings, and by even more than this if the Bombay rule were followed, and their value were tested by comparison with the accommodation, cost or cubical space of houses built for letting purposes. These inequalities are rectified by the new Act, which allows a deduction for repairs in the case of letting houses, and in the case of residential houses imposes a reasonable valuation. In regard to this valuation, Sir Henry Harrison writes:—"The advantage of the proposal adopted by the Act is that it carries on the face of it its own justification. In all ordinary cases the cost of building, plus the value of the land occupied by the tenement, obviously determines the reasonable rent, and even the most superficial acquaintance with Calcutta enables any one to know that a net return of 5 per cent. is an extremely moderate return for money invested in house property. If, therefore, this standard, when applied to houses occupied by their owners, greatly enhances the valuation, the result carries with it its own evidence of previous under-valuation." Even under the provisions of the new Act, residential houses will, if anything, remain somewhat under-assessed, while letting houses, valued according to their actual gross rental, with an allowance of only 10 per cent. for repairs, will still be somewhat over-assessed. The result of recent legislation is nevertheless a decisive approach to fairness and equal taxation. It is proposed by Sir Henry Harrison, in the 40th paragraph of his note, that when the whole town has been re-valued under the new law, the equity of the valuations should be tested by a Committee of Engineers and Surveyors. "If," he writes, "they find that residential houses, occupied by their owners, are proportionately more highly valued than other classes of buildings, let redress be promptly given; but if, as I am confident will be the case, the verdict is the other way, then further steps should perhaps be taken to redress the balance; for it is surely intolerable that the group of rate-payers, which, under circumstances of strictly equal rating, must inevitably enjoy far more advantages than they pay for, should not even pay equal rates." In the Lieutenant-Governor's opinion this suggestion is one which may very properly be attended to if the owners of houses built for their own occupation should, when the present revaluation of the town is finished, still be found to maintain that they have been unfairly treated.

9. It is observed in the memorial that the hearing and determining an objection preferred against an assessment made by a subordinate by his executive superior is subversive of the principle of Local Self-Government and can never be satisfactory. Sir Henry Harrison has devoted the last of the appendices attached to his note to a consideration of this question. His weighty remarks deserve the careful attention of all interested in the welfare of Local Self-Government in this country. His conclusion, that if Local Self-Government is to be a success, it is necessary for the Municipal Commissioners to leave all judicial functions to others, and to content themselves with financial and administrative control, meets with the Lieutenant-Governor's complete concurrence.

10. The second feature in the new Act to which the memorialists have taken exception is the provision in sections 117, 118 and 119, by which the ground landlord in bustees is required to pay all the rates (one-half of which on account of the land on which the hut stands and the entire consolidated rate on account of the hut he is entitled to subsequently recover from the hut-owner by the same process as the recovery of rent), being allowed a deduction of 2 annas in the rupee for risk and costs of collection. The principal object of this provision is to protect the bustee tenants from the collecting establishments of the Municipality. Sir Henry Harrison's remarks on this aspect of the question deserve careful consideration. "If needed in England, it is needed ten times more in Calcutta, where this is the class habitually most oppressed and most silent under oppression. Under the old law the number of warrants issued in Calcutta annually was between 30,000 and 40,000, the great bulk of course in connection with these poorer rate-payers—100 warrants a day; yet who heard anything of them? Under the new system a single warrant has been issued against a wealthy ground landlord who, with ample means, was openly defying the law, and the whole of Calcutta rings with the event, and a suit in the High Court is the result. Is any comment necessary on such a contrast?" And again—"The ground landlord invests no capital in the bustee (except perhaps for drainage), he risks nothing, he ventures nothing, and he appropriates all the profits of the municipal improvements. The value of bustee land—since the bustees have been improved by the Corporation, have had roads made through them, bathing platforms erected in them, and their conservancy attended to—has gone up from 50 to 300 per cent. At a most moderate computation, the ground rents of bustees in Calcutta have increased by five lakhs annually during the last six or seven years. The landlords have literally grown rich in their sleep, and can they, forsooth, complain of injustice because, for the well-being of the community, they are required, as in England, to advance the rates for the poor tenants?" No additional remarks from Government are required to justify these sections of the law.

11. For the rest the Lieutenant-Governor has only to express his general agreement with the remarks recorded by Sir Henry Harrison in the memoranda submitted by him to Government. The whole of the papers will now be published in the Calcutta Gazette.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of this Resolution, and of the papers recited in the preamble, be published in the Calcutta Gazette.

Ordered also that a copy be forwarded to Maharajah Sir Narendra Krishna Deb, K.C.I.E., on behalf of the memorialists, for information.

Ordered also that a copy be forwarded to the Chairman of the Calcutta Corporation for information and for communication to the Commissioners.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

H. J. S. COTTON,

Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

Dated Calcutta, the 9th May 1890.

From—Maharaja Sir Narendra Krishna Deb, K.C.I.E., President, Rate-payers' Committee,

To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Municipal Department.

I have the honour to forward, for the consideration of His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor, the accompanying memorial of the rate-payers of Calcutta, praying for the amendment of the Calcutta Municipal Consolidation Act of 1888.

To—The Hon'ble Sir Steuart Bayley, K.C.S.I.,

Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal.

The humble memorial of the undermentioned rate-payers of Calcutta.

Sheweth,

That your memorialists, who are rate-payers of Calcutta, venture to approach your Honour with their representation in regard to some of the provisions of the Calcutta Municipal Consolidation Act of 1888.

Your memorialists at the time of the passing of this Act apprehended serious difficulties in the working of it. Their apprehensions they are sorry to find were not unfounded.

That by the latter part of section 122 of the present Municipal Act, an entirely new principle of assessment of house properties was introduced, cannot be denied. The prior Act directed the Commissioners to proceed upon the equitable and uniform basis of annual letting value, whether the house was built for letting or residential purposes. By the present Act this principle of assessment is, in the case of houses not built for letting purposes, and not ordinarily let, abandoned, and a new principle of assessment introduced, based on the estimated present cost of building a house less a reasonable amount for depreciation, if any, added to the estimated value of the land. So far as your memorialists have been able to ascertain, this innovation was attempted to be justified by the statement that houses built for the residence of the owners were not sufficiently taxed, whilst houses built for letting purposes occupied by tenants were over-assessed; your memorialists are unable to subscribe to the statement. The joint family system is an essential characteristic of the Hindu social order, and is largely adopted by the Mahomedan residents in this country. It is not, as is observed by John Stuart Mill of large families in England, the result of a person's own choice, and is not, so far as public interest is concerned, a thing to be discouraged, but rather promoted. The system of family life obviates by its existence almost entirely the necessity of any Poor Law. The amount spent in the building or enlargement of a family dwelling-house affords, therefore, in the vast majority of cases, no criterion as to the owner's means or position in life, and should not, it is submitted, be adopted as the basis of taxation. Such houses should be rated at the annual letting value to be determined with regard to the purposes for which they were built, and for which they are capable of being used.

Your memorialists anticipated, though not to the fullest extent, the mischievous effect of this innovation in the law, as is apparent from the memorial of the rate-payers of Calcutta to His Excellency the Earl of Dufferin, then Viceroy and Governor-General of India, submitted on the 6th day of June 1888, in which it was stated as follows:—

"Your Excellency's memorialists would respectfully call Your Excellency's attention to the provisions of section 122 of the Bill, which have created little less than a panic among the bulk of Hindoo rate-payers who for the most part live in their own ancestral houses. A proviso has been added in the course of the discussion in Council that 'under such exceptional circumstances as renders a valuation of five per cent. excessive, a lower percentage may be taken.' But Your Excellency's memorialists crave leave to point out that the proviso, because it will deal with exceptional cases, will not afford the relief that is sought for. The principle of assessment which is here enforced is an innovation in the law of the land, and is apparently opposed to the principles of English law as interpreted by the High Court in the case of Nando Lal Bose versus the Corporation of Calcutta. Sir Richard Garth in that case said:—'The principle of rating on which the Commissioners are directed to proceed is the same which is adopted in England; and similar difficulties arise there in the case of gentlemen's parks and mansions which are laid out for residential purposes and not for sale or letting. But such properties are nevertheless constantly rated upon the basis of their annual letting value.' And Mr. Justice Wilson in the same case said—'But the whole system of taxation and assessment under the Act in question is obviously borrowed in its general outlines from English Rating Acts.' But be that as it may, this new provision in the Bill will prevent people from building large houses which are as much a source of comfort as they are a means for the preservation of health. The change in the law is sought to be justified on grounds of Political Economy, and the high authority of John Stuart Mill is quoted in support of it. The following passage is confidently cited as one that thoroughly bears out and justifies the changes in this section :—

"'The public were justly scandalised on learning that residences like Chatsworth or Belvoir were only rated at the imaginary rate of perhaps £200 a year, under the pretext that, owing to the great expense of keeping them up, they could not be let for more, probably even they could not be let for that, and if the argument were a fair one they ought not to have been taxed at all. But a house tax is not intended as a tax on incomes derived from houses, but on expenditure incurred for them. The thing which it is wished to ascertain is what a house costs to the person who lives in it, not what it would bring in if let to some one else. When the occupier is not the owner, and does not hold on a repairing lease, the rent he pays is the measure of what the house costs him; but when he is the owner, some other measure must be sought. A valuation should be made of the house, not what it would sell for, but what it would cost for rebuilding it, and the valuation might be corrected by an allowance for what it had lost in value by time, or gained by repairs and improvements.'

"But Your Excellency's memorialists beg leave to point out that there has been in this instance only a partial application of the principles of Political Economy. The Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill, who quotes the above passages from Mill's Political Economy in support of his view, omits to quote the passages which immediately follow, and which bear distinctly in favour of the rate-payers' point of view, but which Your Excellency's memorialists regret to find have not been embodied into law. John Stuart Mill goes on to remark :—

"'The amount of the amended valuation would form a principal sum, the interest of which at the current price of the public funds would form the annual value at which the building should be assessed to the tax. As incomes below a certain amount ought to be exempt from income-tax, so ought houses below a certain value from house-tax on the universal principle of sparing from all taxation the absolute necessaries of healthful existence' (Mill's Political Economy, Book V, Chapter III, page 504, People's Edition).

"If these principles are to be applied, it is obvious that the valuation should be fixed at 4 (which represents the current rate of interest on Government Securities) and not at 5 per cent., as has been fixed under the Bill; and further, houses below a certain value should have been exempted from the house-tax altogether, which has not been done. Your memorialists venture respectfully to urge that it is an unfair application of economic principles to enforce them only when they operate to the prejudice of the rate-payers, and impose upon them a heavier burden of taxation; but to omit them when they tend to afford to the poorer section of the community the relief to which they are fairly entitled. If it is thought necessary in equity to make the richer section of the community pay, what it is alleged they had not hitherto done, their fair share of contribution to the Municipal taxes, is it not demanded, Your Excellency's Memorialists venture "to enquire, by the highest justice, that the poorer classes should obtain that relief "which the principles upon which this section of the law is ostensibly based have provided "for them? Your Excellency's Memorialists will not hesitate to affirm that it is a singularly "unfair piece of legislation which in the name of economic principles seeks to lay a heavy "burden upon the well-to-do classes, but will not provide for that relief to the poorer classes "which these principles distinctly contemplate."

The mischievous tendency of this provision of the Law foreshadowed in the aforesaid Memorial has been realised in fact, and it most fully appears from the recent assessment of House property in Calcutta. The annexed table marked A shows the extent of increase made in ward No. 6, the total amount of increase in 1,177 cases only being from Rs. 5,54,866 to Rs. 6,81,319; and Your Memorialists submit that an examination of assessment books will show that the bulk of the increase has been in cases of small house property. A few cases set forth in the table marked B will show to what extent the assessment of small houses in ward No. 1 is proposed to be increased. Can it be for a moment supposed that these small houses had been underassessed under the old Law? Your Memorialists are confident that it is impossible to come to any such conclusion, and if that be conceded, it seems to Your Memorialists that the assessment of such houses on the basis laid down in the Act is indefensible. In this connection, Your Memorialists solicit Your Honour's attention to the two cases in the annexed table marked C, which show how the application of the principle of valuation for residential houses has resulted in the imposition of greater burdens on owners as contrasted with the amount of tax their co-sharers have to pay monthly for similar property let out to tenants but not occupied by them. Numerous examples of a similar nature can be added. Instances of houses purchased for residential purposes, but which for some accident have not been so used, but have been let out, will lead, from the rate of rent realised, to the same conclusion. Your Memorialists regret that the provisions in section 122 as to residential houses were laid down without any enquiry as to the real state of things, but were based upon a supposed principle (not applicable to the people of this country) that no one spends more for a house than what would yield at least five per cent. if the house were let out.

Your Memorialists beg further to submit that the procedure laid down by the section now under consideration, for the valuation of residential houses, is so complex in its character as to render it impossible to ensure an equitable and satisfactory working of it. With reference to the estimated present cost of the building, it is to be observed that the cost of building varies according to the quality of materials used, and that, at the time of the assessment, it is in most cases quite impossible to find out the quality, and, therefore, the present value of such materials. One house, seemingly as good as another, may be worth much less, though both built at the same time; and when a house built many years ago has to be valued with reference to the price of the materials ruling at the present time, the chances of mistake to the prejudice of the owner must be great; whilst, the deduction for depreciation being made subject to no settled rule, the liability to mistakes on the part of the Executive Officers of the Corporation to the prejudice of the owners is greater. The provision in the present law was said to have been necessary on account of the difficulty in ascertaining the annual letting value of houses occupied by the owners, but it is apparent the difficulty has now been considerably enhanced on account of a large number of unknown factors to ascertain each of which elaborate and detailed enquiry is needed.

That under these circumstances the assessment of House property in Calcutta has caused widespread discontent amongst the house-owners of Calcutta, which Your Memorialists deem it necessary to point out to Your Honour. They respectfully submit that, while in the course of 9 years, i.e., from 1874 to 1884-85, only 1,805 appeals were preferred from all Calcutta against the assessments made by the assessor (as will appear on reference to the table marked D), yet in the short space of one year in respect of assessment of only two of the wards of Calcutta more than 1,000 petitions of objections have been filed by owners of residential houses; and if Your Honour be pleased to direct an enquiry as to how such objections are being disposed of, it will be seen that the modification of the previous Law by section 136 of the present Act as to the hearing and disposal of objections has, in a large number of cases, resulted practically in a denial of justice.

The hearing and determining of an objection, preferred against an assessment made by a subordinate, by his executive superior, is, Your Memorialists would venture to say, subversive of the principle of local self-government and can never be satisfactory. Even the provision, as in the original Bill, of a Bench of not less than three Commissioners presided over by the Chairman or Vice-Chairman to hear appeals would have minimised the evil now complained of.

Your Memorialists believe that there is no difficulty in practice in the generality of cases to ascertain the letting value of any house property; they submit that such letting value is the fair and proper basis of assessment, and it is unaccountable to them why in the case of a residential house the cost price of the building, together with the value of the land on which it stands, should be taken as the basis of assessment; while in the case of tenanted houses rent should be considered as a fair criterion for assessment.

Your Memorialists now crave leave to refer to another provision of the Law, which is unduly pressing upon the bustee owners of Calcutta. They refer to section 117 of the said Act. When there was a discussion in Your Honour's Council on the subject, the Hon'ble Sir Charles Paul, Advocate-General of Bengal, was pleased to say as follows:—

"I wish to explain that the precedent which the Hon'ble Member in charge of "the Bill relies upon does not apply in this case. In England, all house property belongs "to the landlord: in this country, huts belong to the tenants. Everything put upon "land in England belongs to the landlord: here huts belong to the tenant, and, therefore, "I submit, it is unfair to make the landholder pay for property of which he is not the "owner."

Your Memorialists deeply regret that notwithstanding this opposition by the highest Law officer of the Crown, the section was passed into Law by your Honour's Council.

Your Memorialists submit that the means possessed by the Municipality to enforce payment of the bustee bills from the occupiers of the bustee land are ample compared with the limited powers which land-owners have. The former have at its discretion the power of distress warrant and summary sale after a short notice which involve charges payable by the debtor, whereas the latter is referred to the ordinary law of debtor and creditor in reference to which a former Chief Justice of the High Court is reported to have said that "the trouble of the creditor begins with the decree" which at an average seldom realises more than half of the claim. It is undeniable that the Corporation with such large powers has not always been successful in collecting the rates, without having recourse to the extraordinary powers which the law has conferred on it; and if so, how still more difficult must it be for private individuals to undertake these collections? Your Memorialists venture to submit that the modification of the Law exempting those whose duty it is to collect the taxes directly from the parties liable to pay the same is a positive injustice. Even the Government in the collection of land revenue with the sunset and the certificate laws to back it has never on an average collected more than 92 to 95 per cent. of its dues. Your Memorialists submit that the remedy does not lie in transferring responsibility on those who are not reasonably liable to it. Under the law the occupier or tenant is to pay the taxes due on his holding, but this transference of the responsibility to the owner is a positive injustice, particularly adding the losses incident to civil suits on persons who are not the rightful debtors and have no concern with the same and who have not the means of recouping their loss.

Your Memorialists fail to see what principle of fairness has guided the Legislature in framing this section, the object of which evidently is to relieve the Municipality, at the expense and annoyance of the land-owners, who, as a rule, experience great difficulty in recovering their dues from their tenants; and Your Memorialists feel that this section of the Law has entailed serious hardship upon bustee-owners generally, and particularly upon owners of small bustees of limited means, for under the law any plot of bustee land measuring 10 cottas and upwards is a bustee.

There are other sections also objectionable, but Your Memorialists do not desire to comment on them on the present occasion.

Your Memorialists therefore humbly pray Your Honour to take their Memorial into your favourable consideration and to move Your Honour's Council for the modification of the Municipal Law in the respects herein mentioned.

And your Memorialists will ever pray.

NOTE.

THE memorial presented to His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor protesting against certain provisions of the New Municipal Consolidation Act has been sent to me for comment, and in reply thereto I beg to submit the following note.

SHOULD THE QUESTION BE RE-OPENED.

1. In the first place, I would point out that the memorial discloses no sufficient ground to warrant the re-opening of this question after so brief an interval.

Nothing has occurred to justify the re-opening of the question after so short an interval

That the standard of 5 per cent. on the present estimated cost of building, as an equivalent to the annual rent, would increase the valuation of most of the houses occupied by their owners in Calcutta, was not merely fully contemplated when the Calcutta Municipal Consolidation Act was passed, but was even put prominently forward as the chief justification for the new section. The argument employed was substantially this. Looking to the ordinary return in Calcutta on capital invested in building houses, 5 per cent. is a very low estimate of the rent realised for such buildings: that is, of the net rent after all outgoings for repairs and other expenditure necessary to keep the premises up to their letting value. But houses built by persons for occupation by themselves have been for various causes valued much below this standard. This constitutes a grave injustice, as other rate-payers have to pay higher rates in consequence of this low valuation, and therefore the remedy proposed is to take 5 per cent. as the net rent in ordinary cases, allowing a lower percentage to be taken whenever exceptional circumstances may render the higher percentage excessive.

2. If any one ventured to deny the effect this would have on the valuation of such houses, it was those who opposed, not those who advocated the section. The Hon'ble Kalinath Mitter, in his speech opposing the section, said—"I think it is an error to suppose that as a general rule the owner of a residential house has hitherto been under-assessed. I admit that in certain exceptional cases it has been so, but barring those exceptions, I submit that the statement of the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill is wholly erroneous, and, if necessary, I think it would be well, before the Council finally decides this matter, to have a thorough enquiry on the point." As the statement made was that, if these houses were valued at less than 5 per cent. on the legitimate cost, they must necessarily in Calcutta be under-valued, the assertion to be relevant must have meant that they were not, save in the case of a few exceptions, valued at less than 5 per cent. Accordingly, I replied: "Can anyone doubt that in the part of the town where this Council is situated, or on the river bank, or in Chowringhi, houses are assessed at fully 5 per cent. on their cost, probably more—either 6 or 7 per cent? If there is any doubt that in the native part of the town residential houses are assessed less highly, then why this outcry against 5 per cent? So far from there being an outcry, we ought to be thanked for reducing the valuation to 5 per cent. Is anything more necessary to show that my fundamental contention is right?"

The enhancement that has taken place was clearly foreseen.

3. It is as clear as possible therefore that the section was introduced and passed with the fullest knowledge that it would add considerably to the valuation of houses occupied by their owners. As such, it was vigorously opposed in Council. As such it was vigorously opposed out of Council by a deputation to the Lieutenant-Governor. As such it was vigorously opposed in a memorial addressed to the Viceroy and Governor-General before he assented to the Bill, to which the present memorial refers. It was not till all these remonstrances had failed that the Bill became law. What has happened in the past year then to justify a reconsideration of it? Two wards have been completely re-valued: one, No. 25, a ward recently in the suburbs, has few residential houses in it, and its revaluation presents no results that specially bear on this question. The other ward, No. 6, is full of such houses. Six and a quarter years have elapsed since its last valuation, and the result is that the aggregate valuation has increased from Rs. 5,54,866* to Rs. 6,81,319—an increase of 22·8 per cent. Considering the great increase in the value of land during those six and a quarter years, and the number of new houses that have sprung up (all of course included in this increase), it is, I think, patent on the face of these statistics that the increase has been most moderate, so moderate as to furnish grounds for apprehension that the legal standard has been applied with mistaken leniency.

Besides the reassessment of Ward No. 6, Ward No. 1, a ward full of houses occupied by their owners, has also come under re-valuation in the last quarter of the year, and the enhancements resulting therefrom have furnished much fuel to the agitation. The figures are not yet known, as the objections are under decision: but my impression is that the outcome will be as reasonable there as it has been in Ward No. 6. There is a further test which can be looked to, the safeguard of appeal to the Small Cause Court. Very few appeals have been preferred during the year. In the principal one, the case of Baboo Nundo Lal Bose, the valuation was admitted to be fair, if a certain principle of valuation was upheld, which the Court did uphold. In not one single appeal up to date has the valuation made by the Chairman or Vice-Chairman on objection been reduced.

4. I maintain therefore that so far nothing whatsoever has occurred during the first year of the operation of the section to justify an appeal for its reconsideration; the working of it has been most carefully supervised, and the enhancement of valuations under it very moderate.

* These figures are quoted from the memorial: they are incomplete, as they not only leave out the pending objections, the decision of which has raised the figures to Rs. 5,74,064, and Rs. 7,05,512, but also all the bustees in the ward valued at above one-half lakhs, not much changed by its re-assessment.

THE CASE OF THE MEMORIALISTS AS REGARDS SECTION 122.

5. As, however, a meeting of rate payers has been held in the Town Hall, and a further memorial drawn up and submitted, it is desirable that the arguments put forward to Government should be further examined. I think that, so far as the memorial is directed against section 122, full justice is done to it by the following summary of its contentions:—

The case for the memorialists stated briefly. They ask for precisely the same law as in England

(1) The English Law of valuing houses for rating purposes is very fair and equitable.

(2) This law, which is still in force in Calcutta as regards houses built for letting purposes, operated very fairly and equitably in the case of houses occupied by their owners which, with perhaps certain inevitable exceptions, were rated quite as high as they should have been.

(3) Now, in order to prevent the English principle operating any longer, and to enhance the valuation of such houses, a new principle is introduced, which is most unfair and unjust in its operation, which considerably augments the valuation of houses occupied by their owners, and places them at a disadvantage compared with their fellow rate-payers in Calcutta.

(4) And it is asked that 'such houses may be rated at the annual letting value to be determined with regard to the purposes for which they were built, and for which they are capable of being used.'

The last request, taken verbatim from the memorial, is excellent as a proposition of law and equity, but is entirely misapplied to the real desire of the memorialists. It is precisely because these houses were not being rated at a reasonable letting value, having regard to the purposes for which they were built—occupation by their owners—but at a letting value, having regard to a totally different purpose, i.e. hiring by a person not the owner, that the section was deemed necessary.

6. In commenting on this memorial, it must be understood at the outset that there is no possible room for doubt that if the quantity or quality of the accommodation enjoyed, or the money legitimately sunk in building such houses, is looked to, residential houses, that is houses built for occupation by their owners, are conspicuously under-valued as compared with other classes of buildings in Calcutta. The most cursory examination will show this, and also that it is not due to what would, if correct, be a complete answer pro tanto, the greater cheapness of the site. The land on which these houses stand is, if anything, more valuable and costs more than the land on which the average of houses built for letting purposes stand. This marked difference in valuation between the two classes of houses is more rather than less than twofold. What then do the memorialists mean when they protest against unfair treatment? They mean this, that the English law has, as they would say, wisely and equitably decided that not the money sunk in constructing a building, nor its size, nor its accommodation, nor any other test, is to be the standard of valuation for rating purposes, but such standard should be the rent for which it would let from year to year, and that tried by this test residental houses have been fully as highly assessed as they should be in Calcutta. They urged that it is unfair to discard this, the English test, because its operation is favourable to this class of houses, and to substitute for it, to their disadvantage, other tests which have not been adopted in England.

7. I do not think the case of the memorialists can be more fairly or forcibly put than this, and it is for the Government to say whether the reply to it is decisive or not. Briefly stated, the substance of this reply is (1) that in this particular matter the English standard is, for a special reason, manifestly ill-adapted to Calcutta; (2) that the English standard has been very erroneously applied in the past in Calcutta, and its correct application would present totally different results from those hitherto obtained.

(1) There is surely no reason in the world why a standard which, having reference to English manners and customs, may have been deemed the best in England, should necessarily be followed in Calcutta, where, having reference to local manners and customs, it is obviously defective. Yet this is transparently the case. In England there is no marked distinction between houses built for occupation by families and houses built for occupation by single men whose families live in the country; also there is no strong prejudice against living with a family in a hired house; hence the rent which a tenant may be willing to pay is perhaps on the whole in most cases the best practical test of the quality of the house. In Calcutta there is a marked and radical difference in structure between houses built by persons as a residence for their own families and all other houses built with the object of letting them, residences for Europeans, residences for native gentlemen without families, public offices, places of business, shops, &c. There is an efficacious demand for hiring the latter, there is no such demand for hiring family houses, and in explanation of this absence of demand, it has been freely admitted in evidence before me that so strong is the prejudice against maintaining one's family in a hired house that "a person would rather have two or three cottahs of his own with tiled huts to live in, than live in a hired pucca house." Even buying a house ready built by some one else is regarded as less desirable than building for oneself (see Appendix C). Hence a house built as a family residence is at a marked disadvantage in finding any tenant other than the owner compared with all other classes of houses, which depreciates its value very materially, probably 50 per cent. when tried by this test, alone. Surely no better reason could be adduced for urging that this test, however suitable elsewhere and for other classes of houses, is not suitable for this class of houses in Calcutta.

The English standard has been misunderstood in Calcutta and erroneously applied.

8. (II) This consideration alone seems to me to furnish ample justification for adopting some other standard of value in Calcutta for this class of houses, but, as a fact, the case is much stronger. The interpretation put by the memorialists upon the English law is one which the law courts and the authorities on the subject have frequently repudiated; and it is only its improper, not its proper, application which helps the memorialists. It is assumed, altogether wrongly, that a person occupying his own house is not a tenant, and that some other tenant must be found, and the rent this other tenant would pay be ascertained; whereas according to the English rulings an owner may be his own tenant, and the reasonable value of the tenancy to him is to be computed. This at once revolutionizes the standard. Just as a house built for occupation by its owner in Calcutta would have to be valued very low if the owner must find a tenant other than himself, so it should be valued very high if the value of the tenancy to himself is looked to. It is notorious that the 15 per cent. over and above the market value which the Land Acquisition Act requires to be paid, does not nearly reconcile owners in Calcutta to the acquisition of their family houses.

9. The English law on the subject of rating (6 and 7 William IV, C. 96) is that the net annual value of hereditaments shall be "the rent at which the same might reasonably be expected to let from year to year free of all tenants' rates and taxes, and title commutation charge, if any, and deducting therefrom the probable average annual cost of the repairs, insurance and other expenses, if any, necessary to maintain them in a state to command such rent."

In English law in such cases a hypothetical tenant is to be assumed.

10. Obviously this standard is much more easily applied to buildings which ordinarily are let, or at least are of the same class as others that ordinarily are let, than to buildings not intended to be let and ordinarily occupied by their owners. As regards the latter class of buildings, the system adopted,—I think I may say invariably adopted by English authorities,—is to assume a hypothetical tenant, and consider what rent such hypothetical tenant might reasonably be expected to pay for a year-to-year tenancy. So far all would be agreed, but the next questions are (a) whether the present occupier, be he the owner or otherwise, is to be excluded from the number of possible hypothetical tenants or not? and (b) how the value of the tenancy is to be computed? and we find that, when cases of this kind have come before the superior courts in England, they have decided that the owner of the building is to be regarded as a possible hypothetical tenant of his own property, and that the value of the tenancy to him may be calculated in precisely the same way as the Act calculates it.

Who may be the owner himself.

11. (a) This was the very contention in the case of the Queen versus the School Board for London (55 L. J. Q. B. D. 53). The School Board in appeal contended, first, that the

(6) Owners living in their own houses, built for such occupation and not for letting purposes.

(7) Owners who are also occupiers of public buildings, not built for letting purposes, mostly Government or the Port Commissioners.

No deduction allowed for repairs.

23. In rating the premises occupied by all these persons, one and the same rule under the old Act applied; not the English rule quoted above, for the English rule allows a deduction from the gross rent which a tenant may reasonably be expected to pay from year to year, sufficient to defray all rates and taxes and to keep the building in a state of repair such as to enable it to continue to command the rent, but (section 104) the rule that the annual assessment shall be the estimated gross annual rent at which the house or land might reasonably be expected to let from year to year. So far as I can ascertain, this exception in Calcutta to the ordinary rule was due to an entirely mistaken impression that, as the deductions would be approximately uniform, it would make no difference whether they were made or not made. If 20 per cent. were allowed of the gross rent to find the rateable value, 20 per cent. must be added, it was said, to the rate to balance this deduction, and the outcome would be the same. That this was fallacious, and therefore that the Calcutta rule was unfair, is easily shown. Tiled huts need a great deal more repairs than pucca buildings. A tiled hut owner has probably to spend at least 25 per cent. of the rental to keep it in repair; the owner of a pucca house not more than 10 to 15 per cent. Again, land needs no repairs at all; hence no deduction for repairs in this case should be allowed. Public offices were usually valued in accordance with the system of the new law, Government admitting the equity of the test. The capital spent upon them being known, from 5 to 6 per cent. on the outlay was taken as the rent which a hypothetical tenant would pay*. Houses occupied by their owners were valued, as already explained, on the assumption that the hypothetical tenant must be some one other than the present occupant, and therefore some one not wanting the house, and with a strong sentiment against living with his family in a hired family house.

24. Hence on a fair probable estimate it may be said that group (4), tiled hut owners, had their huts overvalued by about 25 per cent.

Groups (1), (2), and (3), occupiers and owners of houses and offices built for letting purposes, had their houses and offices overvalued by about 15 per cent.

Group (5), owners of bustee lands, were correctly valued, i.e. relatively but not absolutely undervalued.

Group (7), owners and occupiers of large public buildings, were similarly correctly valued: 5 to 6 per cent. was taken as the net return and not the gross return on house property, and therefore the valuation was fair per se, but relatively to groups (1) to (4) they were also undervalued.

Group (6) was undervalued by 30 to 50 per cent. if tested by comparison with the rule for valuing Government buildings, or by still more if tested by comparison with the accommodation, cost or cubical space of houses built for letting purposes.

It was the more necessary to redress these inequalities because the class benefiting by them was the very class which, if any, ought to pay most.

25. The above is an approximate estimate of the inequalities of valuation in Calcutta under the old Act, assuming that taxation of property for the purposes of municipal administration should be proportioned to its value. On the whole, looking to the enormous difficulty of fixing differential rates for different classes and sizes of property, it is probably best to levy rates in proportion to value, taking care only to secure the best and most correct standard of value; it may be many years before even in England this system is departed from, and I therefore never suggested any departure from it in the new Act. The valuation of one class of houses at 5 per cent. was intended to be a fair equivalent to the net rental, i.e., gross rental less 10 per cent. payable by the other class; but in considering the urgency of redressing existing inequalities, it is obviously a matter of importance to see how the question of general equity stands. Economic science points out very clearly which are the classes that benefit most, and which those that suffer most from the equal rating system, and it is surely very significant of the equities of this question in

* There is reason to fear, however, that in some cases the Commissioners' have fixed the hypothetical rent of such buildings much too high, such as the Port Commissioners' Office and the Bank of Bengal. The new section may in such cases prove as equitable in pruning down excessive valuations as in running up those which were too low.

Calcutta that the persons whose property has been hitherto so much undervalued are precisely those who, if any, ought to pay the highest rates, whether tested by the principles of general equity, or by the more special grounds of the value of municipal services rendered. If I were to go fully into this question, it would unduly lengthen this report; if, on the other hand, I deal it with briefly, I expose myself to a variety of easily-met criticisms. I have, therefore, as in the case of "the rating of mansions," devoted a note (Appendix B) to the full discussion of the subject, giving only an abstract of it here.

26. Rates on property in towns are paid partly by the persons made directly liable for them, partly by those on whom these persons can eventually throw them. If strict competition rents were paid, it would not matter much who was primarily liable: the eventual incidence of the rates would follow general laws. But as a fact custom and other causes often go far to arrest the operation of these general laws. Hence it is desirable to follow some equitable system in the primary demand of rates. The new Act follows the principle of consolidating all the rates into one and dividing the demand between the owner and the occupier. This is in exact accordance with the recommendation of Mr. Goschen and his Select Committee on local taxation, which reported in 1871. As regards the eventual incidence of these rates, it is an admitted principle that a wide distinction must be drawn between that portion of the rates which is levied on the value of the ground, and that which is levied on the value of the building on it. The former eventually falls on the ground landlord, and in large cities is a tax on the unearned increment in the value of the land; the latter falls on the occupier as the consumer.

Ground rent in large cities a most legitimate subject of taxation.

27. The first is by general consent one of the fairest and best taxes that can be levied, inasmuch as this enhanced value, which comes to the landlord without any expenditure or effort on his part, is both created and maintained by the influx of population into the city and by the expenditure of the taxes necessary to maintain it in a habitable condition. Now it will have been observed that the ground landlords are the class that on the whole come off best under the former system. The most overtaxed group (No. 4) are the owners of tiled huts, to the taxation of which the ground landlord contributed nothing. In groups 1 to 3 he suffered in common with the occupiers by the absence of any allowance for repairs; in groups 5 and 6 he gained relatively by being fairly rated while others are overrated; and in group 6, where the undervaluation is most conspicuous, the house-owner is in every instance the ground landlord.

Business premises ought not to pay excessive rates

28. Again, were the house-tax a tax instead of a rate to pay for services rendered, business premises, or that portion of a residence which is occupied for business purposes, ought not to be taxed at all (Mill Book V, Chapter VII, section 6, foot-note). Where, as in a large city, what is levied is a rate to defray municipal expenditure, they ought to pay pro tanto for the benefits they receive, but nothing more. These, however, are nearly always less rather than more than the services rendered to residential houses; and as business premises are usually to be found in that part of the town in which ground values are highest, they pay proportionately more than other classes of the community. I invite attention to that part of my note in which I have shown the indisputable extent to which in Calcutta the owners and occupiers of business premises pay the taxes of the owners and occupiers of residential houses, whether European or Native, though of course far more of those whose houses are much under-assessed, than of those who have rather been over-assessed.

29. Unfortunately the matter does not stop here. Not only do the productive classes of Calcutta pay largely the rates for the unproductive classes, but they are specially taxed in addition. Calcutta raises more than 2½ lakhs per annum by a special tax on trades and professions, though it is easy to show that on general principles there is the gravest possible objection to the special taxation of this class.

If special services are looked to, it is again found that the houses which pay least receive most.

30. Lastly, if the special services rendered by the Corporation are looked to, we arrive at the same result. This is most conspicuous in the case of the water-supply: 30 per cent. of the rating of the town is for the supply of water, and it is notorious that the large Government offices, the Port Commissioners, and the business parts of the town generally, have not taken anything like their fair share of water, while residential houses, European or Native, but above all those family houses which are occupied by their owners, have taken enormously more water than they have paid for. Similar results are found in regard to lighting, drainage, road repairs, conservancy, police and other services for which municipal rates were being levied; full statistical information on these heads is given in the annexed note (Appendix B), which I think leaves no room for doubt as to the very large extra taxation that is paid by the commercial and trading sections of the community.

31. I must submit, therefore, that, when I was entrusted with recasting the Municipal Act, I was bound both to draw the attention of the Legislature to what I think can only be correctly termed the scandal of the undervaluation of houses occupied by their owners, and to suggest some means for its remedy. Practically, owing to a variety of causes, the valuation of these houses and the interpretation of the principles applying thereto, had fallen into the hands of the very persons who owned and occupied them. Many of them were honourable men, who were unconscious that they were unduly favouring their own class; but all history shows that whenever a class interprets principles in its own cause, it tends to interpret them very much in its own favour, and therefore the first and most necessary measure was to leave the valuation of premises in the last resort to a judicial tribunal, the Small Cause Court, after preliminary decision by the Executive of the Corporation.* This has always been the rule at Bombay, where I learn on enquiry that this class of houses has never been conspicuously undervalued, because the rental of houses occupied by their owners has always been estimated by comparison with other houses built for letting, and an adequate demand for renting them always assumed.

It would have caused greater dissatisfaction had residential houses been rated by comparison with houses built for letting purposes.

32. This might have been adopted as the second part of the remedy in Calcutta, but the dissatisfaction it would have caused would have been so great, and the allegations of unfairness against the Municipal Executive which it would have entailed so plausible, that I thought it inexpedient to leave the question to be solved in this way. In Calcutta, if the prejudice against hiring such houses were ignored, and if the value of the tenancy were calculated by comparison with houses built for letting purposes,† I say advisedly that the enhancement of residential houses would have been much greater than it is now under the present Act. Where, under the present Act, a valuation has gone up 30 per cent., it would in this case have gone up 50 to 100 per cent., and the superficial inference would have been that ignorant and oppressive functionaries were enormously over-estimating the hypothetical rental and were being led away by fallacious analogies, where experienced Commissioners, who knew what they were about, had come to very different conclusion.

The proposal in the Act vindicates itself as the ordinary rule.

33. The advantage of the proposal adopted by the Act is that it carries, on the face of it, its own justification—a point of enormous importance in a controversy of this kind. In all ordinary cases the cost of building plus the value of the land occupied by the tenement, obviously determines the reasonable rent; and even the most

* This is described in the memorial as a measure subversive of Local Self-Government. To this I emphatically demur. So far from being the essence of Local Self-Government, it is the bane of it in India, where election tends to place the preponderance of power in the hands of a single section of the community, and subjects that section to the special temptation of class administration in its own favour. The best service that can be done to Local Self-Government in India is to shield it from these dangers, to guard against the preponderance of any single class, and not to confer on Commissioners quasi-judicial functions in matters in which they are personally interested. On this subject see Appendix D which goes into the matter more fully. As to the allegation that the hearing of these objections is tantamount to a denial of justice, it is devoid of any foundation. If the Lieutenant-Governor will see fit to satisfy himself in this matter, he will find that the objections are enquired into far more thoroughly now than they were when they went before benches of three Commissioners.

† In corroboration of this, I may note that in trying objections under the Act in Ward No. 1, I came upon two small houses that had recently been built for letting purposes and were let out, and I had them measured and valued precisely the same way as I was valuing houses occupied by the owners. The following was the result:—No. 115-1, Cornwallis Street, valued as under the Act at Rs. 238 per annum, actually leased for 40 rupees per mensem including tenant's rates, or deducting these and 10 per cent. for repairs, Rs. 393 per annum. This lease was only a temporary one. Second case 115-7, Cornwallis Street, valued as under the Act at Rs. 290, leased out to a regular tenant for Rs. 35 per mensem including tenant's taxes, equal to Rs. 344 per annum, exclusive thereof and allowing for repairs. These instances are, I think, a very fair standard of the extent to which the present Act still favours residential houses.

Again, the police-station in Ward No. 1 is a large residential house standing on a bighs of ground. I have as a test calculated the value of this house precisely as I have done those of objectors. At the outside I should make the annual ratable value at 5 per cent. Rs. 1,230. The police, having no sentiment against hiring a house, are expected to pay their value and the rent is Rs. 1,500 per annum. Allowing 10 per cent. for repairs as the Act does, this makes the ratable value according to the rent Rs. 1,350, at which these premises have actually been valued. This is a noteworthy case, because though the police are obviously free from any prejudice in such a matter, the existence of the prejudice among other possible competitors helps them to make good terms.

superficial acquaintance with Calcutta enables any one to know that a net return of 5 per cent. is an extremely moderate return for money invested in house property. If, therefore, this standard, when applied to houses occupied by their owners, greatly enhances the valuation, the result carries with it its own evidence of previous under valuation. Even in the case of houses built many years ago, the estimated present cost of building a similar house is what ordinarily regulates the rent which the old house can reasonably command. If an old house was built cheaply for Rs. 20,000, and could not now be built for less than Rs. 30,000, it would, making a proper allowance for depreciation, be able to command a fair return on the higher figure as its rental. If, on the other hand, the cost of building had declined, and a house built for Rs. 40,000 could now be built for Rs. 30,000, it could not command a higher rental than the fair return on Rs. 30,000. Ordinarily, therefore, whether in the case of old or new houses, no fairer test of their reasonable letting value can be taken than the estimated present cost of rebuilding them, less proper allowances for depreciation.

While the exceptional clause covers all cases out of the ordinary

34. On the other hand, there are of course exceptional cases (which the memorialists would fain represent as ordinary cases), where this cost is no adequate test, and it is for this reason that the clause was added, allowing a lower percentage. This clause was carried by the vote of the Lieutenant-Governor supported by Sir Charles Paul, the four Native Members of the Council, and myself, against a minority, composed of Mr. Pratt, Mr. Moore, Sir Alfred Croft, Mr. Allen, Mr. Macaulay, and Mr. Reynolds. Looking to the very narrow majority and to the distinguished names which composed the minority, many persons may be inclined to doubt whether the proviso was judicious, but still I must adhere to the opinion that this clause was necessary to meet the objection which now falls harmless, but otherwise would have been unanswerable, that the estimated cost of re-building is not always a fair test of a reasonable rental. It might cost a great deal to rebuild what is often called a "folly" or even a castle with its keep, battlements and moat, but in these peaceable days, these adjuncts would rather detract from than enhance its real value. Again, a person's family may diminish in numbers and he can only occupy half or a quarter of his house; or his circumstances may fall off and it may become too expensive a house for him; or the site may become unhealthy. In such cases the fair rateable value of the tenancy to him may obviously be much lowered, and may be reduced to what he could get from an outside tenant. In the two former cases, supposing a house is fairly worth Rs. 200 a month to the owner when he has full use for it, but afterwards his capacity for fully using it declines, if it were still worth to him Rs. 150, but he could only get Rs. 100 from another tenant if he were to let it, he ought to pay on the Rs. 150, but if it were worth to him only Rs. 80, but he could let it for Rs. 100 to another tenant, then he ought to pay on the Rs. 100, because if he retains the house in obedience to a sentiment, however commendable, he ought to pay the difference between the market rental and the depreciated value to himself; or lastly it may become so unhealthy as to be worth next to nothing. To meet, all these cases any percentage less than five may be taken, and the provision is, I think, elastic enough to meet all the exceptional cases in which the estimated present cost of rebuilding is not a fair test of the reasonable rent.

Objection to a percentage on the market value.

35. I see that in discussing this question the Indian Nation, a weekly paper, whose excellent tone and thoughtful style of comment entitles it at all times to careful attention, and deservedly raises it to a foremost place among Indian newspapers, sums up in favour of taking a percentage on the market value as the fairest standard of reasonable rent. This was the contention of Mr. Justice Banerjee as a Member of the Legislative Council, and I admitted that if market value were so defined as to mean the same thing in municipal assessments and land acquisition proceedings, there would be much to be said in favour of this test which, as my note shows, is the one favoured of recent years in the valuation of mansion houses. But there is one serious objection to it in Calcutta, apart from the different decisions of what constitutes market value which the courts have given, and that is, that there is a difficulty in obtaining purchasers for houses built for residences by their own owners—not much less than the difficulty in procuring tenants. It has been put in evidence before me by the objectors in these valuation cases, that a person prefers to build a house for himself to buying one ready built, and the gentleman already quoted, Baboo Nil Money Mitter, a well-known

Civil Engineer, who has taken a great interest in these valuation cases and given much valuable evidence on behalf of the objectors, has not only asserted that no house, even the moment it is completed, can be sold for what it cost the builder, but has also drawn out a table, which will found in Appendix C, estimating the loss thereon at any sum from 10 to 50 per cent. according to the cost of the house.

36. If this is a fact—and to a certain extent I am prepared to admit that it is—it should inevitably lead to the result that no more houses would be built if built for the purpose of selling. If Messrs. Dykes and Co., as soon as they had spent Rs. 1,200 on a new carriage, found they could only expect to sell it for Rs. 1,000, they would cease building carriages of that kind till the demand increased and the price went up. But people, far from ceasing to build such houses in Calcutta, are now-a-days building them more than ever. The reason is obvious; they do not build in order to sell, but in order to enjoy the occupation themselves; and if the occupation is worth to them the money spent, they do not care much for the prospective loss should they be obliged to sell. As long therefore as persons continue themselves to occupy the houses they build, market value is not a true or fair test of the rateable value. If a person occupies a Rs. 40,000 house in Calcutta with his family for 20 or 30 years, there is no reason why he should be rated as if his house were only a Rs. 30,000 house, because if he had wished to sell it, which he did not, it would only have fetched that price.

5 PER CENT. IS A FAIR PERCENTAGE.

37. It remains to say a few words on the selection of 5 per cent. as the standard of actual value. Thus much I may freely admit, that if it were not desirable to take a uniform figure when first legislating in this direction, the percentage on land should be less than that on the cost of building. Land requiring no repairs, and being subject to but few risks, while it is almost certain to rise in value, an investor in it is satisfied with much less than an investor in buildings with all their contingent risks and expenses. 4 per cent on land and 6 per cent. on buildings would be theoretically preferable to a uniform rate of 5 per cent., but as there are very few houses of this class in Calcutta in which the value of the structure does not exceed that of the ground, the owners gain rather than lose by the uniform rate. It will also be observed that the improvement of the town enhances the value of the land, not that of the building per se, and therefore if the land pays a little more highly than it should strictly do owing to the uniformity of the percentage, this is in accordance with substantial justice.

Five per cent. taken as an all round rate, though the percentage on land should be less than on the building.

38. But it has been urged in this controversy that if a percentage must be fixed, 3 per cent. rather than 5 per cent. ought to be taken. It is difficult seriously to argue against such a claim as this. To begin with, interest in England is much lower than in India, and 5 per cent. here hardly represents a larger return than 3 per cent. there; but 3 per cent. is taken in England in the case of mansion houses situated in the country, chiefly taxed for the support of the poor, with express reference to the fact that agricultural land only yields a return of 3 per cent. Houses in Calcutta are rated with a view to the services rendered them by the Corporation to pay for their lighting, water, drainage, conservancy, &c. I think I have shown pretty clearly that even at 5 per cent. they will not pay for much more than half of what they receive, and any lower percentage would be a mere mockery of equality.

39. For these reasons the undervaluation of this class of houses was remedied in the new Act by the assumption of an annual payment of 5 per cent. on the true value of the house and land as the hypothetical rent, with a lower percentage to meet exceptional cases; while to remedy the overvaluation of other classes of houses an allowance of 10 per cent. was made for repairs and other expenses necessary to enable the premises to command the rent. Just as residential houses, will, if anything, remain somewhat undervalued under the Act, so houses valued according to their actual gross rental with an allowance of only 10 per cent. will still be somewhat overvalued. Land of course gets no allowance. Tiled huts were not given any exceptionally large allowance, as strictly speaking should have been done, owing to the desire not to overweight a new section with complexity. Moreover, their owners received material relief in another direction by the substitution of a uniform average rate of 2 per cent.

for the house service fees, which in the case of huts averaged 10 per cent.; and by the provision of the law which makes their rates payable by the ground landlord, they are henceforth kept aloof from any direct contact with the municipal underlings—another great boon to them.

Suggestion that when the town has been revalued the equity of the valuations be tested by a Committee of Engineers and Surveyors.

40. These being the chief changes in the law as regards valuation of premises, I would suggest that the Government should now allow the whole town to be revalued under the provisions of section 122, as it will be in less than four years' time. When the revaluation is completed, if the owners of houses built for their own occupation still maintain that they are unfairly treated, let a Committee of Engineers and Surveyors be appointed to examine the various classes of buildings in different parts of Calcutta, and contrast their respective valuations, allowing for the difference of price in sites. If they find that residential houses occupied by their owners are proportionately more highly valued than other classes of buildings, let redress be promptly given; but if, as I am confident will be the case, the verdict is the other way, then further steps should perhaps be taken to redress the balance; for it is surely intolerable that the group of rate-payers which, under circumstances of strictly equal rating, must inevitably enjoy far more advantages than they pay for, should not even pay equal rates.

Question of the total exemption of the houses of the very poor.

41. The memorialists do not on the present occasion again refer to my inconsistency in not proposing to carry out the further recommendation of Mill for the entire exemption from taxation of all houses below a certain value "on the universal principle of sparing from all taxation the absolute necessaries of healthful existence," but they quote the former memorial in which they do "not hesitate to affirm that it is a singularly unfair piece of legislation which, in the name of economic principles, seeks to lay a heavy burden upon the well-to-do classes, but will not provide for that relief to the poorer classes which these principles distinctly contemplate."

42. In the first place it is not correct to say that the new Act entirely ignores this. Section 455 contains a proviso that "it shall be lawful for the Commissioners to exempt the owner of any hut from payment of all or any rate in respect of such hut," and several huts of very poor persons have been exempted under this section during the past year; but if the Government is disposed to extend this, and make the exemption of all huts below a certain value obligatory on the Commissioners, I would not offer any opposition.

43. At the same time the result would be transparently the reverse to what the memorialists desire. The class whose cause they are advocating are persons who have spent from Rs. 2,000 to Rs. 2,00,000 of capital on erecting residences on their own ground; they do not surely expect houses of this class (though under the old law only assessed at from Rs. 4 to Rs. 300 a month) to be exempted. Obviously therefore the exemption of huts rented at Re. 1 to Rs. 2 a month will only increase the burden on residential houses. Moreover, as I pointed out in paragraph 25, the principle of rating proportionately to value is a safe working principle, the departure from which opens up an enormous number of questions of relative equity, which most certainly would not result in any further advantage to the ground landlords. Mill, also, is speaking of the taxation of houses for general purposes, a very different thing from rating for municipal purposes, when a distinct quid pro quo is given in the water, gas, roads, conservancy, &c., provided by the Corporation. I think those most experienced, even those who are entirely ready to accept Mill's principle, will admit that in section 455 the new Act goes as far in this direction as it was wise or expedient to go.

Remarks on the statistics annexed to the memorial.

44. In concluding this part of my report, I will add a word or two regarding the statistics annexed to the memorial. Annexure A gives some statistics of the extent of enhancement in Ward No. 6. As I have already said, seeing that this is a case of revaluation after 6¼ years, that during that time the value of land in that ward has almost doubled, that the figures include new houses and new additions to old houses, the increase, far from being too high, is, I fear, very inadequate—much too inadequate—were it not that rented houses have received a reduction of 10 per cent. on their gross letting values for the cost of repairs. As regards table B—houses in Ward No. 1 still under revaluation—even if the premises chosen were all revaluations of former houses, they would only show how inadequate the former valuations were; but I find that they include new additions, and therefore as they stand they are obviously wide of the mark. The remark made "can it for a moment be supposed that those small houses had been underassessed under the old law" borders on the ridiculous. Tried by any proper system of comparison they were enormously under assessed. Though the assessments are small, the houses, especially towards the end of the list, are fit to be compared with houses rented elsewhere at Rs. 100 to Rs. 350 per mensem. The figures given in table C are a very natural instance of the wrong inference from correct facts. The cases, as I understand, are those of two residential houses which have been partitioned, the one-half being still occupied by its owner, the other being let to an outsider, presumably because the owner is unable to continue to reside in it. In the one case the half occupied by the owner is valued at Rs. 353, while the half let to a tenant at Rs. 144. In the other case the figures are Rs. 108 and Rs. 96. The difference in the second case is comparatively trivial, But what is the true inference in the first case except that if 5 per cent. on the cost price of a house gives Rs. 353 as the annual value, and yet a tenant of that class of house can only be obtained at Rs. 144 (2¼ per cent.), how improper a test the letting value of that class of houses to persons other than the owners must be? Can any one in his senses suppose that capitalists in Calcutta are willing to invest money in building to get a return of 2¼ per cent?

The figures given regarding objections obviously prove nothing unless it be the extent of previous undervaluations.

OBJECTION TO THE NEW BUSTEE SYSTEM OF RATING. SECTIO N 117.

45. II. The second feature in the new Act to which the memorialists have taken exception is the provision by which the ground landlord in bustees is required to pay all the rates, being allowed a deduction of 2 annas in the rupee for the expense and loss attendant on the recovery of the greater portion thereof from the hut owners.

Second objection of memorialists. Owners required to pay rates for bustees.

46. The bustee tenure is one in which the landlord allows the tenant to build at his own expense a tiled hut on his land, and to pay him ground-rent for the use thereof. The tenant has no security of tenure and can be turned out at a month's if not a moment's notice. Under the old law in Calcutta, the landlord had to pay the owner's rates on the land which was assessed under one number. Each hut on it was separately assessed, the hut owner paying the o cupier's rate on the bit of land occupied by him and the owner's and occupier's rates on his hut. Thus, if a bustee had 20 huts on it and its number was 50, Beadon Street, the huts would be 50H. 1, 50H. 2,.....50H. 20, there being in all 21 separate assessments. If in the middle of the year another hut was added, it would become 50H. 21, and the rental of the original number must be modified also. Thus, the municipal staff had for this one plot of land, this one number, to collect 61 separate bills from 21 different persons, 60 of which were recovered direct from the hut owners. In the Suburbs the case was worse, because there the hut owners were compelled to pay for the ground landlord as well, with a right of recovery of the amount from him! I have n ade careful enquiries and cannot hear of a single case of such recovery.

Former bustee system explained.

47. Under the new law a single assessment is made of the plot of land belonging to each landlord. To this is attached a schedule of all the huts on the land and of the valuation of each, that both landlord and tenant may know the precise sum recoverable by the former. From these valuations a deduction of 10 per cent. is allowed for repairs, and the landlord is allowed 2 annas in the rupee for collection expenses and other losses. The assessment now made holds good for the year, the landlord getting the benefit of new huts and having to pay the rates of any that are removed. At the end of the year either he or the Municipality may insist on a revaluation, but if neither do so, the old valuation may continue from year to year. A single bill is made out against the ground landlord for each quarter.

48. The main object of this provision is administrative efficiency and the putting a restraint on the ill-treatment of a class little capable of defending themselves, and it is on this ground that I would most earnestly deprecate any reversion to the old system. At the san e time I am quite prepared to defend it on the ground of equity also. It is well known that it has been introduced into England for the very same reason, where it has been the law since 1869. All rates in England, with very rare exceptions, are payable by the occupiers; but by 32 and 33 Vic., Cap. 41, it was prescribed that whenever a holding was valued at less than £20 in the Metropolis, £13 in Liverpool, £10 in Birmingham or Manchester, or £8 in any other parish, the parish authorities might rate the owners instead of the occupiers, giving them an allowance of 15 per cent. The object of this is precisely the same as that of the present Act, viz. to keep the collecting establishments of the Municipality away from the very poor and defenceless. If needed in England, it is needed ten times more in Calcutta, where this is the class habitually most oppressed and most silent under oppression. Under the old law the number of warrants issued in Calcutta annually was between 30,000 and 40,000, the great bulk of course in connection with these poorer ratepayers,—100 warrants a day, yet who heard anything of them! Under the new system a single warrant has been issued against a wealthy ground landlord, who, with ample means, was openly defying the law, and the whole of Calcutta rings with the event, and a suit in the High Court is the result. Is any comment necessary on such a contrast?

49. It may be said, however, that as the hut-owners will have to deal with the landlords' agents, they will be worse off than if they had to deal with the municipal underlings, but this is an untenable objection. The hut-owners must, under any circumstances, be brought into contact with the ground landlord's collecting sircar. If he is unprincipled he can worry the tenants in the collection of rent quite as much as in the collection of rates. Moreover, if the new law is retained, it may be anticipated with confidence that in a very short time the rates will be included in the rent. The landlord will say, "I will pay your rates; you pay me Re. 1-12 instead of Re. 1-8 a cottah ground-rent," as they frequently already do in the matter of tenanted houses. When this is brought about, the object of the new legislation will be fully attained. I have no doubt that if the Government will only support this provision of the new Act, the benefits resulting from it, in a few years, will be most conspicuous. As a very experienced officer of the Corporation said to me the other day, you may almost close the Warrant Department.

But also perfectly equitable.

50. But it is urged that the provision is essentially unjust to the ground landlord, and therefore, however beneficial the results may be, justice ought not to be sacrificed to them. And the distinction pointed out by Sir Charles Paul is approvingly quoted, that in England the owner is made liable for his own property, but in Calcutta he is made liable for the rates of the huts of which he is not the owner. I have the greatest possible respect for Sir Charles Paul's opinion, and he rendered most valuable assistance in carrying through the assessment clauses of the new Act; but in this instance I must be allowed to adhere to my own judgment. The bustee owner is the sole and only proprietor of the holding. He has surrendered nothing of his proprietary rights—not even a six-months' tenancy. To call the hut-owner, who can be expelled at a moment's notice, an owner, is surely a euphemism. He owns nothing but the bamboos and tiles of his hut. The ground landlord invests no capital in the bustee (except perhaps for drainage), he risks nothing, he ventures nothing, and he appropriates all the profits of the municipal improvements. The value of bustee land since the bustees have been improved by the Corporation, have had roads made through them, bathing-platforms erected in them, and their conservancy attended to, has gone up from 50 to 300 per cent. At a most moderate computation the ground rents of bustees in Calcutta have increased by five lakhs annually during the last six or seven years. The landlords have literally grown rich in their sleep. And can they, forsooth, complain of injustice at the hands of the Corporation, because for the well-being of the community they are required, as in England, to advance the rates for poor tenants?

Conclusion.

51. So long it was the hut owner who was over-assessed by being allowed no abatement for repairs, who was required to pay 10 per cent. ad valorem as house-service fees, was given no drainage, no lighting, no conservancy, was allowed no water connections, and, in the suburbs, was required to pay his landlord's rates as well as his own, not a voice was raised in his behalf; it was left entirely to the official Chairman to draw attention to his wrongs! But now that by a righteous change in the law the duties and responsibilities of the one class who benefit most by municipal expenditure—the ground landlords—are recognised, and they are warned that they must bear in future something approaching a fair share of municipal burdens, the whole of Calcutta is in arms to resent the outrage! Ward meetings are held, a public meeting is convened in the Town Hall, the services of the ablest lawyers in Calcutta are enlisted, and the "iniquity" of making the gentry of Calcutta pay a somewhat fairer share of the rates than hitherto, is the theme of the daily and weekly press. To me I must confess that, as I became more and more fully alive to the inequalities and inequities of the old system, and also more aware of the powerful band of interests welded together to uphold and defend these abuses, the work of removing them, in spite of the storm of opposition which the effort was certain to arouse, assumed the aspect of a sacred duty.

52. I do not for a moment doubt that there are many very poor house-owners in Calcutta, who have difficulty already in making two ends meet, to whom any increase in the valuation of their house, involving a proportionate increase in their rates, is a very serious evil. This is the difficulty with which we are confronted everywhere in Bengal, where the class that lives on the land has increased so much in number that the most legitimate taxation of rent is in practice often found extremely burdensome. But this, however much it may induce sympathy with the poorer house-owners, occupying their own houses, cannot obviously avail in a question which must turn on justice between class and class. Reduced to its last analysis, this plea amounts to nothing more than that because they are poor, others must pay for the water, lighting and other municipal benefits which they enjoy. Poverty may be an excellent reason for appealing to the charity of their friends and relatives, but none for extracting forced benevolences from other ratepayers, many of whom are poorer than they are.

53. I have, I think, shown clearly that, tried by any fair test, those who reside in their own houses in Calcutta will still be rather under than over assessed, that the ground landlords, to which class they of course belong, are the class that benefits most by municipal improvements and municipal expenditure; that, as shown in the appended note, the trading and commercial community, because it works in the most valuable part of the town, pays more than double for all it receives, and the surplus goes to provide the wants of the class that is now complaining of unfair treatment. I do not think any case has been made out for interfering with the operation of the Act, though I am far from certain that a case could not be made out for providing some much more efficacious remedy to the abuses which it but very partially removes.

APPENDIX A.

On the rating of mansions in England.

Remarks of High Court in former case are not relevant, as the law was different.

1. The memorialists refer approvingly to the remarks of Sir Richard Garth, C. J., that "similar difficulties arise in England in the case of gentlemen's parks and mansions which are laid out for residential purposes and not for sale or letting. But such properties are nevertheless constantly rated upon the basis of their annual letting value." And although this is only lightly touched upon in the memorial itself, the remarks have been freely referred to in speeches and articles, as if Sir Richard Garth was in some way condemning by anticipation the provisions of the present Act. The remarks of Sir Richard Garth were made in a case which came before the High Court under the former and not under the new Act. The Assessor had, as the High Court considered, valued a new house on a percentage of its actual cost: the simple question before the Court was whether, under the law as it stood, such valuation was legal: and Sir Richard Garth meets the argument that there was no way out of the difficulty, as the house was not built for letting purposes, by pointing out that similar difficulties have occurred in England in the case of mansions, but they have been somehow or other overcome under the law as it stood. There is not here one word of commendation for the law as it stood. The Chief Justice expressed no opinion that the English system had resulted in equity or had given satisfaction. Had he done so, he would have been at variance with every single authority I have come across on the subject; but all he says is that the legal difficulty has not proved insurmountable in England. Obviously, therefore, his remarks in this case have no bearing whatsoever on the present issue.

Still rating of mansions was till lately the one blot in the English system.

2. Still it is a fact that primâ facie the rating of mansions was till lately the one exception to the rule of either cost price or market value having been looked to in England as the best guide to the rent which a hypothetical tenant should pay for the use of buildings not constructed for letting purposes. In the case of manufactories, hospitals, school-houses, reservoirs, light-houses, &c., there are decisions showing that the hypothetical tenant must be assumed to pay such a rental as yields a fair return on the value of the building, land included, but in the case of mansions the argument has been used, as Mill says, that as no tenant could afford to pay more than a mere song for the use and occupation of such mansions, therefore they ought to be rated at a song; and Adam Smith says—

"Houses inhabited by the proprietors ought to be rated, not according to the expense which they might have cost in building, but according to the rent which an equitable arbitration might judge them likely to bring if leased to a tenant. If rated according to the expense they may have cost in building, a tax of 3 or 4 shillings in the pound, joined with other taxes, would ruin almost all the rich and great families of this and I believe every other civilized country. Whoever will examine with attention the different town and country houses of some of the richest and greatest families in this country, will find that, at the rate of only 6½ or 7 per cent. upon the original expense of building, their house rent is nearly equal to the net rate of their estates. It is the accumulated expense of several successive generations laid out upon objects of great beauty and magnificence indeed, but in proportion to what they cost of very small exchangeable value."

3. It is well known that this passage of Adam Smith is not concurred in by modern English economists. Mill, in the passage quoted so often in this connection, differs in toto, while Thorold Rogers, whose edition of Adam Smith (2nd edition, 1880,) I have before me, says in noting on this passage: "There is no apology for running into the opposite extreme and rating the value of such houses at nominal sums. The Legislature might concede a little to the vanity of potentates in country-places, but the public undoubtedly feels that it is a scandal when places like Chatsworth* and Belvoir are rented at such sums as £200 a year, because, forsooth, they could not be let at a higher annual sum."

The houses affected by this section in Calcutta are not mansions.

4. But even taking the passage in Adam Smith as it stands, it is evident that he is contemplating a very different class of houses from the residential houses in Calcutta, most of which are under the new law valued at from Rs. 10 to Rs. 150 a month and every square foot of which is carefully built with a view to the convenience of the house as a residence. The largest landholder in Calcutta will hardly have his house valued at above Rs. 1,000 a month. Is Rs. 1,000 a month the whole net rent of the estates of these gentlemen? Would they be ruined by paying four shillings in the pound (Rs. 200 a month) to the Corporation as rates? If anybody is seriously hurt by these enhancements, it is small house-owners whose rental is valued at Rs. 10 to Rs. 50 per mensem, and whose houses in England would be strictly rated by comparison with other houses let out to tenants. Where in Calcutta have we the accumulated expense of several generations upon objects of great beauty and magnificence? What we want to rate at a fair value in Calcutta are not picture galleries and unique statuary or superb libraries, but mere bricks and mortar, ordinary dwelling rooms, stables and servants' houses. Surely there is no room for doubt that such houses as these in English towns are now rated at their full value.

The real mansions of Calcutta have been fully rated.

5. What really correspond in Calcutta to the English mansions are the large public buildings, the Museums, the Tea Warehouse, Writers' Buildings, the Currency Office, the High Court, and above all Government House and Belvedere, but these buildings already bear an annual value of 5 to 6 per cent. on the outlay. It is quite true that these large buildings cannot receive anything like an equivalent in municipal benefits for the rates they pay, whether by way of water, lighting, or conservancy; whereas the residential houses regarding which the complaint is made swarm with inmates, and appropriate a very good share indeed of municipal conveniences.

* Chatsworth is now rated on £ 1,500 a year, which is still complained of as too low.

More recent history of the rating of mansion houses in England.

6. However, let me follow up the more recent history of rating mansion houses in England. The manual which I take as my authority is a well-known manual on the law of parochial assessment, by W. Golden Lumley, Q.C., 7th edition, edited in 1882 by W. Cunningham Glen, Barrister-at-law. The following passage gives Lumley's remarks on the rating of mansions. As the word mansion is not defined, the sense in which it is used must be gathered from the context and the arguments. Though it does not exclude mansions in towns, it is evident that the arguments chiefly apply to large country houses, adjuncts of large estates :—

"In the case of large mansions or castles, such as Chatsworth or Alnwick castles, when in the occupation of the owners, a tenancy from year to year is too short a period of letting to be assumed, for it is clear a tenant would not give so much on such a tenancy as if he got the castle or mansion on a seven years' lease, and as Cockburn, C.J., in Clive versus Foy, said, 'if you rated it on that principle you would rate it much below its value, which ought not to be done.' (Hedley on rating mansion houses, page 28.) But as property of this description is not built to let to ordinary tenants, and is not capable of yielding direct annual profit or rent, instead of assessing a tenancy, the usual course is to assess the amount which the property would fetch in the market, and upon that to calculate the gross annual value at 3 per cent. upon the capital sum" (page 19).

Hedley's pamphlet on the rating of mansion houses in 1874.

7. It will be seen that the authority referred to is Hedley on the rating of mansions. Mr. T. F. Hedley is a valuer and arbitrator of Sunderland, who wrote at least two pamphlets, one in 1866 and the other in 1874, on this subject, the latter of which is styled "Observations of the rating of Mansion Houses." I cannot do better than give a summary of this pamphlet to show how an experienced English surveyor deals with a question of this kind. The pamphlet opens thus—

"The question of the assessment of the large mansion houses and pleasure grounds occupied by the nobility and gentry of this country, for the purpose of local taxation, has frequently been brought under the notice of the public, and within the last few years two attempts have been made to legislate upon the subject, to remedy the existing inequality, unfairness and injustice in the rating of those large houses, and which the late President of the Local Government Board very properly described as a 'sort of scandal.'

"The Right Hon'ble G. J. Goschen proposed, in the Bill he introduced in the session of 1871, that 'where any building, by reason of its size and structure, or of its being adapted for some special purpose, cannot be properly valued according to the annual rent which a tenant might reasonably be expected to pay for the same, it may be valued by the Chairman of the Parochial Board, as follows:—

"'The gross value of any such building shall be a sum equal to 4 per cent. on such capital sum as a purchaser might reasonably be expected to give for such building in its actual state and existing mode of occupation."

"And the Right Hon'ble J. Stansfield proposed in the Bill he introduced in the session of 1878, that 'where the overseers, or other valuing authority, are of opinion that any building in any parish, either in the metropolis or elsewhere, which is not occupied by a tenant or tenants bonâ fide paying or liable to pay rent for the same, and is not occupied for the purposes of trade or profit, cannot by reason of its size, character, use, or any exceptional circumstances, be properly valued according to the annual rent which a tenant might reasonably be expected to pay for the same, the overseers or other valuing authority may value the same under the provisions of this section.'

"'The gross value of any hereditaments valued under the provisions of this section may be estimated according to the annual value thereof to the person occupying the same in respect of its actual use and occupation.'

"'Although mansion houses were not expressly mentioned in either of the Bills, it was understood that both the proposed clauses were specially intended to apply to the assessment of large mansion houses; but as neither of these Bills passed into law, the assessment of the large mansion houses must be made in conformity with the general statute and expounded laws in force for the assessment of property for the purpose of local taxation.'"

8. The pamphlet then proceeds to set forth the existing law, both the original statute of Elizabeth 43, Cap. 2, directing poor rates to be levied in regard to the possessions of the occupiers, and the Parochial Assessment Act already quoted (6 and 7 William IV, Cap. 96), which, as it points out—

"Introduced no new principle of rating, but only a new mode; therefore the Act of Elizabeth is the principal Act in force under which all rateable property is now by law assessed to the rates for the relief of the poor and other local rates; and although since the passing of the statute of Elizabeth many large works, such as canals, docks, gas and water-works, railways and telegraphs, have been constructed, which were never contemplated when the statute of Elizabeth was passed, no special legislation has been required to assess these properties, as the Judges of the Superior Courts have been able to apply the statute of Elizabeth and to lay down clear and intelligible principles, under the Parochial Assessment Act, for assessment of these large works, though such works could not let from year to year; and there can be no doubt that if a case had been stated for the opinion of the Court of Queen's Bench on the rating of mansion houses, the Judges would have laid down some principle by which those large houses could have been fairly assessed. And it is remarkable that up to the present time the 'difficult' question of rating mansion houses has never been submitted for the consideration of the Superior Courts, and that all the proceedings connected with this subject should have hitherto been limited to the petty or quarter sessions, and treated as a question of fact only."

Up to 1874 no case regarding mansion houses ever came before the Superior Courts.

He then refers to the case of Lord Normanton's house, insured for £60,000, having cost above £100,000, and recently valued by the Hampshire Quarter Sessions at £286 per annum, and remarks:

"Taking into consideration the fact that agricultural land is assessed upon an annual value of 3 per cent. per annum, and ordinary houses and other property at from 5 to 6 per cent. upon their respective capital values, the assessment of this house at less than ½ per cent. of its insured capital value is manifestly unfair, unequal and unjust."

9. I invite particular attention to two points in this extract: firstly, that the only reason why the rating of mansion houses in England has been so unsatisfactory is because the question had never up to 1874 come before the Superior Courts. All similar cases which had come before those Courts (manufactories, hospitals, &c.,) had been disposed of in a manner closely analogous to that adopted by the new Act. Secondly, it is only land in England that is assessed at 3 per cent.; buildings are usually valued at 5 to 6 per cent. on their capital values, and it is because they are adjuncts to land that 3 per cent. has been taken as the rate for mansion houses, as will be shown further on. After instancing some further cases of gross abuses, Mr. Hedley remarks: "In my opinion the occupiers and owners of large mansion houses do not wish to evade their fair share of local taxes, but they labour under what I believe to be a mistake, and that is that the rents at which these houses would let from year to year to an ordinary or actual tenant is the sole criterion of value, or of the amount from which by the statute the rateable value is to be arrived at."

10. Mr. Hedley then goes on to point out that the rent at which an hereditament might reasonably be expected to let is a very different thing from the rent which it might actually be able to command owing to want of any proper demand. Over and over again the Courts have ruled that, when an owner occupies a building himself, the demand exists in his own person, and the question of a reasonable rent must depend on the conditions and circumstances of the property.

Rent at which a house may reasonably be let a very different thing from rent at which it may actually be let.

"The Superior Courts have decided 'that rent is not the sole criterion of value, nor can rent be taken as the one fact exclusive and conclusive of the amount from which by the statute the rateable value is to be arrived at' (Rex. v. Dorking, 18 Jur. 673), and 'the rent that would be paid, not by an actual tenant, but by the hypothetical tenant, must decide the value' (Rex v. Llantrissant, 33. S. P., 242 and 613).

He then proceeds to quote decisions of the Superior Courts in the case of manufactories, light-houses, railway stations, reservoirs, hospitals, work-houses, all of which, like mansions, have not been—

"Built to let, and are incapable of yielding direct profit, as they could not be let from year to year to ordinary tenants."

And he states his opinion—

"That large mansion houses connected with estates are now legally rateable, and ought to be rated on the principles laid down above for rating other property which is not let from year to year to ordinary tenants, and where in practice actual tenants are rarely if ever known, and the owners and occupiers of mansion houses ought to be assessed upon the rents of the lands occupied by their mansion houses, pleasure grounds and gardens connected therewith, and adequate remuneration or fair interest on the capital invested in such mansion houses which would represent the yearly rent which the occupiers might reasonably be expected to pay if they had not been the owners of the mansion houses."

11. Mr. Hedley then exemplifies this principle in its application, and a long quotation is necessary not only to explain it, but also to show why he arrives at the rate of 3 per cent. on the capital value which, according to Lumley, has since become the accepted rule:—

"In valuing mansions on this principle, there is no difficulty in arriving at the rent of the land occupied by the houses and pleasure grounds, as that will depend upon the quality and situation of the land.

Reasons for taking 3 per cent. on the present capital value as fair for mansion houses.

"The amount of 'fixed capital invested' in mansion houses, or the 'expense of the buildings' is a more difficult question to settle, as the cost of the buildings, or what has been expended, may be no criterion of present value; for 'that which was costly may have become valueless by reason of subsequent changes, or the money may have been injudiciously expended. As for instance, in old feudal castles, much that was costly in 'erecting works of defence is now valueless' by reason of 'subsequent changes' in the times and in the manners and customs of the people, and in other cases large sums have been expended from unforeseen difficulties in foundations, or on ornamental or decorated buildings or 'follies' which may not have added either to the value of the houses or the estates. In such cases the cost or money expended will not represent the present value or the amount of the capital invested in the mansion house for the purpose of assessment.

"As the value of the thing rated must be the value at the time the rate is made, therefore the value of the mansion houses or the capital invested therein must be limited to the increased value which the mansion houses might reasonably be expected to give to the estates, or to the capital which it might reasonably be expected the owner of an estate would have to invest in erecting a suitable residence, and not the amount actually expended.

"The next question is the adequate remuneration, or fair interest, on the capital invested in mansion houses as the local rateable values; taking into consideration that mansion houses are treated as adjuncts to estates, and that such estates do not yield more direct profit or rent on the capital invested than 3 per cent. per annum. I think the local rateable value of the mansion houses ought not to be estimated at a greater rate than three per cent. per annum on the present capital value of mansion houses as adjuncts to estates.

"The rents of the lands and the interest on the capital invested in mansion houses will be the annual or "local rateable values;' and the hypothetical tenants must be assumed to repair and insure the mansion houses."

Nothing less than an average rate of 5 per cent. could be fair in Calcutta.

12. I have thus shown how it is that 3 per cent. on the capital value was advocated by Mr. Hedley, and has to a great extent been subsequently adopted in England as the fair percentage to determine the annual value of mansion houses. It is because these houses are adjuncts to country estates, the yield of which is not ordinarily more than 3 per cent. Three per cent. in England is very nearly equal to 5 per cent. in India, looking to the higher return for money in this country. But be this as it may, the argument fails to apply to houses in towns, the main object of rating which is not the payment of poor rates, but the defraying of the expenditure necessary for drainage, water-works, roads, lighting and conservancy. Even in England, as the foregoing extracts show, 5, 6, 6½ and 7 per cent. are the usual returns to allow on capital sunk in building, and the rate of 5 per cent. which the Act adopts is undoubtedly very low, so low and so favourable that, if it has to be altered at all, justice will require it to be considerably raised as regards the cost of building, though it may equitably be lowered as regards the annual value of the land.

13. The passage last quoted also indicates plainly the use as well as the abuse of taking the present estimated cost of rebuilding as the standard of value. If the Taj or the Moti Musjid, if architectural gems or owner's "follies" had to be assessed in Calcutta, it would be very unfair to take the present cost of rebuilding them, less deprociation, as the standard of value. But when a building is built in modern style, when there is no waste on costly defences adapted to a byegone age, when every room, every dalan, every courtyard, every verandah, every puja bari, is made full use of by the existing family, and probably some additional rooms have to be from time to time provided as the family increases, then the estimated present cost of rebuilding is ex necessitate rei the truest test possible of the occupation value of the building, and in such cases a percentage on the amount is the best possible standard for determining the rent which the hypothetical tenant should reasonably be expected to pay.

14. Moreover, the foregoing account clearly shows that the difficulty in the case of mansion houses was altogether different in kind from that of residential houses in Calcutta. These latter are depreciated where they are let, not because the cost of keeping them up is so great that tenants cannot afford to hire them, but because there is a strong sentiment or prejudice against living with a family in a hired house, even a tiled hut on land belonging to the occupants being considered preferable. Hence while such houses are in the greatest possible demand, so much so that they are being constructed every day, and that it is contended that this demand has abnormally raised the value of land adapted for their construction, such demand is entirely for occupation by their owners, not for occupation by lessees. I cannot believe that any Superior Court in England would for a moment have listened patiently to such a plea as is above indicated for the assessment at a nominal sum of a commodious, convenient, and not oversized family residence in a municipal borough.

APPENDIX B.

On the equitable incidence of Municipal Taxation in Calcutta.

1. In annexing this note to my reply to the memorial, I will at the outset repeat that Act II of 1889 aimed at nothing more than a nearer approach to equality of rating, that is, equal rates according to the true and fair value of the property rated. The time has not yet come for the exceptional taxation of ground rents or of any other particular class of property, but many persons are heard from time to time to apologise for the inequality of rating that has hitherto prevailed in Calcutta, on the plea either that the favoured class ought on general principles of equity to be favoured, or that they get so small a share of municipal benefits, that it is after all substantial justice if they pay something less than others.

Both of these pleas are conspicuously unfounded, and it is surely therefore of importance to show, as I do in this note, (1) that the favoured class, far from being equitably entitled to favour, ought, on the contrary, if there is differential taxation, to pay the most; (2) that so far from getting less than their share of municipal benefits, the gravamen of the case against them is that, while they pay much less, they receive much more.

2. (1) By principles of obvious justice, no less than by the universal consent of all competent authorities, ground rents in large cities are above all other classes of property, legitimately taxable for the maintenance and improvement of the city. Adam Smith, after approving the taxation of building rents, says:—

Ground landlords in a growing city are the last class that ought to be exceptionally favoured.

"Ground rents are a still more proper subject of taxation than the rent of houses . . . . . Both ground rents and the ordinary rent of lands are a species of revenue which the owner in many cases enjoys without any care or attention of his own. Ground rents seem in this respect a more proper subject of peculiar taxation than even the ordinary rent of land . . . Ground rents, so far as they exceed the ordinary rent of land, are altogether owing to the good government of the Sovereign which, by protecting the industry either of the whole people or of the inhabitants of some particular place, enables them to pay so much more than its real value for the ground they build their houses upon, or to make to its owner so much more than compensation for the loss he might sustain by the use of it. Nothing can be more reasonable than that a fund which owes its existence to the good government of the State should be taxed peculiarly, or should contribute something more than the greater part of other funds to the support of Government." (Wealth of Nations, Book V, Chapter II.)

And Mill says:—

"Among the very few kinds of income which are fit subjects for peculiar taxation, these ground rents hold the principal place, being the most gigantic example extent of enormous accessions of riches acquired rapidly, and in many cases unexpectedly, by a few families from the mere accident of their possessing certain tracts of land, without their having themselves aided in the acquisition by the smallest exertion, outlay, or risk." (Principles of Political Economy, Book V, Chapter III, section 6.)

3. In Calcutta a bigha of land yields an annual rental of from Rs. 200 to Rs. 2,000; agricultural land in the 24-Pergunnahs from Re. 1 to Rs. 10. The location of Calcutta on its present site has thus increased the rental of the ground landlords by about two-hundredfold without any effort or contribution on their part. Had an intelligent autocrat, foreseeing this in the outset, said to the ground landlords—"I am about to work for the location of a large flourishing commercial city on the site of your property. This city will raise enormously the value of the ground on which it is built, but it will require a very large outlay for its drainage, conservancy, &c. I want to divert these enhanced receipts to this object; this is no injustice to you; part with your lands if you like for full value and something more, if not take 10 per cent. (say) of the profits in addition to the present rental in recognition of your landlord's interest, and I will be satisfied with 90 per cent. for the wants of the city."

4. Had this, I say, happened, and had the owners accepted the offer, what should we now see? An annual income from ground rents alone of at least 45 lakhs for the municipal expenditure of the town of Calcutta, a sum sufficient to meet all its wants without laying on a single rupee of taxation; and simultaneously a body of landlords enjoying a rental of 5 lakhs per annum instead of the Rs. 25,000 they were previously receiving, who would be loud in their laudations of the wisdom of the benevolent despot, who had thus multiplied their rents twentyfold, and loud in their own praise for having accepted his offer instead of selling their lands to him outright. What we do see is that, though they are enjoying receipts two-hundredfold, instead of twentyfold their former amount, they are at the same time complaining bitterly of having to pay a fair share of the general taxation to the city!

5. Of course now that new expectations have grown up, that land has in most cases changed hands for full value, and that complicated interests have arisen, such a utopian settlement of the wants of the capital of India is no longer consistent with justice. But still it is evident that the income which, above all others, has been created and is maintained by the creation and maintenance of Calcutta has a commercial capital, is the ground rent, and therefore the ground rent is the most legitimate object of taxation that can be conceived for the maintenance of the city. This is still more the case when it is remembered that never has the increase in the value of ground rents of Calcutta been more marked than in the last 10 years, and that it is specially traceable in this instance to the municipal improvements. Of the two-hundredfold increase which has taken place in the ground rents of Calcutta during the last two centuries or so, one-half or one-hundredfold has taken place during the last 10 years.* At the lowest possible computation the annual value of the land of Calcutta has increased by 25 lakhs during that period, not improbably by 50 lakhs, for in making an estimate based on an average of rents varying so much as the rents on the Strand Bank do from those of land on Circular Road, a considerable margin must be allowed. This means that in these ten years five to ten crores of rupees have been added to the capitalized value of the property of the landowners of only six square miles! Is it, I ask, reasonable, to use no stronger expression, that a class of rate-payers which have had such a boon conferred on them, should so vehemently oppose an endeavour to make them pay an equal share of the taxation of the town with their fellow rate-payers?

6. Now it is obvious that it is the class that is most coincident with the ground landlords of Calcutta, which has specially benefited by the under-valuation of family residences. The ground landlords of Calcutta are nearly to a man owners and occupiers of the houses they live in, and therefore profit directly by the under-valuation of their own residences, for which they pay both as owner and occupier, as compared with the over-valuation of all other house property by no allowance having been made for repairs, for which they pay only half while the occupiers pay the other half. Again, they benefited specially by the bustee system, under which they paid the owner's rates only for the lands which, as already explained, were relatively under-valued, while the owner of the bamboos and tiles paid far more than his share of taxes without any deduction. Again, they have benefited very materially by the under-valuation as a system of all residential houses, because they are the vendors of the lands on which those houses are being built; and if those houses are favoured, it is evident that a much higher price can be obtained for the land from candidate residents. This is exactly what we see before our eyes. Every one is surprised to find that land suitable for building sells outright for much more than any proper multiple of the rent which it will command. Is it not evident that the extreme desire of others to become owners of any portion of the soil of Calcutta, rising as it is in value by leaps and bounds, as well as to have the advantages of a permanent house in Calcutta, enhanced by the prospect of having that house under-assessed as compared with other house property by 50 per cent., is a most important factor in the demand for building sites? If a house built on 10 cottahs of ground would formerly be valued at Rs. 250 per annum, but under the new system will be valued at Rs. 500, and if municipal aggregate rates are paid at 20 per cent., this means that the owner-occupier of the house under the new system will pay Rs. 100 a year as rates, when before he paid only Rs. 50. Rupees 50 a year capitalized is Rs. 1,000, or Rs. 100 divided over each of the 10 cottahs. Hence taking those figures as a fair standard, Rs. 100 out of the price of every cottah of land sold under such circumstances for building purposes during the last few years, has gone into the pockets of the ground landlords owing to the system of under-valuation, when under a proper valuation

* It was asserted by Mr. Osmond of Mackintosh, Burn and Company, in the municipal meeting in the Town Hall on the 24th April last, that to his own knowledge land in Calcutta had on the average quadrupled in value in the last 15 years, a result which could only be attributed to the Sanitary improvement of the town, especially water, drainage and conservancy. No one present demurred to this statement.

it would have gone by instalments of Rs. 5 per annum per cottah into the coffers of the Municipality. Classes instinctively perceive their own interests far more rapidly even than they do so as a definite logical deduction, and it need therefore cause no surprise that the ground landlords form the backbone of the opposition to the new assessment clause.

While trade and commerce ought to be carefully shielded from paying anything more than is necessary to cover what is done for them.

7. On the other hand there is an impression in some quarters, notably fostered by the Statesman newspaper, that the trade and commerce of Calcutta is the proper object of the taxation necessary to maintain the city, as being that which causes the influx of population and makes such use of the city and its conveniences. No economical heresy could be more unsound, no fiscal principle more inequitable. To the capital which is invested in the trade and commerce of Calcutta, it is a matter of comparatively small importance whether the seat of that trade is Calcutta, Canning, Serajgunge, Chittagong or any other place. It is a matter of enormous importance to the ground landlords of Calcutta, but of very little consequence to its commercial capitalists, that the emporium of that trade should be on the banks of the Hooghly. Those who have sunk money in expensive buildings would of course lose somewhat by the difficulty of disposing of those buildings, but as a general rule capital invested in commerce loses but little by increase of business in one place and corresponding decrease in another.

8. On the other hand, any special rates or taxes on trade are open to the gravest objections, and tend manifestly to drive it away from the place which taxes it. On this subject the late Mr. Fawcett writes:—

"We have next to enquire what would take place when rates are higher in some localities than in others. Those who carry on business in localities where rates are exceptionally high would be unable to shift the burden of the extra rates upon the consumer, because the competition of those localities, where rates are comparatively low, would prevent the price of the commodity being raised sufficiently to compensate those traders upon whom the exceptionally high rates are imposed. It is therefore evident that the trade of a district may be seriously imperilled, if it has to bear rates much in excess of those which are levied in other localities. A merchant or manufacturer may be unable to continue his business, or may be induced to withdraw his capital to other localities, if he has to bear the burden cast upon him by excessive rates."

9. Is not every word of this applicable to the commence and trade of Calcutta at the present time? Are not the tradesmen of Calcutta threatened with competition in every direction in and out of India, by rivals who pay much less by way of rates and taxes than what is paid in Calcutta? And is it not of the utmost importance to the well-being of the commerce of Calcutta, if it is to hold its own against Bombay and other ports, that it should be freed from all unnecessary burdens? Yet we first levy 2½ lakhs of direct taxation on it by way of trade and profession licenses, and then make it pay two or three times more by way of rates, than the benefits it receives, because the land on which it has to work is so highly rented!

10. In one respect only is trade at an advantage in Calcutta—that portion of it which uses heavy machinery escapes rating for it, though in England all machinery which is permanently attached to a building is rateable; but this, though it is an advantage which ought not to escape notice, is a very small set off against the excess paid in all other directions, as I shall presently show.

11. What then Calcutta has done in the past, and even must under a system of equal rates continue to do in the future, though I hope a little less scandalously than heretofore, has been to sacrifice the interests of the trading and commercial community, both European and native, to that of the ground landlords: in a word, of the productive to the non-productive classes; of those who live and (if they grow rich) grow rich by their own exertions, to those who grow rich in their sleep without any effort of their own.

12. On the other had, it is not my object (as some of the native papers, wishing to divert this into a race question, instead of its true bearing a class question, represent) to contend that the European residents as such, and as distinct from many of the same individuals in their capacity of merchants and traders, have been over-taxed. Their houses, it is true, have been over-assessed, as already pointed out, by about 15 per cent. owing to no allowance having been made for repairs; but on the other hand they live in parts of the city where land is not expensive, and where municipal money is freely expended for their comfort and convenience. The figures below will show that, while the greater portion of the excess rates and taxes paid by the riparian wards has been spent for the benefit of the northern residential wards, some portion of it has also gone to the benefit of the European residential wards, especially Hastings, which, being small and isolated, is a very costly ward compared with its municipal income.

13. Large Government buildings and the Port Commissioners' properties do, however, undoubtedly pay far more than they receive. They are mostly situated in that part of the town in which land is most valuable, and in matters of lighting and conservancy, but above all in regard to water, receive very much less than they pay for. It is probably a moderate calculation that these large buildings pay for ten times the amount of water which they consume, the other nine-tenths being a contribution to the water-supply of other parts of the town.

14. (2). Having said thus much regarding the classes who might in equity be expected to pay more, and those who ought under no circumstances to pay more than their proper tale of municipal rates, let me now go into the important question of municipal benefits.

What classes of rate-payers receive most by way of municipal benefits.

15. A very erroneous notion has prevailed in some quarters that the bulk of municipal expenditure is incurred for the benefit of the south of the town, and that the residential wards in the north, if they pay little, at any rate receive little. This is an entire mistake. The Chowringhee quarter has no doubt nothing to complain of, while Hastings, a small isolated place, undoubtedly costs much more than it pays; but the northern residential wards are also very well treated, and the parts of the town which receive much less than they pay for are unmistakeably the riparian wards—No. 12, Waterloo Street; No. 7, Burra Bazar; and No. 5, Jorabagan. This I now proceed to show.

16. The following table gives the assessment of each ward in 1888, when the Act was passed; the area in acres and average assessment per acre; the population at the last census, and average assessment per head of population; also the proportion which the assessment of each ward bears to the assessment of the whole town:—

18. Hastings ...	94,000	57	4,953	1,649	19	·7

17. A little consideration will show that this tabular statement is by itself decisive of the question of municipal expenditure. Sustantially, municipal outlay must more or less vary as area or population. Area practically settles the cost of road maintenance, drainage and lighting, population ceteris paribus, the consumption of water, conservancy, and the cost of police. There may be small fluctuations due to local causes, but on the whole if one ward pay much less, both per acre and per head of population, than another, it is practically certain that qua municipal expenditure it is living on the other, and that the other is paying part of its rates for it.

18. Compare, then, the three riparian wards with the residential wards.

Wards		Riparian Wards. Assessment per acre.	Assessment per head of population.
		Rs.	Rs.

Not yet reached by new Act.	3, Burtollah ...	1,536	18
	4, Sookea Street ...	1,500	17

19. On the other hand Hastings, with an assessment of Rs. 1,49 per acre and Rs. 19 per head, is an obvious gainer to the same extent as one of the northern residential wards. Theatre Road is very lightly assessed per acre (Rs. 1,811), but farly heavy (Rs. 48) quâ population. Park Street is medium quâ acreage (Rs. 3,328), but very heavy (Rs. 130) quâ population. Bow Bazar, on the contrary, is heavily assessed per acreage (Rs. 4,444), but lightly per population (Rs. 29), as is Colootollah, (Rs. 4,229 and Rs. 20), the most densely populated ward in the town, containing far the largest bustees.

20. In brief, the tabular statement enables one to predicate with confidence that—

(1) Shampookur,	(9) Mocheepara,
(3) Burtollah,	(11) Puddopookur,
(4) Sookea Street,	(14) Taltollah,
(6) Jorasanko.	(18) Hastings, are all deficit wards, living very largely on the rates and taxes paid by—

(5) Jorabagan,	(7) Burra Bazar,

12. Waterloo Street.

While—

(2) Coomertolly,
(8) Colootollah,	(15) Collingah,
(10) Bow Bazar,	(16) Park Street,
(13) Fenwick Bazar,	(17) Theatre Road, are wards which are antecedently likely to be in some respects surplus, in other respects deficit wards.

However, as some persons are under the mistaken impression that the expenditure on the south of the town is so much larger than that on the north, as to neutralise in great part, if not wholly, this inequality, I have compiled with approximate accuracy the actual expenditure under several principal heads to further illustrate this important question.

21. The head under which it would be most important to get actual figures, if possible, would be the water-supply, as that is the head of expenditure under which the riparian wards are at the maximum disadvantage. If the disadvantage were tested by the state of things before the duplication of the water-supply and the opening of Halliday Street pumping stations, it would almost baffle comparison, for Ward No. 7, Burra Bazar, paying eight times as much water-rate per acre, and six and a half times as much her head of population as No. 1, Shampookur, scarcely got any water at all, while the former had an overabundant supply: but the Commissioners, the moment the difficulties of supplying the riparian wards were explained to them, at once sanctioned a new pumping station at a very heavy cost to remedy the evil. It would be fairer therefore to deal with the water famine in that ward as a thing of the past, and to take the supply as it now stands.

Water-supply.

22. That being so, the only great distinction that remains unredressed is between the population living in connected houses, who both use and waste water all day long, and the population living in unconnected houses, who have to resort to the stand-posts, and could not, if they would, take more than 8 or 10 gallons a head daily. Experiments made some years ago, when the supply of the town was only 20 gallons a head, showed that the connected population elsewhere than in the riparian wards were using over 30 gallons a head, and the unconnected, chiefly dwellers in tiled huts, 5 to 6 gallons a head.

Now that the supply is doubled, and the connected houses in the riparian wards can again get a good supply, it would probably be not far wrong to say that persons living in connected houses all over Calcutta draw 50 gallons of water per head daily, and those in unconnected houses less than 10.

23. With this exception, however, no better test can be found for the consumption of water than the population. I have ascertained that it is not possible for the Water-works Department to give any trustworthy statistics of the consumption in each ward. Consumption of water depends on 4 factors—(a) population, (b) desire to consume water, (c) opportunity (which mainly depends on the connection or non-connection of the house combined with the size of the ferrule where the house is connected, and the distance from the nearest stand-post where it is not), (d) amount of pressure. Before the opening of the Halliday Street pumping station, the pressure in the riparian wards, especially Burra Bazar and Jorabagan, was so weak that they did not consume nearly a fair share quâ population, but since February 1889 the pressure in every ward has been fair, though isolated places may be at a marked disadvantage, so that the difference of pressure may be ignored; the desire for water is so great every where that this factor also may be treated as a constant; we have only therefore to consider (a) population and (b) opportunity, and as the same rule for the size of ferrule is in force in all parts of the town depending on the valuation of the house (a standard very favourable proportionately to low rented houses), opportunity resolves itself mainly into the question of connection or non-connection: in other words, masonry house or hut. Consequently it is approximately fair to take the population as the test in all wards, except Colootollah, where the bustee population is disproportionately large, and which therefore consumes much less water than the population standard would give, and Waterloo Street and Park Street in which there are no bustees, but every house is connected, and which consequently may be presumed to consume more. In column (3) of the tabular statement given in paragraph 32, if 4 per cent. is taken off the cost of water in Ward No 8, and 2 per cent added to Nos. 12 and 16 respectively, the figures will be approximately correct, and certainly not unfavourable to the residential wards, where the consumption of water in connected houses is at a maximum.

24. It is probably well within the mark to say that wards 1, 3, 4, and 9, with a population of 144,000, consume two and a half times as much water as wards 5, 7, and 12, with a population of 64,000, while they paid water-rate in just the inverse proportion. Hence, taken as whole, it is no exaggeration to say that the riparian wards are still, i.e., after the opening of the Halliday Street pumping station, paying six times ($2\frac{1}{2} \times 2\frac{1}{2} = 6{\cdot}25$) as much for the water they receive as the residential wards. But this is only half the inequality; these residential wards are mainly composed of residential houses and bustees, between the occupiers of which there is the widest possible distinction in their enjoyment of the water-supply. If the wards which the memorialists chiefly represent pay only one-sixth for their water compared with the riparian wards, the class living in their own houses in these very wards get five times as much water as the class living in bustees. Although accurate figures cannot be given, I have no manner of doubt that as an ordinary rule the under-assessed residential houses, on whose behalf the memorial has been presented, take from three to ten times as much filtered water as they pay for by the water-rate.

Lighting.

25. There are several other heads of expenditure, however, which admit of being allotted, ward by ward, with much more accuracy than the water-supply. First and foremost of these is the lighting expenditure. The number of lamps in each ward is known and the cost of each. The expenditure can therefore be easily distributed.

Drainage.

26. The expenditure in drainage can also be distributed, as the Engineer assures me that it is practically equal over each acre of Calcutta, the capacity of the drains being fixed with reference to the acreage. If the cost of the drains in each ward was taken, this would not be fair to the residential wards. As the drainge flows from west to east, the deeper and larger sewers are necessarily on the Circular Road side, but as they are deeper and larger in order to convey the drainage of the riparian wards as well as their own, it would not be fair to debit the latter only with the increased cost. Dividing the cost by acreage is substantially fair.

27. Road repairs is an item which it is very desirable to distribute, because it is a head under which the southern wards proportionately do cost something more than the northern. There is proportionately a larger area paved with stone, and it costs more to maintain these roads per 1,000 superficial feet. On the other hand, this is giving every advantage to the north, as the south also pays much more by way of carriage and horse licenses, which is a distinct set-off against the heavier expenditure. With all this, however, it will be seen that the northern residential wards receive much more even under this head than they pay for, while the riparian wards pay for them.

Road repairs.

28. Street watering is comparatively a small item; but as it is another of those heads under which a little more expenditure is incurred in the south than north of the town it is fair to include it.

Street watering.

29. The staff employed for the cleansing of each ward is also easily ascertainable and the expenditure under this head is therefore shown.

Conservancy.

30. There is no reason for omitting police expenditure, which is also easily divided, as the police thanas correspond with the wards. Not only up to 1888-89 did the town directly pay three-fourths of the police, but it also does so still in fact. The area of the old town has to contribute three lakhs annually to the improvement of the added area, as being the equivalent of the police contribution which they no longer pay. For account purposes this is the same thing as if they still paid for three-fourths of the police and the Government made an equal contribution for the suburbs.

Police.

31. The most concise and convenient form in which this information can be given seems to be by way of a tabular statement showing the percentages on the whole expenditure under each head, while the total amount of expenditure distributed is also shown at the head of the columns. This enables the precise expenditure debited to each ward to be computed.

I may add that I am taking the town as it stood before the amalgamation, i.e., showing the inequities as they stood when the Act which aimed at partially redressing them was passed. The wards 1, 3, 4 and 9 are the old wards, not the wards as added to in 1889-90. The expenditure of several years is taken when an average is needed, but of 1888-89 by preference when a single year suffices.

Municipal income and expenditure analysed.

32. The figures are as follows:—

	Percentage of rates paid, total amount Rs. 25,00,000.	Percentage of benefits of water-supply, Rs. 8,50,000.	Percentage of benefits from drainage, Rs. 5,84,000. * In these three wards the figures are not even approximately correct (vide paragraph 29).

33. This table will well repay careful examination: it distributes 25 lakhs out of Rs. 35,66,000 of the municipal receipts in 1888-89, the remaining Rs. 10,66,000 being made up of—

	Rs.
Trade and profession licenses ...	2,48,000
Carriage and horse tax	1,00,000
Cart registration fees	49,000
Fines and warrant fees	40,000
Tramway	44,000
Trade refuse fees	37,000
House service fees	1,94,000
Slaughter-house	37,000
Municipal market	1,18,000
Sale of water	90,000
Interest	60,000
Rents	25,000
Fees and miscellaneous	24,000
Total ...	10,66,000

34. Of the above amounts, trade and profession licenses are mainly paid by the riparian wards. Cart fees ultimately fall almost exclusively on the commercial and trading community. Trade refuse fees are, as the name implies, paid by trade which is subjected by long-standing usage to an additional tax on this account. The greater part of the income derived from the sale of water is paid by the shipping and the Board of Trade. The market and slaughter-house receipts are paid mainly by the European and partly by the Mahomedan community. So far as the receipts are only a fair interest on the capital expended in constructing the slaughter-house and market, they are not taxes at all, but as the slaughter-house has almost from the outset paid 11 per cent. on the capital invested, and the market 7, and since the sale of the Dhurrumtollah market 10 per cent., part of the proceeds do constitute a tax on the classes using the market. Carriage and horse tax is a most fair and equitable source of income; but as more of it is paid in the southern than the northern wards, if justifies the heavier expenditure on roads in those wards. The larger item of house service fees, on the contrary, was paid much more by the northern than the southern wards, as houses with connected privies paid nothing. As about one-tenth of the largest houses in the town were allowed connections, a large proportion of which were in the Waterloo Street and Park Street wards, these wards in this respect had an advantage, while the smaller the houses, proportionately the larger was the fee. The bustee huts, which had a special rate fixed for them, averaging about 10 per cent. on the value, suffered most. The ground landlords as such, however, contributed no portion of this tax. As the Municipality performed the same service for one set of houses by means of its sewers which it performed for the other by hand labour, and as it was distinctly on the score of danger to health that privy connections were not generally sanctioned, the new Act introduced a uniform rate of 2 per cent., so that this the chief advantage which the southern wards did enjoy has ceased, and the 10 per cent. benefit which they will gain as an allowance for repairs will be approximately balanced by the 2 per cent. extra they will pay as sewage rate.

35. If due allowance therefore is made for all other sources of income of the Municipality outside rates, it will be seen that the incidence is as much against the trading and mercantile community as it is in the matter of rates. In short, by taking rates alone as the test, the comparison is decidedly against rather than in favour of these classes.

36. Similarly as regards expenditure. The total revenue expenditure of the Corporation, including Police, during the year 1888-89, was in round figures

Rs. 34,80,000, of which the heads enumerated in the tabular statement come to Rs. 27,42,000. The remaining Rs. 7,38,000 may be thus distributed,—

	Rs.
Interest and sinking fund on money borrowed for bustees	46,000
Ditto ditto ditto for market ...	70,000
Ditto ditto ditto for Municipal Office	6,000
General establishments and cost of collection ...	2,95,000
Municipal railway	90,000
Slaughter-house and market	30,000
Town survey	27,000
Hospitals and vaccination	42,000
Square mile maintenance	23,000
Town and bustee improvements	34,000
Miscellaneous	75,000

37. It will be seen that out of this expenditure the money borrowed for bustees and the money spent from revenue on town and bustee improvements has been almost entirely spent for the pecuniary benefit of the ground landlords, and has materially enhanced the value of their property. The slaughter-house and market expenditure is a set-off against the receipts under those heads, and has been allowed for in computing the interest they pay. All the rest of the expenditure seems to be such as may fairly be divided over the whole town. Such expenditure as is necessarily omitted from the tabular statement in paragraph 32 is therefore in no way to the advantage of the trading and mercantile community.

38. The tabular statement given in paragraph 32 is thus as a whole unfavourable rather than otherwise to the mercantile, and favourable to the residential wards, and what is the lesson which it significantly teaches? That even after making allowance for the figures in regard to the water-supply in the Waterloo Street ward being somewhat fallacious, that ward and Burra Bazar, aided in a less degree by Jorabagan, i.e., the three mercantile wards of the town, pay the rates and taxes on behalf of almost all the other wards in the town, except No. 2, Coomartolly (partly a mercantile ward), No. 8, Colootolla, the chief bustee ward, No. 10, Bow Bazar, No. 13, Fenwick Bazar, and No. 16, Park Street, which more or less pay their own way. Wards Nos. 1, 3, 4, 6, 9, and 11 (all having in them a very large number of houses occupied by their owners) receive more than they pay under every head of expenditure, as also does ward No. 14, Taltollah. Hastings is a deficit ward under every head except street watering. Theatre Road and Collingah are deficit wards under almost every head.

Expenditure in north of town compared with expenditure in south

39. I have also totalled up separately the figures for the 9 northern and the 9 southern wards, as it seemed a pity to lose the opportunity of showing the correct figures, even though it is no part of the argument of this note to urge the claims of the south of the town as against the north. It will be seen then from these figures that 56·4 per cent. of the rates are paid for the 2,263 acres which form the nine northern wards and 43·6 per cent. of the rates for the 1,501 acres which form the nine southern wards, the populations being respectively 274,763 and 127,867. As regards benefits, the water consumption is based on population, and therefore is a reproduction of the same proportion and is valueless as a new factor, though, looking to the fact that 11,367 houses were connected in the north of the town against only 4,266 in the south, I have no doubt the northern wards get a very good share. Coming, however, to other heads, we find that the northern wards as a group receive more than their share under the heads of Drainage, Lighting and Conservancy, and less than their share under the heads of Road repairs, Street-watering and Police, and if all the six heads are combined, they get considerably more than their share. Combining all the six last heads, it comes to about 58·7 to 41·3.

The incidence of rates in each class of rate-payer considered

40. It will now complete this review by showing in somewhat greater detail than in the note itself the effect of the old and new law on each of the groups enumerated in paragraph 22 of that note.

Group 4.—Bustee hut-owners were by far the worst off. (a) As they were allowed nothing for repairs, they had to pay 25 per cent. more than they ought under a proper valuation to have paid. (b) They had also to pay on an average 10 per cent. on this overestimated valuation as house service fees. (c They had also to pay the full water-rate on the same valuation, though they were not allowed connections, and therefore had to fetch their water from the nearest hydrant. (d) In addition thereto they had up to 1883 neither lighting, drainage nor conservancy. These were the disadvantages and inequities under which they laboured before 1883. Since that year their condition has rapidly improved: (1) the bustees have been drained, and the filthy stagnant ditches, which everywhere seamed them, have been turned into lanes or roads; (2) roads have been made through all the largest bustees and lighted. Thus they now get their share of lighting. (3) By the aid of the roads, conservancy has become practicable, and the Commissioners have sanctioned special bustee conservancy establishments, to which cause it is mainly due that the conservancy expenditure in the north of the town is proportionately heavier than in the south. (4) If they still get a scanty supply of filtered water, they anyhow get a good supply of unfiltered water for bathing and washing in the numerous bathing-platforms that have been put up. (5) Again about five years ago a further boon was conferred upon them by freeing the public latrines. All these benefits were conferred upon them before 1889. In addition thereto (6) the new Act relieves them from the differential house service fees, averaging for huts 10 per cent., and only lays on them the uniform sewage rate of 2 per cent.; (7) it allows them 10 per cent. off the gross rent for repairs in valuing the huts—an inadequate allowance I admit—but still something; and (8) above all it enacts the provision by which their rates are paid by the ground landlords and thereby shields them from the 50 to 60 warrants per diem which were ten years ago almost the only "benefit" by which the Municipal administration was known to them.

41. Groups 2 and 3.—Occupiers of houses built for letting purposes and the owners thereof suffered in common under the former Act by having these houses assessed about 15 per cent. above their fair rateable value. They will now get an allowance of 10 per cent. on this account, but they are mostly situated in those wards in the town which receive more than their share of benefits, and many of the larger of them escaped all sewage tax. Henceforth they will have to pay 2 per cent. on this account, so that in regard to most of them their position is substantially unchanged. As the tabular statement in paragraph 32 shows, they have on the whole nothing to complain of.

42. Occupiers of offices, places of business, shops, &c., group (1), and the owners therefore partly of group (3), have always been over-assessed by about 15 per cent. owing to the absence of any allowance for repairs, and 10 per cent. is allowed them under the new Act, but so far as regards group (1) their real grievance is that the vast majority of them are situated in those wards of the town which pay for so much more than they receive from the municipality. This undoubtedly does constitute an exceptional tax on trade in Calcutta, which is open to very grave economic objections. The new legislation will only very slightly relieve it by raising to some extent the valuation of those properties in the town which have been hitherto so much undervalued. It is obvious that this part of the grievance in no way extends to the owners. As they pay a percentage of their rents as taxes, the higher the tax paid the better for them, as it means the higher the rent.

43. Group 7.—Owners and occupiers of large public buildings were not in most cases over assessed,* but they undoubtedly paid, and will continue to pay, for much more than they receive by way of municipal benefits. The greater part of them are situated in that very ward (No. 12) which pays for so much more than it receives.

44. There remain groups No. 5, bustee owners, and No. 6, owners and occupiers of their own houses—the groups in fact on behalf of whom the memorial has been got up. As regards group 5, the ground landlords of the bustees were correctly assessed under the old law, while every other class almost was

* However, there are some conspicuous instances to the contrary. The Bank of Bengal and the Port Commissioners' Office were, I believe, much over-assessed. It is impossible to say what rent such places would command if offered for lease. Their valuations were, I fear, little under 10 per cent. on the cost of building plus land, and one of the equitable incidental advantages of the new section is that such over-assessment will henceforth be impracticable.

overassessed, and they did not pay a pice for house service. A very appreciable portion of the rates and taxes was, moreover, spent in improving the bustees, which has, during the last seven or eight years, doubled and trebled the rents they have been able to obtain. All the benefits conferred on the bustee residents—roads, drainage, lighting, conservancy, free latrines, bathing-platforms—have been at least shared by the landlords in the improvements conferred on their property thereby—improvements which the most far sighted among them have freely acknowledged by giving up lands for these roads free of cost. Under the new law the assessment of their lands will remain unaltered, while others will be reduced. They will also have to pay the uniform sewage rate. By section 269 they are made liable to pay a special rate for the conservancy of the bustees, though, as this is optional with the Commissioners, it will probably not be imposed; and they are made responsible for the rates of their tenants with an allowance of 12½ per cent., which is fully 15 per cent. on what they have to collect from others. I have no doubt that if what the town does for them for the creation and maintenance of their high rents is compared with what they will under the new Act pay to it, they will still remain a most favoured class.

45. Group 6.—Owners and occupiers of their own houses are those who paid least and for whom most was done under the old law. The enormous majority of these houses are situated in the wards which pay least in proportion to what they receive, of any wards in the town, and even in these wards they have been the underassessed element; while the bustee, huts and shops have been overassessed, they have been assessed at not more than half the fair amount, so that in wards which as a whole derive from two to three times as much by way of municipal benefits as they pay, they have been undervalued by 50 per cent. Under the new law, strictly administered as it should be in a few years, they will still be assessed at not more than 80 per cent. of what other houses will pay. It is my deliberate judgment that a more unfounded outcry than the cry of unfair treatment which they have raised has hardly ever been put forward.

APPENDIX C.

Extracts from the evidence given in objections to valuations for assessment purposes in Ward No. I.

Called by objectors—Baboo Nilmony Mitter.—I formerly dwelt in this ward and know its circumstances well. I have several houses here. I know the general cost of building, and have built many houses, being a Civil Engineer. The best buildings in the ward are built with 10-inch bricks, others with 9 and others with 5-inch. As a general rule the smaller the bricks the less the value. The height of the lower stories varies from 9 to 11 feet, and that of second stories is about the same.

I have calculated a general rate for the cost of constructing houses, and I think this a fair statement of the cost. (Statement put in.) I think buildings might be divided into 3 classes of pucca and 3 classes of cutcha-pucca. This estimate is for first class cutcha-pucca, and for first class ground-made bricks. No houses in this quarter are made of first class table-made bricks; there may be some of second class table made. In my opinion first class ground-made is better than second class table-made.

Land is very seldom leased out for building purposes. Generally the value of land sold for building purposes is more than the proper multiple of the rent of land leased out for bustee land. The reason for this difference is in the desire of people to have a house of their own, which runs up the price of the land. This is due to the desire which every one has to leave a house as a shelter to his widow and children. He would rather even have 2 or 3 cottahs of land of his own with tiled huts to live in, than live in a hired pucca house.

To Chairman.—Many bustee lands in this ward are now being turned into building land. This is due to there being more middle-class people able to afford to build a residence, and also to more people out of Calcutta wishing to reside in Calcutta.

Then as regards deterioration, it is our universal experience that, if a person builds a house carefully and prudently, he cannot expect to sell it for what he has spent on it. The case of Baboo Kirty Chunder Mitter illustrates this. He built a house for upwards of four lakhs, and could only sell for one lakh and fifty thousand about five or six years afterwards. This was an extreme case; the house was built under my supervision. This is more marked in the case of large than small houses. I think that even in small houses there would be some loss. The reason is that when a man builds he builds according to his own ideas of personal comfort and taste, and if he wants to sell, he cannot get a purchaser with just the same ideas. * * *

Cross-examined.— * * * . If a house is built for, say, Rs 10,000, and the owner has to part with it, he would probably not get the same price. It may not suit the taste or accommodate the purchaser to the same extent as the person who built it for his own use. The Hindoos as a rule would prefer to build their own dwelling-houses to buying houses ready built by others. As a rule houses in the native quarter of the town are not kept in the same good repair as those built for Europeans.

Note by Baboo Nilmony Mitter, C.E.

(1) When a new building is put up for sale, it fetches a price always less than the original cost. The proportion of this difference varies, as the cost of construction, the higher the cost, the greater is the percentage of the difference between the cost of construction and the selling price. A general proportion should be definitely fixed by a well considered scale, and should not be left to the guess-work of any and every individual. I may here suggest that some general scale varying in proportion of depreciation, somewhat similar to the following, should be adopted :—

Cost of construction.

APPENDIX D.

On the principle of Local Self-Government.*

"The hearing and determining of an objection preferred against an assessment made by a subordinate by his executive superiors is, your memorialists would venture to say, subversive of the principle of Local Self-Government and can never be satisfactory." (Extract from page 4 of the printed Memorial.)

No Assessment Committee at Bombay.

1. This extract omits all reference to the fact that, while for the convenience of the assessee he can first get a decision in his case from a superior officer of the Corporation, this is not his appeal, for which a perfectly impartial tribunal is provided in the Small Cause Court. Also that the procedure is borrowed from Bombay, the Municipality in all India in which Local Self-Government is considered to have been most successful, and in which it has also been most cautiously tempered by checks and limitations.

Assessment Committees in England have very limited power.

2. If Assessment Committees still remain in England, it is nevertheless the fact that they have been largely discredited during the last generation, and their tendency to partiality admitted and controlled.

* Vide foot-note to paragraph 31 of the Note.

The parish was originally the unit of Municipal Government, and many parishes adopted the system of appointing Assessment Committees to revise the valuations of the Poor Law Overseers, "but experience showed that such a Committee seldom produced a satisfactory result to the parish. It was difficult to insure strict impartiality in its proceedings, or at least to insure perfect confidence therein, and the Poor Law Board discouraged such course of action. They could not prevent the formation of the Committee, but such Committee had no authority to charge the poor rate with any expenses, the Board would render no assistance to enable such expenses to be so paid, and neither the Overseers nor the rate-payers were in any way bound by the valuation made by such Committee." (Lumley's Parochial Assessment, 7th edition, page 151.) Union Committees have now taken the place of Parish Committees, but the tendency in England is more and more to place power in the matter of assessments in the hands of experienced officers under the supervision of Judicial bodies.

3. The Act to provide for uniformity in the assessment of rateable property in the metropolis was passed in 1869.

Metropolitan Act of 1869.

The original assessing authorities under it are the Poor Law Overseers, who are placed under the supervision of a 'Surveyor of Taxes' appointed by the Commissioners of Inland Revenue or by the Treasury. When the overseers have made their valuation, they have to send the list to the Surveyor of Taxes, who enters any alterations which he thinks fit, and passes the list on to the Union Assessment Committee (section 8). The Assessment Committee then revises the valuation list (section 14), after which any rate-payer or the Overseers, or the Surveyor of Taxes, if they feel aggrieved at a decision of the Union Assessment Committee, may appeal to the Justices in Special Sessions (section 19), and the same persons may appeal against the decision of the Special Sessions to a superior tribunal called "A Court of General Assessment Sessions," or, at their option, may appeal direct to the superior court from the decision of the Union Assessment Committee (section 32); and by a most important section (53), whenever the Surveyor of Taxes either objects before the Assessment Committee, or appeals to the Special Sessions or General Assessment Sessions, his valuation "shall be inserted in the valuation list by the Assessment Committee, Special Sessions or Assessment Sessions, unless it is proved to the Assessment Committee, Special Sessions or Assessment Sessions, that such amount ought not to be so inserted."

4. This is quite sufficient to show that in London the Union Assessment Committee plays a very subordinate part, and that any tendencies to partiality are carefully held in check. Not only is there a double appeal against its decision, but all real power is given to an officer appointed by the Government, whose decisions throw by law the onus disprobandi on the opposite party. It is needless to say how difficult it is to discharge this onus in such a matter as house valuation, or to point out that practically the Surveyor of Taxes is the most influential authority. Is there any true analogy between an Assessment Committee thus liable to be appealed against by its own officers as well as by an independent officer appointed by Government and our appellate benches under the old law, which were ultimate authorities, against whose decision there was no appeal.

5. Again in England owners, as such, have no votes because all rates are paid by occupiers, and as the result all municipal power falls into the hands of occupiers. This is one of the evils in the English municipal system which Mr. Goschen's Committee reported as urgently needing a remedy, and they therefore recommended that the rates should be shared between the owners and the occupiers. What can be a greater contrast with what we see in Calcutta, where owners are by far the dominant element in the municipality?

In India liberal machinery produces conservative results.

6. Indeed one of the first distinctions to be clearly grasped by any one who takes an interest in Municipal Self-Government and elective institutions in India, is that they lead to results exactly the opposite to what they lead to in America, England, or other European countries. There they have a tendency to weaken the rule of the classes and transfer power to the masses. Here they, on the contrary, tend to increase the power of the classes or their equivalent among Hindus, the bhadra log. There their tendencies are anti-conservative and anti-landlord; in India their tendency is to augment the influence of the landlord and conservative classes.

7. To revert, however, to the specific allegation that to follow the example of Bombay and dispense with an Assessment Committee is subversive of 'the principle' of Local Self-Government. The correct principle of Local Self-Government, I take it, is the substitution of government by a local body for the direct rule of the national Government, so far as concerns the administration of matters affecting the welfare of particular municipalities or other local units. If a good system of election of the local body can be devised, the Local Self-Government is more complete, but a system of election which yields fallacious results is obviously worse than the well exercised nomination of local councillors.

What is 'the principle' of Local Self Government.

8. Now it is surely obvious that, if Local Self-Government is to work well, it should be subject to the same limitations in its administration which Imperial or Provincial Government is subject to, first and foremost of which is the abnegation of judicial functions. It must leave all that is judicial in its work to be done as far as possible by functionaries who it purposely makes as independent as possible of itself. Secondly, it is found wherever Government is reposed in Parliaments or Assemblies that such bodies must not interfere with the executive administration except by way of censure, and of replacing one set of ministers by another, if they lose the confidence of the assembly. In France, Italy, England and most of her colonies the entire executive authority is vested in the Crown and Ministry, or Governor and Ministry, or President and Ministry, as the case may be. The Parliament or Assembly exercises financial and legislative control, and can by a vote of want of confidence change the Ministry, if it thinks fit, though this is practically not for efficient or inefficient executive action, but according to the balance of political parties. In the United States of America the executive is still stronger, and a better system as many think prevails. The executive in its own proper line is quite independent for periods of four years, except that certain well specified acts of power require ratification by the Senate. In Germany the executive is totally independent, though the financial and legislative power of the Parliament is considerable.

9. Now the great danger of all popular bodies is that they are insatiate of power and intolerant of those very checks on its exercise, which they appreciate so highly when they act as a restraint on authorities other than themselves. If Local Self-Government is to succeed in large and important cities, it is indispensably necessary that local bodies should, as far as practicable, abstain from direct executive work, and above all from exercising quasi-judicial functions. Far from the principle of Local Self-Government being subverted, by guiding the energies of the local bodies into administrative channels, and fending them off from judicial functions, it is the greatest possible boon that can be conferred upon them. It would be easy to show from the history of the Calcutta Municipality during the last decade that it has been most successful precisely when it has confined itself to general administration, such as the control of the finances, water-supply extension (a department which has been particularly well managed), bustee improvements, laying down general rules for guidance, &c., &c.; whereas, as all the Commissioners well know, it has failed most conspicuously in personal questions, when each Commissioner is subjected to private solicitation and unwholesome pressure, and gives his vote under the influence of motives, very few of which are consistent with the well-being of the city. A single officer acting under a sense of responsibility would dispose of these personal questions far more equitably than the Commissioners as a body, where individual responsibility is overlaid by numbers, and the most unblushing solicitation is practised.

Popular bodies too fond of unlimited power.

9. Similarly the desire which the Commissioners have lately manifested to interfere in the work of the executive by a Complaints Committee is, I have no doubt, a thoroughly unsound move, emanating from a wish to concentrate in their hands all power, instead of merely the legitimate power of administration. Neglect of complaints is obviously a fertile field for finding fault with any public functionary. Many complaints are unreasonable, but those who make them do not think so, and resent their being rejected. Again, among a very large number of complaints some will probably not be attended to as promptly or answered as civilly as they might be. Hence, without any serious defect in work, it will always be easy to get up plausible grievances under this head, and to represent that it would be for the benefit of the public to appoint a Committee to see that complaints receive due attention. It was impossible to persuade the Commissioners that this was a false move; but I prophesied exactly what would happen, viz., that the Complaints Committee would find no field for their operations in the direction they anticipated, that is, in finding out complaints which had received no attention, but that they would degenerate into a mere appellate tribunal from the orders of responsible municipal officers, after they had enquired into cases; this is precisely what has happened. It was very soon found that the Committee took two months to dispose of a single complaint, while such complaints come in at the rate of 20 per diem, and hence an order was passed that it should only have jurisdiction in the case of complaints referred to it by the Chairman or by some Commissioner.

10. The result has been the creation of an executive appellate tribunal of the worst type. Ordinary persons, who are more likely to need redress, cannot get access to it; it is reserved for a few favoured individuals who have influence enough with some Commissioner to get their case referred to it, that is, for the very persons who would be sure to receive adequate attention, independently of any such Committee. Most of the more reasonable and experienced Commissioners fight shy of the Committee, whose operations have consequently fallen into the hands of other and younger men who are, among the whole body of the Commissioners, perhaps the most incompetent to exercise the functions they aspire to. There are certain classes of cases in which such bodies can work with advantage, cases in which officials are inclined to be too official, and a little non-official judgment is beneficial accordingly. Though disliking the Committee, I have myself made over two or three cases of this class to it, but the bulk of the cases it takes up is just the opposite, cases in which an interested party is unable to circumvent the impartiality of a high official, but easily gains a verdict from a Committee whose first principle of action is that officials, as being disinterested, must necessarily be wrong, and complainants being interested, must necessarily be right.

Checks necessary.

11. If, then, Local Self-Government is to be a success, it is as necessary for the Commissioners, as it is for the Parliaments of free countries, to leave all judicial functions, as well as executive details, to others, and to content themselves with financial and administrative control. So far from my action in leaving valuations in the last resort to a judicial tribunal being subversive of Local Self-Government, it is eminently favourable to its successful development in its own proper field.

12. The history of this assessment question at Bombay and in Calcutta is the best possible evidence of this. The difficulty of assessing houses that never are let, at the reasonable rent which they may presumably be expected to fetch, is one which, as I have shewn, has been acknowledged in England as much as in Calcutta, but still, owing to the absence of an Assessment Committee, it has presented no special difficulties at Bombay. Houses not intended to be let are valued by comparison with houses which are intended to be let, and thus equity satisfied. The plea relied on in Calcutta that houses not built to be let must be valued according to the actual rent procured for other houses equally not built to be let, and therefore not suitable for tenants, which has led to such gross under-valuation in this city, has never prevailed in Bombay. When I wrote and enquired on the subject I received the reply that—"The difficulty you mention does not trouble us here, though I have very little doubt that if we had an Assessment Committee, that it or some other like it would crop up."

13. All forms of Government have their weak sides, popular no less than autocratic, and perhaps the most fatal weakness in popular bodies is their inevitable tendency to regard as their best friends those who flatter them, encourage them to shake of all restraints and urge them on from one excess to another; while they treat as their enemies those who wish them to work under those salutary checks, which all men need, popular bodies perhaps most of all, and which, if firmly maintained, afford the best guarantee for their permanent success.

RESOLUTION ON THE ADMINISTRATION REPORTS OF THE REFORMATORY SCHOOLS AT ALIPORE AND HAZARIBAGH FOR THE YEAR 1889.

RESOLUTION.

JAILS

Darjeeling, the 5th June 1890.

READ—

(1) Letter No. 3281, dated the 7th April 1890, from the Inspector-General of Jails, forwarding the Report of the Administration of the Alipore Reformatory School for the year 1889.

(2) Letter No. 3282, dated the 7th April 1890, from the Inspector-General of Jails, forwarding the Report of the Administration of the Hazaribagh Reformatory School for the year 1889.

The Reports for the year 1888, and the orders of Government recorded thereon.

The Alipore School opened in 1889 with 106, and closed with 108, boys. Twenty-eight were admitted during the year, while 22 were released, 2 died and 2 escaped. One of the boys who escaped has since surrendered himself, and the warder who was responsible for the incident has been departmentally punished. There were no serious offences, and discipline was maintained with a smaller number of punishments than in 1888. Punishment by cutting marks has been in a great measure superseded by direct fines of the money earned by the boys, a move in the right direction. There was a decrease in the number of cases in which penal diet was resorted to as a punishment. The year under review was exceptionally healthy. Admissions to hospital fell from 2·43 in 1888 to 1·70 in 1889.

2. No change has been made in the way in which the day is divided between school and work. The boys work for seven hours, and have in addition one hour of compulsory school. They can also attend the night school from 6 to 8 P.M. It is satisfactory to observe that the average number of boys present at the night school increased from 98 in 1888 to 100 in 1889. Here, as at Hazaribagh, English is taught to the more advanced boys. The mark system continued to work well. The number of boys entitled to marks increased, and the average weekly earnings rose from Rs. 2-4-3 in 1888 to Rs. 2-10. The total amount earned during the year was Rs. 229-14-9, including payments for extra work, of which Rs. 175-0-9 were deposited in the Government Savings Bank.

3. Of 74 released boys, concerning whom reports were received, it appears that 7, or 9·45 per cent., were in jail, 5 were reported as not bearing a good character, and 1 died; the remaining 61 boys, of whom only 2 follow the trades they learned at school, are believed to be leading honest lives.

4. The cost of maintenance increased from Rs. 125-9-6 in 1888 to Rs. 137-9-5 for each boy, and the cost of diet rose from Rs. 3,277-14-3 in 1888 to Rs. 3,653-10-9 owing to the higher rates paid for articles of rations. The same cause has operated to increase the expenditure on diet in the Alipore Jail and the Dullunda Lunatic Asylum.

5. The manufactory account shows a profit to the school of Rs. 7,313-15-8 against Rs. 7,023 in 1888. No allowance is made in the account for value of the labour of the boys employed, or for wear and tear of block: it merely shows the balance of actual receipts over actual expenditure. Book-binding, carpentry, and tinsmith's work showed net profits of Rs. 3,074-4-5, Rs. 1,267-12-2, and Rs. 1,144-1-10, respectively. The profits on cane-work increased from Rs. 335-12-5 in 1888 to Rs. 383-15. Printing has been introduced with excellent effect, and yielded a profit of Rs. 1,086-0-6 during the year under review. The Superintendent strongly advocates the extension of this branch of manufactures, and in view of the ready employment which is found by proficients in this trade, the Lieutenant-Governor would be glad to see a large number of the boys in the Reformatory instructed in it.

6. The Lieutenant-Governor regrets the death of Mr. Kirschner, the late Superintendent, the value of whose services has frequently been recognized by Government. His acknowledgments are due to the Board of Management of the School.

7. The number of boys confined in the Hazaribagh School rose from 223 at the close of 1888 to 267 at the close of 1889. The daily average population was 244·06 against 229·50 in 1888. The Lieutenant-Governor regrets to observe that the health of the school shows no general improvement, although there were only 2 deaths as against 5 in 1888. There were no fewer than 217 admissions to hospital as against 133 in 1888 and 91 in 1887, and the daily average of sick rose from 6·67 to 6·68. No explanation has been offered of this rise in the number of admissions. It may be that an analysis of the medical statistics would disclose a reason for this apparent unhealthiness; and His Honour would be glad to have a further report on the subject from the Inspector-General of Jails.

8. Discipline was well maintained during the year, no serious offences were committed, and there were only 268 punishments against 367 in 1888. It is noticeable, however, that while there was a decrease in the number of offences under all other heads, there was a slight increase in the number of punishments for stealing, 89 in 1889 to 87 in 1888. "Whippings" have increased from 10 to 17, and "hand canings" from 82 to 89. In the latter instance, the increase has been almost proportional to the increase in population. The punishments by "fines and forfeiture of marks" show a decrease from 203 to 110.

9. The daily routine is the same as at Alipore, except that the hours of the night school differ slightly; the night school at Hazaribagh being held from 6 to 7-30 P.M. It is very satisfactory that out of 244·06, the daily average number, 235 boys on an average attended the night school. The mark system worked well. The average earning per week was Rs. 10-11-3 against Rs. 9-15-2 in 1888. The total earnings were Rs. 556-9-6 against Rs. 570-6 in the previous year.

10. Reports were received regarding 115 boys; 75 reports were favourable; in 17 cases it was not known what had become of the boys; 5 had been re-convicted and sent to jail, and 3 were looked upon with suspicion by the police. Eleven boys continued to work at the trades they learned in school, and 4 died.

11. The expenditure rose from Rs. 89-13-10 per head in 1888 to Rs. 92-10-1 in 1889. The increase was mainly due to the issue of warm coats and blankets to the boys and to the supply of furniture for the school.

12. The manufacturing account shows a profit of Rs. 3,301-7-8 against Rs. 3,757-2-11 in 1888, but the school is said to be in a better position in regard to its manufactures, and the new industries of shoe-making, leather-tanning and carpet-weaving have been started on a satisfactory basis. Besides these trades, carpentry and iron and tin work are taught.

13. The Lieutenant-Governor notices with pleasure that the school is regularly visited by the official visitors, who have again very favourably reported on Mr. Hill, the Deputy Superintendent. Dr. Moorhead deserves credit for his careful and efficient management of the school.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of the Resolution be forwarded to the President of the Board of Management of the Reformatory School at Alipore for information and communication to the Members of the Board.

Ordered also that a copy of the Reports and a copy of the Resolution be forwarded to the Inspector-General of Jails for information and communication to the Superintendent of the Hazaribagh Reformatory School.

Ordered also that the Resolution be published in the Calcutta Gazette.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL, AND OF THE METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN ASSAM, FOR THE MONTH OF MAY 1890.

THE most noteworthy features in the weather conditions during the month of May are—

1 The very low pressure which continued for several days about the end of the first week, when there was defect of two-tenths of an inch in the eastern districts. This was in connection with the cyclonic storm off the Burmah coast, which appearing on the 7th went inland the same night and moved to the north-north-east While it existed, that is, from the 7th to the 9th, the low pressure continued in Bengal, but after the 9th a continued rise set in, and about the middle of the month a considerable excess was general. During the latter half of the month the usual small oscillations occurred, and the means were generally above the normal. The low pressure of the first week has had a considerable influence on the means for the whole month, as, had it not occurred, the mean pressure would probably have been slightly above the normal, whereas there is everywhere defect, in some cases almost equalling a twentieth of an inch.

2. Very high temperature prevailed during the early part of the month, excess, especially in the north-western districts, remaining between 5° and 10°. The daily changes were not large, and very high maximum temperatures were frequently registered, all the inland stations at some time during this period of intensely hot weather having reported more than 100° After the storm off the Burmah coast disappeared unsettled conditions set in, and large changes of temperature occurred, though generally with considerable irregularity. In temperature, as stated above concerning pressure, the very high records for the early part of the month have given a considerable excess to the means for the whole month, notwithstanding that the last three weekly means were below the normal.

3. Easterly winds have been blowing very frequently in all districts. In North Bengal and Behar the directions have almost never varied, the only days when westerly winds have reached Behar being from the 8th to the 11th, when pressure was very low over the eastern districts of the province. The area of lowest pressure has generally been in Chutia Nagpur or between Chutia Nagpur and Orissa. The lines of equal pressure have therefore been running from north to south or from north-west to south-east, and the wind directions in Lower Bengal when the first arrangement obtained have been south with perhaps a slight westerly element, but in the second have been south-easterly. These south-easterly winds have prevailed throughout the greater part of the last half of the month, and have probably had an important influence on the rainfall distribution.

4. Rainfall was almost entirely absent during the first week except in North Bengal, fairly equally distributed during the second week, while for the rest of the month it would appear that the almost constant easterly winds deprived North Bengal of a portion of the moist air which at this season of the year flows in considerable quantity over that district. During the third and fourth weeks there was about 25 per cent. less rain than usual in North Bengal and about as much more in other districts, during the third week in South-West Bengal, and the fourth in East Bengal. The mean fall for the whole month has been below the normal in all districts except East Bengal.

5. The first appearance of the moist winds in the south of the Bay was probably about the 27th of April, as wind velocity from being steadily about three miles an hour at Galle rose to ten and twelve miles As a rule these stronger winds last for a few days only, and die away in the southern half of the Bay, but probably this year the low pressure over the northern half of the Bay and Bengal made the passage up the Bay more easy, for about ten days after the winds strengthened in the south the cyclonic storm formed near the Andamans, and passing to the west of Diamond Island, went over Burmah, giving general rain and stormy weather as far west as the central districts of Bengal. Again about the 8th of May the winds strengthened at Galle, and have continued moderately strong almost without a change.

At the beginning of the month settled weather with falling pressure and high temperature was general, but showers were falling in East Bengal till the 5th and in North Bengal daily. After the first few days pressure again became nearly normal, but on the 7th the rapid fall set in which caused the very wide depression at the centre of which the stormy weather developed on the Burmah coast. As stated above, the storm was of very short duration, breaking up in Burmah soon after crossing the coast on the 7th. The chief influence of the depression on the weather in Bengal was seen in the very light winds while it was forming not far from Diamond Island, and afterwards when it passed inland in the very strong winds which blew over East and South-West Bengal on the 9th. The rain which fell in East Bengal immediately afterwards must also have been due to the disturbed condition of the atmosphere consequent on the breaking up of the storm During this part of the month dry clear weather prevailed in the western districts, temperature being from 6° to 10° in excess, and no rain whatever falling. On the 11th conditions in Bengal underwent a distinct change. Pressure rose rapidly in the eastern districts, and as gradients became much steeper with the lowest pressure in the west, easterly winds commenced, and unsettled weather with heavy showers passed from the east over the greater part of the province. At first the rainfall was confined to Dacca, Furreedpore and Tipperah, it then began in South-West Bengal and afterwards in Behar on the 13th, the moist air as it spread over the province causing a rapid fall of temperature. During the last half of the month the daily conditions were almost identical: pressure varied very slightly from the normal, rainfall was scattered and in some cases heavy, while temperature underwent large changes caused by the local heavy showers The wind circulation was practically the same day after day: south or south-east in South-West and East Bengal, east in North Bengal and Behar, and south west in Orissa and Chutia Nagpur.

Pressure—During the first three or four days fell till defect was everywhere about a tenth of an inch, after which it rose for a day or two, but again fell very rapidly, so that by the 7th defect amounted to nearly a quarter of an inch in North Bengal and part of Assam, diminishing gradually to a tenth of an inch in the extreme west. A low-pressure area, within which pressure was everywhere more than ·2 inch in defect, extended along the east side of the province and deepening in the east of the Bay. It intensified in North Bengal on the 8th to nearly ·3 inch below the normal, and defect had increased to 16 inch in Chutia Nagpur and to ·25 inch in North Behar The depression was fillingup on the 9th, and by the 11th the distribution was very nearly normal For the week ending the 9th the means were all more than a tenth of an inch in defect, and at Serajgunge and Berhampore the difference was ·15 inch The means for the next two weeks were above the normal at all stations by amounts ranging from two to six-hundredths of an inch, but during the last week the barometer had again fallen, and defect ranged up to a twentieth, though generally about three-hundredths of an inch.

Temperature—Was unusually high during the first ten days, and the maximum temperatures especially were largely in excess. The following stations reported maximum temperatures over 110°:—Cuttack, Midnapore, Bankoora, Raneegunge, Dehree, Gya, Bankipore, and Chyebassa, and at all except the coast stations temperature was at some time over 100°. In Behar the heat was most intense on the 6th and 7th, and in the other districts on the 9th. The means for the large divisions were all, except Orissa and North Bengal, more than 5° above the normal, and those for the western districts were from 6° to 8° above. The excess amounts were as follows :—South-West Bengal 7·1°, South Behar 6·8°, Chutia Nagpur 6 1°, North Behar and Assam 5·5°, East Bengal 5 3°, North Bengal 4·2°, and Orissa 3·5°. Temperature began to fall in the eastern districts, but the intense heat continued in the west of the province till the 13th, when a very rapid fall followed the showery weather which set in over the greater part of the province between these dates. Irregular large changes occurred during the greater part of the month, but it is unnecessary to specify them, as they were generally confined to small areas and dependent on local irregular rainfall. The means for the week ending on the 16th were below the normal in all districts except South-West Bengal and Orissa, but differences were over 2° in South-West Bengal and Assam only. During the rest of the month temperature was below the normal, so that from the 11th to the end of the month, that is, during two-thirds of the month, comparatively cool weather has been general; still, owing to the intense heat of the first ten days, the means for the whole month are all above the normal. Excess in South-West and East Bengal, South Behar and Assam is between 1° and 1·3°, in Chutia Nagpur ·9°, Orissa ·7°, North Behar ·4°, and North Bengal ·1°. The highest temperature observed during the month in South Behar was 112°, in South-West Bengal and Orissa 111·5°, in North Behar 108·8°, Chutia Nagpur 106°, and East Bengal 100·5°.

Rainfall—As stated above, was practically absent during the period of intensely hot weather in the early part of the month, the only districts where showers were at all frequent being Tipperah, Mymensingh, Rungpore, Julpigoree, Cooch Behar, and the Darjeeling Hills, but the falls even in these districts show a large deficiency. From the 11th to the 15th heavy and fairly general rain fell, the amounts for the week ending on the 16th being above the average in all districts except South-West Bengal where, however, defect was only a tenth of an inch. During the rest of the month showers continued, and the falls were generally up to the average and in some cases above, but in North Bengal there was about an inch defect during this half of the month. The means for the whole month are below the normal in all districts except East Bengal, where there is a slight excess. Of those districts, the falls in Orissa and Behar are practically normal, in South-West Bengal ·7 inch, in Chutia Nagpur nearly 1 inch, and in North Bengal 1·6 inches below the normal.

Along the east side of the province from Noakhally northwards as far as Cooch Behar, the falls were between 10 and 15 inches at a large majority of the stations; in the Sunderbuns, the eastern half of South-West Bengal and the whole of North Bengal between 5 and 8 inches; in Orissa and the adjacent part of South-West Bengal generally between 3 and 5 inches; in Behar between 2 and 3 inches, except in the Sonthal Pergunnahs, where 4 to 5 inches were general; and over the whole of Chutia Nagpur, except a strip along the eastern boundary, less than one inch. Differences from the normal were generally small in all districts except North Bengal, and there the largest defects were in Cooch Behar and Julpigoree, amounting in some cases to 8 or 10 inches.

The following table gives full data for the comparison of the actual and the normal rainfall of the month of May in all districts of the province. The figures are derived from the average and actual rainfall of the rain-recording stations in each district, due allowance being made for the area which each station represents. This gives a more accurate average than the arithmetical means given in the weekly and monthly meteorological tables. The first column gives the normal or average district rainfall as determined from the rainfall observations of the past 15 years. The second column gives the actual district rainfall as determined from the weighted actual rainfalls of the month at the reporting stations in each district. The third column expresses the ratio of the actual district rainfall of the past month to the normal rainfall as a percentage. The fourth column gives the same information as the third in a slightly different form, stating as a percentage how much the district rainfall of the month varied in excess or defect from the normal :—

The results of observations at the Alipore Observatory are not rigorously comparable with the registers of past years (at the Park Street Observatory). The barometer is about 3 feet higher at Alipore, and, other things being equal, reads therefore ·003 lower. The diurnal range of temperature is also greater at Alipore, and the mean temperature apparently about 0·5 higher; and finally, the thermometer which furnished the record of temperature at the Surveyor-General's Office during 20 years and upwards is found to read 0·6 higher than the Kew standard thermometer, which is the standard of reference at the present Observatory.

CALCUTTA, the 11th June, 1890.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL, AND OF THE METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN ASSAM, FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY, THE 6TH OF JUNE 1890.

DULL cloudy weather has prevailed throughout the week in all districts except in the extreme west, where the sky has been fairly clear and temperature very high. The pressure distribution has been similar to that of the previous two weeks, lowest in Behar, but the gradients over Bengal have been steeper, and hence stronger winds have been blowing; but the directions have hardly changed, the usual steady southerly current blowing in Lower Bengal and easterly in North Bengal and Behar, while the westerly winds blowing over Chutia Nagpur have at times reached the more western stations of South Behar and caused the clear skies and high temperature in these parts. Heavy continuous rain has fallen in North Bengal and in parts of East Bengal, so that in the former of these districts almost double the average has been received, but in the latter, the heavy rain not having been so general, the mean fall is considerably below the normal. Scattered rain fell in all districts during the greater part of the week, the exceptions being South Behar, Orissa, and the western districts of Chutia Nagpur. On the 31st of May, the first day of the week, lowest pressure was over South Behar, the greatest difference of pressure on the east and west of the province being nearly two-tenths of an inch, and strong south-easterly winds were blowing in East Bengal. Heavy rain fell on this day at all the eastern stations, especially at Comillah, Dacca, and Serajgunge. Temperature was considerably below the normal in East Bengal and Orissa, and as much above in the west of Behar, so that the differences of pressure as well as of temperature were favourable to strong easterly winds. On the following day pressure rose, the differences of temperature increased, there being a large excess in Behar, and rainfall was heavy at Rungpore only. The general rise of pressure continued till the 3rd of June, when it was everywhere above the normal, and during these days rainfall was almost entirely confined to the eastern districts, where it was lighter than during the first and last three days of the week. On the 4th a rapid fall of pressure set in and unsettled conditions became more pronounced, wind directions being rather irregular and very heavy rain falling in North Bengal. The depression which began to form in Behar intensified on the 5th, and the difference of pressure from west to east increased to a quarter of an inch. The wind circulation did not change beyond the increase of velocity, but rainfall was much more general and very heavy in Assam and the adjacent districts of North Bengal, Julpigoree, and Dhubri, each receiving four inches. The area of lowest pressure on the 5th was in the form of a narrow trough covering the greater part of the northern half of South Behar and extending as far east as Bhagulpore. It began to fill up on the 6th, but pressure was still considerably below the normal in North Behar and North Bengal, and the rainfall, still very heavy in Assam and North Bengal, was more general in the southern districts, especially South-West Bengal.

Pressure—Was below the average at the beginning of the week, but it rose during the first three days of June till there was a considerable excess, after which a very rapid fall set in, resulting in a marked depression over Behar, pressure at the lowest part being under 29·45 inches. Defect in South Behar was then over ·15 inch, and it diminished towards the south, till at the head of the Bay the difference from the normal at the coast stations in the north-west corner of the Bay was very trifling. The most rapid fall was on the 5th, exceeding ·17 inch at Julpigoree and Dhubri and 1 inch in all districts except Orissa and South-West Bengal. At the end of the week pressure had commenced to rise, but it was under 29·5 inches over the greater part of Behar, and a large defect still remained. The means for the week are about a twentieth of an inch below the normal in Behar, slightly below in Chutia Nagpur, North Bengal, part of South-West Bengal and Assam, and above in the other districts.

Temperature—Was very nearly 5° above the normal in Behar and about as much below in East Bengal during the early part of the week, while in the intermediate districts the differences from the normal were generally small. While the rainfall continued in East Bengal and westerly winds were blowing in Behar, this distribution intensified, but on the 2nd of June there was excess everywhere except in North Bengal, the largest being 7·5° at Dehree. On the 3rd temperature rose almost everywhere, but with the commencement of unsettled weather on the 4th, a very rapid fall set in over North Bengal and part of East Bengal with slower downward changes in almost all districts. On the 5th and 6th very irregular and in some cases large changes occurred—on the 5th in North Bengal and on the 6th in South-West Bengal, but in the west of Behar excess was never below 5°. The means for the large divisions are all above the normal except North Bengal and Assam, defect in the latter being nearly 3°. Excess in South Behar is 4·3°, in Chutia Nagpur 2·4°, and in the other districts about 1°.

Rainfall—Has been chiefly confined to East and North Bengal, but during the last three days of the week light and fairly general rain fell in all parts except towards the west, where it has been almost entirely absent. On the 31st of May very heavy rain fell in East Bengal several stations receiving three inches. On the 1st and 2nd of June light general rain was falling in the eastern half of the province, but on the 3rd it again became heavier in the north-east, five inches falling at Dhubri. On the three last days very heavy rain was continuous in North Bengal, and light showers in nearly all districts. During these days

9 inches fell at Dhubri, 8 inches at Julpigoree, and 5 inches at Rungpore. The mean fall for North Bengal is 5 8 inches, nearly double the normal, but in all the other districts there is considerable defect, amounting in East Bengal to 1 3 inches, in Orissa, Chutia Nagpur, and South-West Bengal to about half an inch, and in Behar to a third of an inch. The very heavy rainfall in North Bengal has been largely confined to the Rungpore, Julpigoree, and Cooch Behar districts, the average in the last being very nearly 15 inches, and the heaviest fall recorded 18 inches at Buxa

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the seven meteorological divisions of the province for the week ending Friday, the 6th of June 1890 :—

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

MEMORANDUM.

DURING the month of March 1890, the total number of deaths registered in the 45 districts in Bengal amounted to 128,751, or at the rate of 23·16 per 1,000 among a population of 65,859,534, against 112,524, or 20 40 per 1,000 in the preceding month, 113,505, or 20·64 per 1,000 in March 1889, and an average of 109,778, or 19·92 per 1,000 in the corresponding month of the past five years 1885-89. There was thus a considerable increase of mortality in March 1890 than in the three corresponding periods of past years.

The following districts returned the highest proportions of deaths For comparison the mortality in the same districts during the corresponding month of 1889 is also shown :—

RULES RELATING TO REVENUE MONEY-ORDERS.

These rules are divided into four parts :—

PART I.—Form of Revenue Money-order.
PART II.—Issue of Revenue Money-orders.
PART III.—Payment of Revenue Money-orders.
Section A.—Payment from Disbursing Offices at the Head-quarters of districts.
Section B.—Procedure to be followed in the Collectorate.
PART IV.—Disposal of Acknowledgments.

PART I.

THE FORM OF REVENUE MONEY-ORDERS.

1. The Revenue Money-Order form is divided into four parts, viz :—

(a) The Money-Order.
(b) Lower portion of Money-Order or the Receipt.
(c) The Coupon or Chalan.
(d) The Acknowledgment.

2. Parts (a) and (b) require no description, as they are exactly like the corresponding portions of the ordinary Inland Money-Order form. Parts (c) and (d) are considerably larger than the Coupon and Acknowledgment of an ordinary Money-Order. Part (c) contains on one side all the particulars required by the Treasury, and on the reverse instructions for remitters of Revenue Money-Orders. Part (d) is on one side a duplicate of the Chalan and is returned to the remitter as his receipt; on the reverse of this part are the remitter's name and address.

3. This form is to be used for remittances of land revenue, road and public works cess, and zamindari dâk cess, and for no other purpose.

4. The forms of Revenue Money-Order should be freely distributed among the revenue-paying classes, and no restrictions whatever should be placed in the way of zamindars obtaining these forms.

5. Every Postmaster, Sub-Postmaster, and Branch Postmaster will be personally responsible that a sufficient supply of Revenue Money-Orders is always available in his office. In cases of emergency, supplies may be obtained by telegraph direct from the Stock Depôt of the Circle. Divisional Superintendents, and Inspectors, when visiting offices, will see that a sufficient supply of Revenue Money-Order forms is available, and mention in their diaries and inspection reports that they have done so.

PART II.

ISSUE OF REVENUE MONEY-ORDERS.

6. Revenue Money-Orders are issued from every Head, Sub, and Branch Post-Office under the rules which govern the issue of ordinary Inland Money-Orders. The following paragraphs contain additional instructions which relate solely to the issue of Revenue Money-Orders.

7. The rules in the Postal Guide fixing the limit of value of a single ordinary Inland Money-Order apply to Revenue Money-Orders. The rule prohibiting the inclusion of pies (fractions of an anna) in the amount of a Money-Order is not applicable to Revenue Money-Orders, which may be for amounts including any fraction of an anna not less than one pie.

8. The Office of Issue will help the remitter in making the requisite entries, and, if necessary, will make entries for him in the form of a Revenue Money-Order, but no fee or any other gratification whatsoever is to be demanded or accepted, either directly or indirectly, by any official of the Postal Department for this service. Disregard of this order will be punished by dismissal of the official in fault, who will, moreover, be liable to any further penalties provided by law.

9. The Office of Issue is responsible that no Revenue Money-Order is issued of which the Coupon (Chalan) is blank or is not completely filled up. The Post-Office has no means of ascertaining the correctness of the information supplied by a remitter; all that it is necessary to see is that entries are made against every printed item in the Coupon (Chalan), and that the Money-Order is not for a larger sum than is allowed by the rules for ordinary Inland Money-Orders. The spaces in the Acknowledgment and Chalan for the entry of interest and expenses (kharcha) are intended to meet the requirements of remitters who are in arrears as regards the payment of their cesses and have incurred liabilities for interest, process fees, or other costs of proceedings.

10. The letter "R" should be written before the number of every Revenue Money-Order, and this mode of distinguishing Revenue Money-Orders should be adopted wherever the number is entered.

11. The number assigned to a Revenue Money-Order by the Head Office or Sub-Office of Issue will also be entered at the top of the Coupon (Chalan) and Acknowledgment by the Money-Order Clerk of the Head Office or the Sub-Postmaster of the Sub-Office of Issue, as the case may be.

PART III.

PAYMENT OF REVENUE MONEY-ORDERS.

SECTION A.—Procedure in the Disbursing Office.

12. When the Revenue Money-Orders are in all respects * ready to be handed over to the Postman, a list in duplicate† (Form $\frac{3}{\text{R. M. O.}}$) should be made out by the Money-Order Clerk, and the entries in the money column of the list should be carefully totalled. When the number of Revenue Money-Orders for payment in one day is more than enough to fill a single sheet of Form $\frac{2}{\text{R. M. O.}}$, each sheet should be separately totalled, and a grand total should be made at the end of the last sheet of the list or on a separate sheet. The date stamp of the office of payment should be impressed in the space provided for it on the Coupon (Chalan) of each Money-Order.

13. The Postmaster should then check the entries in the list with those on the Money-Orders, and also check the total of the money column. He will then prepare a Treasury Voucher (Form A—C 14), representing the total value of the Money-Orders as entered at the foot of the list.

14. The Postmaster will be responsible that he has always sufficient funds at his credit in the District Treasury to meet the Treasury Voucher, and it will be his duty, when preparing the Treasury Voucher, to see that there are funds in the District Treasury to meet it.

15. The Money-Orders, both copies of the list, and the Treasury Voucher duly filled up, should then be made over to the Postman for delivery at the Collectorate, the Postman's receipt for the documents being taken in the usual manner in the Register of Money-Orders received.

16. The Postman will take the list in duplicate, the Money-Orders and the Treasury Voucher to the Treasury Officer, and will receive back from the Treasury Officer the original list signed and dated by the Treasury Officer, and the Money-Orders without the Coupons and Acknowledgments. The Postman will be careful to see that he receives back all the Money-Orders, and that they are all duly receipted by the Treasury Officer.

17. The paid Money-Orders received back from the Treasury will be examined by the Money-Order Clerk in the same way as ordinary Money-Orders, and will be entered in the journal of Money-Orders paid and be disposed of in the usual way. The original list will be kept by the Money-Order Clerk under lock and key.

18. The amount of the Treasury Voucher will be entered in the cash day-book, and the cash account on the receipt side opposite the item "Drawn from District Treasury," and will be included in the sum entered on the disbursement side under the head "Amount of Money-Orders Paid." The amount will also appear in the Treasury account as money drawn from the District Treasury. All these entries must be made on the same date.

19. On receipt of the Acknowledgments duly signed, the Money-Order Clerk will examine and compare them with the original list already in his possession, and with the duplicate presented to him along with the Acknowledgments; and, if all are found correct, the Postmaster will sign the duplicate list and return it to the Collectorate official who brought back the documents to the Post-Office.

20. The Money-Order Clerk should be particularly careful to see that he receives from the Collectorate an Acknowledgment for every Money-Order except when a note has been made on the duplicate list against any order showing that it was not for land revenue, road or public works cess, or zemindari dák cess. The Money-Order Clerk will also see that every Acknowledgment which he receives is in acknowledgment of the full amount of the Money-Order to which it appertains, and that the date of credit entered on each Acknowledgment agrees with the date of payment of the Money-Order.

21. Before the duplicate list is returned to the Collectorate, the Money-Order Clerk will carefully compare it with the original, and see that they are exactly alike, any remark recorded in the one list (either in the Collectorate or by the Money-Order Clerk, or the Postmaster) being copied in the other list.

22. It will be the duty of the Money-Order Clerk to report to the Postmaster if the signed Acknowledgments and the duplicate list are not returned to him at latest by 4 P.M. on the day following that on which the Treasury Voucher was sent to the Collectorate. On receipt of such a report, the Postmaster should at once bring the matter to the notice of the Treasury Officer. Any serious or oft-repeated delay in the return of the Acknowledgments should be reported to the Head of the Circle.

* Only the total number and amount of Revenue Money-Orders received for payment need be entered in the Register of money-orders received. In order, however, that the record may be complete, it will be necessary to make a note in the last column of the Register whenever all the Revenue Money-Orders received in one day are not included in the list of that date. For example, if in the Register of money orders received on the 5th July there are shown 500 Revenue Money-Orders for Rs. 10,000, but 300 of these orders for Rs. 7,000 were received too late for inclusion in the list sent to the Collectorate on the 5th, there should be an entry in the last column of the Register in this form :—

200 for Rs. 3,000 included in list of 5th.
300 for Rs. 7,000 included in list of 6th.

† The duplicate will be prepared by carbonic paper.

23. The Money-Order Clerk will report to the Postmaster every case in which the Coupon (Chalan) of a Revenue Money-Order received by him is blank or is imperfectly filled up, and each such case should be reported by the Postmaster to the Superintendent of the Division in which the office of issue is situated.

24. On the 5th of every month the Money-Order Clerk will prepare a return (Form $\frac{3}{\text{R M O}}$. of all Revenue Money-Orders received during the last month, and this return will be submitted by the Postmaster to the Head of the Circle.

SECTION B —Procedure to be followed in the Collectorate.

25. On receipt of the list (in duplicate), Money-Orders, and Treasury Voucher in the Treasury, the Treasury Officer will check and compare the documents. If there is any error, he will return all the documents to the post-office with a note of the error or errors. When the documents are correct the Treasury Office will at once cut off the portion of each Money-Order containing the Coupon and Acknowledgment, sign and date the original list and the Money Orders (as payee), and return the original list and paid Money-Orders to the Postman. The Treasury Officer will retain the lower portion of each Money-Order including the Coupon and Acknowledgment, the duplicate list of Money-Orders (Form 2 —R M. O.) and the Treasury Voucher No. Money-Order received from the Post-Office may be refused.

The acceptance of a Revenue Money-Order after kist day is to be treated in the same manner as the receipt of a personal payment of revenue after kist day.

26. The Treasury Officer will on the same day charge the amount of the Treasury Voucher against the letter of credit of the Postal Department as money paid to the disbursing Postmaster, and credit the amounts of the several Money-Orders as shown in the list and on the Acknowledgments to the appropriate departments.

If the estate or holding on account of which a remittance has been received is situated in another district, the remittance should be credited in the usual way, and the Collector to whom the money-order should have been addressed should be advised of the credit according to the procedure in Chapter IV, Section XIII, rule 3, of the Board's Rules (Miscellaneous Volume, 1888). The remitter should also be advised of his error by a note on the Money-Order Acknowledgment. If it should be found that a Revenue Money-Order has been erroneously issued for a remittance of some due other than land revenue, road or public works cess, or zemindari dâk cess, the Treasury Officer should make a note to that effect against the entry of the Money-Order on the duplicate list, and forward the Coupon and Acknowledgment with an advice list (Form 4 G. M. O) to the appropriate department for disposal under the rules in Part III of the rules for Government Money-Orders other than Revenue Money-Orders.

27. If it should be found that any Money-Order represents a remittance apparently not due to or intended for Government or any department or authority having an account in the Treasury, or that the amount of the Money-Order cannot for this or any other reason be credited at once in the treasury accounts, the amount should be disposed of according to the standing rules and practice of the Account Department, or be made over in cash to the officer who would have been entrusted with it had the money been paid in cash instead of by Money-Order, or had it been sent as cash in an ordinary or registered letter.

28. The Treasury Officer will be responsible that the total of the amounts credited to the different departments, and any sum made over in cash under rule 27 is equal to the amount of the Treasury Voucher received from the post-office and debited to the Postal Department.

29. The next business to be done in the Collectorate will be a rough examination of the Acknowledgments and Coupons to see that the necessary particulars of remittance are given in each case. This examination should be made by the Tauji Navises of the Land Revenue and Cess Offices and by the Certificate Department if a certificate has issued on account of Road and Public Works Cess If the amounts due on account of any cess, interest, and expenses are wrongly distributed by the remitter in the Money-Order, the Cess Department will correct the distribution. It is not necessary at this stage that the Money-Orders should be sent to or examined by the Magistrate's Office, even when they contain remittances of zemindari dâk cess. The fact that the amount remitted is less or more than is due is immaterial. If more than is due is remitted, the excess will be treated as a payment in advance; if less than is due is remitted, it will be treated as a payment on account.

If owing to omissions or errors in the particulars of remittance there is any uncertainty as to whether a remittance can be correctly credited according to the intentions of the remitter, a note should be made across the Acknowledgment in red ink, stating how the remittance has been credited or what further particulars are required, and in the latter case the remitter should be asked to send the required information immediately by letter. If a remittance of land revenue by Money-Order is received in the Treasury after the sunset of kist day, a note should similarly be made across the acknowledgment in red ink to the effect that the payment is "too late for kist day."*

30. Immediately after the examination prescribed in the preceding rule, the Acknowledgments should be signed, dated, and returned with the duplicate list to the Post-Office. The date on the Acknowledgments must be the date of receipt of the Treasury Voucher by which the Money-Orders were paid. The Treasury Officer will be responsible that the Acknowledgments and duplicate list are returned to the Post-Office at latest by 4 P M. on the day following that on which they were received in the Collectorate. The Chalans will be retained in the Collectorate.

* It is to be understood that the date of receipt of the Money-Order in the Treasury is the date of the Treasury voucher by which it is paid, and not necessarily the date on which the Acknowledgment is examined, signed or returned.

31. After the return of the Acknowledgments to the Post-Office the Chalans should be sent to the Land Revenue, Road Cess, and Zemindari Dâk offices in the order named, so that the remittances may be entered in the departmental registers. The Chalans should be initialled by a responsible officer of each department, and then be returned to the Collectorate.

32. When the duplicate list, with the Postmaster's acknowledgment for the documents returned to him, is received back from the Post-Office, it should be attached to the Chalans and filed in the Collectorate.

PART IV.

DISPOSAL OF ACKNOWLEDGMENTS.

33. The acknowledgments appertaining to Revenue Money-Orders received from the Collectorate will be sorted separately for each Office of Issue, and enclosed in envelopes (Form $\frac{6}{\text{R.M.O.}}$) addressed to the Postmasters of those offices; the numbers of the Money-Orders to which the acknowledgments appertain being detailed on the back of the envelopes.

34. These envelopes will be entered in detail in a special memorandum book, (Form $\frac{4}{\text{R.M.O.}}$) and be despatched as letters registered on Postal Service. The total number of Acknowledgments closed in each envelope will be the registered number assigned to that envelope.

35. On arrival in the Office of Issue, the envelopes will be opened and the acknowledgments contained in each envelope compared with the entries on the back thereof. The Acknowledgments will then be stamped with the Money-Order Stamp and be sorted for distribution to Postmen. The numbers of all acknowledgments to be given to each Postman will be detailed separately in a special memorandum book (Form $\frac{5}{\text{R.M.O.}}$) and the Postman's signature obtained against the entry. The Acknowledgments will then be handed over to the Postmen. The envelopes will be retained for 12 months, sorted in daily and monthly bundles, and will be destroyed after the expiration of that period.

36. The Postmen will enter the Acknowledgments in detail in their books and will obtain the remitter's signature or mark when delivering each Acknowledgment.

37. Acknowledgments which cannot be delivered in consequence of the remitter not being found will be returned by the Postman to the Money-Order Clerk, Sub-Postmaster, or Branch Postmaster (as the case may be), who will sign for them in the Postman's Book.

38. Undelivered Acknowledgments will be kept in the Office of Issue (if a Head Office) for a period of 12 months, and, if still unclaimed, will be destroyed.

39. In Sub-Offices and Branch Offices undelivered Acknowledgments will be retained for a period of three months, and, if still unclaimed, will be forwarded to the Head Office under a Postal Service Registered cover. Such Acknowledgments will be kept in the Head Office for a further period of nine months, and, if then still on hand, will be destroyed.

40. Postmasters, Sub-Postmasters, and Branch Postmasters of the Offices of Issue will be responsible that Acknowledgments are delivered to remitters of Revenue Money-Orders without any unnecessary delay and free of charge. Enquiries as to the punctual and free delivery of Acknowledgments should be made from time to time from zemindars who may call at the Post Office to have Revenue Money-Orders issued.

C. C. STEVENS,
Offg. Chief Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

No. 2841, dated Simla, the 12th May 1890.

RESOLUTION—By the Govt. of India, Department of Finance and Commerce

READ—

Office memoranda from the Legislative Department, Nos. 551 and 625, dated the 19th and 28th March 1890, respectively, transferring for disposal—

(1) A letter from the Bombay Chamber of Commerce, dated the 11th February 1890, urging legislative action on its proposal that railway receipts should be recognised as negotiable and transferable instruments, carrying a title to property in the same way as bills of lading;

(2) A letter from the Madras Chamber of Commerce, dated the 25th February 1890, and a memorial from the leading native merchants and commission agents in Bombay, supporting the proposal.

RESOLUTION.—Considering the strong expressions of opinion in support of the proposal contained in the communications cited above, and the equally strong opinions adverse to it which have been received by Government, it seems desirable that the question should be again fully considered by the mercantile community generally. For this purpose the papers on the subject have been printed in convenient form, and copies of the collection should be transmitted to all Local Governments, and published in view to eliciting as wide an expression of public opinion as possible on the question at issue. The Government of India also wishes to obtain the opinion of Local Governments and Administrations.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of the foregoing Resolution and of the collection of papers be transmitted to all Local Governments and Administrations, and to the Public Works and Legislative Departments.

ENCLOSURE TO RESOLUTION No. 2841 OF 1890.

Proposal that railway receipts should be declared to be transferable and negotiable instruments, carrying a title to property like bills of lading.

1. This proposal was first made by the Bombay Chamber of Commerce in a letter addressed to the Legislative Department of the Government of India The Chamber's proposal was afterwards supported by the Chambers of Madras and Bengal. The letters of the Chambers are printed below

No. 1] Bombay Chamber, dated the 10th November 1886

I am directed by the Committee of the Chamber to represent to Government the unsatisfactory condition of the existing law relating to railway receipts in India, with the hope that His Excellency the Governor-General in Council may see fit to initiate such legislative action as may be necessary, not only to regulate more definitely than at present the respective rights and liabilities of the public and the various Railway Administrations under these documents, but also to render them transferable and negotiable instruments, carrying a title to property in the same way as bills of lading.

Of late years the use of railway receipts has been so widely extended that they have become practically indispensable to merchants as a basis on which to finance the rail-borne trade of the country, and for that purpose a practice has grown up of utilising them in the same manner as bills of lading by attaching them to drafts as collateral security. So long as all parties to the transactions so financed continue solvent and adhere to the spirit of their contracts, the system works well; but a few months ago the failure of a number of dealers engaged in the grain trade between Bombay and the interior showed the danger involved. Merchants who had paid for produce in transit on the security of the railway receipts found it impossible to obtain possession of it, while, in one instance at least, a Railway Company who had delivered a consignment to the holder of the receipt was held by the Court liable to the consignor for the value.

The risks attendant on dealing with railway receipts as carrying a title to property having thus been fully exposed, their use has latterly been in some measure restricted, but even now, with a full knowledge of the danger incurred, merchants find it impossible to entirely dispense with them, and there is little doubt but that in the keen competition of business they will at no distant date be restored to their former position, only to lead to fresh trouble and disaster when their powers of security again come to be tested. The simple fact is that the distances in India over which merchandise has to be transported by rail are so great, and the time occupied in transit is so long, that without the means of finance which railway receipts are made to afford all but the largest firms, with exceptional monetary resources, would be precluded from trading In other words, as the law now stands, the issue lies between a restricted trade, or one based on inherently unsound conditions, while by conferring on railway receipts the powers and rights pertaining to bills of lading both drawbacks could be entirely obviated.

My Committee are so strongly convinced of the advantages to be derived from such a change in the law as they have indicated, that they consider only very serious objections should be allowed to stand in the way of immediate legislative action; and these, so far as they are able to judge, do not exist. Before approaching Government on the subject, they deemed it advisable to acquaint themselves as fully as possible with the legal aspect of the question, and they desire me to submit, for the information of Government, a copy of the opinion expressed by the Solicitors to the Chamber, Messrs. Craigie, Lynch and Owen, of this city. This, it seems to the Committee, so clearly demonstrates the absence of any legal difficulty, that they feel justified in asking that Government may be pleased to give the matter the earliest possible consideration, and either by framing an amendment to the Indian Contract Act or the Bills of Lading Act (IX of 1856), or passing a Railway or Inland Carriers Receipts Act, remedy what is undoubtedly a defect in the law from a commercial point of view, and detrimental to the interests of the general community.

Opinion of the Solicitors referred to in the Bombay Chamber's letter.

No. 2.] We beg to state, as requested by you, our opinion on the advisability of the Chamber's addressing Government "with a view to obtaining such alteration or modification of the law as to render railway receipts transferable and negotiable instruments, carrying a title to property in the same way as bills of lading."

Whilst expressing our opinion in the matter, we understand that we are desired to point out the distinctions which exist in law between bills of lading and railway receipts, as also the causes for the existence of such distinctions, and the reasons which may occur to us for or against invoking the interference of the Legislature in order to place railway receipts on the same footing as bills of lading.

As regards the distinctions existing between bills of lading and railway receipts, it seems obvious that both documents in their origin or primary significance are of similar import; that is to say, both are receipts given by carriers acknowledging that goods have been entrusted to them for carriage or transport, in the one case by land, and in the other by water.

Further, both documents usually include (together with the acknowledgment of receipt of the goods for carriage from one specified place to another) the terms and conditions upon which the goods are to be carried and delivered.

So far, therefore, a bill of lading and a railway receipt resemble each other.

As to their respective special or distinctive characteristics, we will now take each document separately, and, first, as to

THE BILL OF LADING.

Its most valuable features are:

(1) that it is negotiable and transferable by endorsement and delivery or transmission:
(2) that endorsement and delivery or transmission of the bill of lading transfers the property in the goods to the endorsee (in the absence of a contrary intention on the part of endorser and endorsee):
(3) that it may be endorsed either specially or in blank:
(4) that the holder of a bill of lading may by negotiating, endorsing, or transferring the same to a bonâ fide transferee defeat the vendor's right to stop in transitu.

The above special characteristics were not conferred upon bills of lading by any legislative enactment, but were brought into use by merchants, and continued in use until they become of established custom, and so acquired the force of law.

In England this custom of merchants in regard to bills of lading was recognised by the courts of law at a very early period, although such recognition was not perhaps a matter of clear authoritative record until the year 1793, when, by the decision of the leading case of Lickbarrow v. Mason, the existence of the custom of merchants in regard to bills of lading was placed beyond the limits of contention, and the principle that a vendor's right of stoppage in transitu is defeated by the bonâ fide assignment of a bill of lading by a consignee to a third person for valuable consideration was definitely established.

The custom of merchants in regard to bills of lading also received the recognition of the Legislature by the Act XVIII and XIX Vict., Cap. 3 (commonly called "the Bills of Lading Act").

The preamble of that Act recognises that by the custom of merchants, the endorsement of a bill of lading may pass the property in the goods to the endorsee, and the Act then provides that every consignee named in a bill of lading, and every endorsee thereof to whom the property in the goods therein mentioned shall pass by reason of the endorsement, shall have transferred to and vested in him all rights of suit, and be subject to the same liabilities as if the contract contained in the bill of lading had been made with himself.

The Act also provides that nothing therein contained shall affect any right of stoppage in transitu, or any right to claim freight against the original shipper, owner, or any liability of the consignee or endorsee by reason or in consequence of his being such consignee or endorsee, or of his receipt of the goods by reason or in consequence of such consignment or endorsement.

And the Act, lastly, provides that every bill of lading in the hands of a consignee or endorsee for valuable consideration shall be conclusive evidence of the shipment of the goods therein mentioned as against the master or other person signing the bill of lading, notwithstanding that such goods, or some part thereof, may not have been shipped, unless the holder of the bill of lading shall have had notice at the time of receiving the same that the goods had not been in fact laden on board. The only exception or reservation is that of the master or other person signing the bill of lading being able to show that the goods, or part thereof, had not been laden on board owing to default on his part, and that their non-shipment was due to fraud on the part of the shipper or holder of the bill of lading.

It being considered, as we presume, that this Act did not extend to India, its provisions have been made applicable to India by Act IX of 1856, which is word for word the same as the English Bills of Lading Act.

It will be noticed that in the preamble to the Bills of Lading Act, it is affirmed that the endorsement of a bill of lading may pass the property in the goods; and as to this it remains to be stated that such endorsement does not of necessity operate in every single case without exception to "pass the property," and will not pass the property within the meaning of the Act in cases where it is the actual or implied intention of the parties that the property shall not pass.

As, for instance, where the shipper of goods, having endorsed the bill of lading in blank, deposits the same with his bankers by way of security for money advanced.

The law in such case has been clearly laid down in a recent decision of the Court in England (Burdick v. Sewell, 10 Q. B. D., 365; 13 Q. B D., 159; and 10 Ap. Ca., 74).

As regards right of stoppage in transitu, section 102 of the Indian Contract Act provides that the right of stoppage ceases if the buyer, having obtained a bill of lading, or other document showing title to goods, assigns it, while they are in transit, to a second buyer, who is acting in good faith, and who gives valuable consideration for them.

And section 103 of the same Act further provides that where a bill of lading or other instrument of title to any goods is assigned by the buyer of such goods by way of pledge to secure an advance made specifically upon it in good faith, the seller cannot, except on payment or tender to the pledgee of the advance so made, stop the goods in transitu.

(It may be remarked parenthetically that if the words "other document showing title to goods" and "other instrument of title" included railway receipts, these would, of course, secure the benefits or immunities conferred by the sections above referred to. We shall state further on our reasons for considering that "railway receipts" are neither "documents" nor "instruments" of title within the meaning of those sections.)

Lastly, section 108 of the Indian Contract Act provides that no seller can give to the buyer of goods a better title than he has himself, except in certain cases; and one of those cases is that when any person is by consent of the owner in possession of a bill of lading, he may transfer the ownership of the goods to which such bill of lading relates to any other person, and give such person a good title thereto, notwithstanding any instructions of the owner to the contrary, provided that the buyer acts in good faith, &c.

It will be seen from what we have above stated that the position of bills of lading as to their negotiability, and in other respects, is clearly ascertained and defined by law both in England and in India; but turning now to it will be found that the case is altogether different, their position and effect being ill-defined and ambiguous with reference to negotiability, and with reference to the right which they confer as between the holder or endorsee and the carrier and consignor.

In the first place, if any custom of merchants has grown up, whether in England or in India, in relation to the negotiability or otherwise of railway receipts, such custom has never, we believe, been established in a court of law.

Next, there is not any Act of the Legislature, either here or in England, which defines or recognises any status or effect on the part of railway receipts in regard to negotiability or otherwise.

Speaking generally, and subject to what is hereafter stated, a railway receipt is—

(1) neither negotiable (in the legal sense of the word),
(2) nor capable, when endorsed, of passing the property in goods,
(3) nor is it when in the hands of a bonâ fide endorsee for valuable consideration of effect to defeat the consignor's right to stop in transit.

It is true that so far back as the year 1833 (in the case of Hall v. Griffin, 10 Bing., 246), it was held by the court sitting in Banc that the delivery of a wharfinger's receipt upon an advance of money "was a symbolical transfer of the property, and might be considered the same as if the goods had passed from hand to hand;" and this case was in recent times relied upon by the plaintiff in a suit brought in Calcutta against the East Indian Railway Company. It was there argued on the plaintiff's behalf, upon the authority of the case of Hall v. Griffin, that a railway receipt is customary evidence of title, and that although it may not have the full power of a bill of lading, yet that it is an instrument which confers upon the holder thereof a right to deal with the goods.

Ragleton v. the East Indian Railway Compan, 8 B. L. R., 581.

The Court of Appeal (Couch, C. J., and Macpherson, J., reversing the decision of the lower court) seem to have approved the ruling of Hall v. Griffin, and to have considered it applicable to a railway receipt, and it was held that the Company was bound to deliver the goods to the holder of the receipt, notwithstanding a request to the contrary on the part of the consignor.

But in that case not only had the receipt been sent by the consignor or himself to the holder for the purpose of enabling him to receive the goods, but it also appears that the goods were delivered to, and accepted by, the Railway Company for the express purpose of being sent to the plaintiff, and therefore the Court held that the property and right to possession passed to the holder of the receipt, and that the consignor could not revoke the authority which he had given to the holder to receive the goods.

And in the case of Hall v. Griffin not only was the receipt of the wharfingers at Stockton (whence the goods were to be despatched to London) handed to the claimant of the goods, but the consignor also addressed and ordered to his agents (also wharfingers) in London to deliver the goods upon arrival to the receipt holder, and further those agents promised to deliver the goods to him on arrival.

It follows, in our opinion, that so far as this case and the Calcutta case decided that property in goods passes by transfer of a wharfinger's or railway receipt, they only so decided, having regard to special circumstances which had happened in each case, and not that they decided as a general principle that the passing of the property was a matter inherent in all cases to the delivery or transfer of a wharfinger's or railway receipt.

And neither case can be regarded as an authority to show that the endorsement of a railway receipt to a third party for valuable consideration will protect the holder from consignor's right of stoppage in transitu.

With the exception of the cases above referred to, we are not aware of any reported decisions bearing upon the effect of the transfer or endorsement of a railway receipt.

In a case lately disposed of by the Bombay High Court (Ganesh Shundiram and others v. the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway) the Company had, notwithstanding objection notified to them by the consignor, delivered the goods to the holder of the railway receipts; but the receipts had not been endorsed to the holder, and the Court found that he had obtained possession of them by fraud, and ordered the Company to refund to the consignor the value of goods delivered by them to the receipt holder. It appeared that the receipt in this instance comprised a condition (printed thereon) that the same should be produced by the consignee, or that the goods would not be delivered, and that "if he did not attend himself to take delivery, he must endorse a request for delivery to the person to whom he wished it made." As already stated, the receipt had not been endorsed, but it was proved that the Company had frequently, during a period of 21 years, delivered goods to holders of such receipts unendorsed. The Court held in effect that this practice could not exonerate the Railway Company, and that, even if it were a recognised custom, consignors at a distance from Bombay could not be held bound by it.

Whether the Court would have held the Company justified in delivering the goods supposing the receipt had been endorsed by the consignor (in accordance with the condition) is not clear We apprehend not, as the holder of the receipts had obtained the same by fraud, and notice of the fraud had been given to the Company.

There remains to be considered the question whether the words "document of title" used in section 102 of the Indian Contract Act, the words "instrument of title" used in section 103, or the words "document showing title" used in section 108 include within their meaning respectively a railway receipt.

We do not think that this question has ever been decided by a court of law; at all events we are not aware of any reported decision on the subject.

We apprehend, however, that there can be but little doubt that a railway receipt is neither a "document of title," nor an "instrument of title," nor a "document showing title."

Such a receipt is, of course, evidence (though not necessarily conclusive evidence) that the Railway Company who have granted the receipt have actually received the goods for carriage. But what evidence is such receipt that the goods belong to the person who produces it? And if the receipt in no way evidences ownership, then how can it be said to be a "document showing title to the goods?"

We have examined the forms of receipt used by all the principal railways in India, and we find that a very large number of them contain a clause to the effect that the "consignee" must produce the receipt, or the goods will not be delivered; if he does not himself attend, he must endorse a request for delivery to the person to whom he wishes it made. A receipt so framed is doubtless a document evidencing the right of the person therein named as consignee to receive delivery of the goods from the Railway Company. But there is a very wide distinction between a document which shows "a right to receive" goods from the carriers thereof and a document which shows title (i.e., a right of ownership and of disposal) to the goods themselves.

It may be said that, judged from this point of view, a bill of lading should be no better than a railway receipt.

But the answer is that the established custom of merchants recognised by the courts of law and by the Legislature has invested a bill of lading with the character of a document showing title, whereas no such established and recognised custom exists as regards railway receipts

Further, it is noticeable that section 108 of the Indian Contract Act, to which we have before referred, expressly includes not only bills of lading, but also "dock-warrants," a "warehouse-keeper's certificates," and a "wharfinger's certificate or warrant or order for delivery," but "railway or carrier's receipts" are not mentioned.

We have now shown that there is a very material distinction between the value for commercial purposes of a bill of lading and a railway receipt, the latter enjoying few, if any, of the special advantages and privileges which attach to the former.

The reasons for this are not far to seek.

The Western trade of former days was almost entirely carried on by water. Railways are comparatively of modern date, and distances in the United Kingdom so short that goods may arrive at their destination as soon as the railway receipt granted at the place of their despatch; possibly for this reason not very much would be gained by making railway receipts negotiable, so far as the United Kingdom is concerned. That such receipts have not acquired the same advantages as bills of lading is probably due to the circumstance that it may not have been hitherto worth the merchants' while to secure those advantages for railway receipts.

But in India the case is different: goods travel long distances by rail, and are often several days on the road. It seems obvious that commercial transactions must be greatly facilitated if under such circumstances a railway receipt can be made to afford the same or as good security as a bill of lading.

As a matter of fact, considerable transactions in the way of negotiation of railway receipts take place in India, and especially in Bombay; and such transactions facilitate, and indeed are, we believe, often necessitated by the lawful operations of trade.

As matters stand at present, a merchant who buys a railway receipt, say, for 100 bales of cotton, is exposed to the risk of the goods being stopped in transit, or claimed in the case of an insolvency by the Official Assignee, or claimed on the ground that the consignor was not the true owner of the goods

Why should the negotiator of railway receipts be compelled to incur these risks?

It appears to us to be a hardship and an anomaly that risks of the kind should attend the negotiation of railway receipts whilst the negotiation of bills of lading is practically free from them; and the very fact that such risks exist in connection with railway receipts seems calculated to operate in restraint of trade.

It may well be that a mercantile custom is even now growing up, if it be not already in existence, to treat railway receipts on the same footing as bills of lading.

If this be the case, then it is of all the more importance that such custom should be recognised and established by law.

The application by the Legislature to railway receipts of the law which governs bills of lading would not, we think, be a matter of any difficulty.

This subject could, we submit, be effected by an amendment of the Indian Contract Act, or of the Bills of Lading Act (IX of 1856), or by passing a "Railway or Inland Carriers Receipts Act."

Such amendment of the law might with advantage be made applicable also to "canal" receipts, and perhaps to other carriers' receipts.

We are of opinion that to place railway receipts upon an equal footing with bills of lading is desirable, not only in the interests of traders, but of all the community generally.

It follows, therefore, that in reply to the question put to us, we are of opinion that "it is advisable that the Chamber should address the Government with a view to obtain such alteration or modification of the law as will render railway receipts transferable and negotiable instruments, carrying a title to property in the same way as bills of lading," and (we may add) as will secure to railway receipts the same privileges in all respects as bills of lading enjoy.

Madras Chamber, dated the 8th December 1886.

No. 3.] I have the honour to state, for the information of the Government, that this Chamber has been favoured by the Bombay Chamber with a copy of the letter which it addressed to you on the 10th ultimo, asking that legislative action may be taken to place railway receipts on the same footing as bills of lading.

The opinions expressed by the Bombay Chamber are shared by the mercantile community of Madras, and I am desired to say that this Chamber entertains the hope that the Government will be pleased to take the legislative action that has been proposed.

Bengal Chamber, dated the 29th April 1887

No. 4] I am to say that this Chamber is generally in favour of the proposals set out in the letter of the Bombay Chamber of 10th November last. They can see no reason why railway receipts should not be placed on the same footing as bills of lading. Small parcels and packages could be covered as now by parcel receipts.

2. The proposal was referred by the Government of India to its Law Officers, and the case stated for the Advocate-General by the Government Solicitor and the Advocate-General's opinion are printed below.

Case stated by Mr H A. Adkin, Officiating Solicitor to the Government of India

No. 5.] The questions raised in the accompanying papers, and on which the Government of India desire the opinion of the Honourable the Advocate-General, are, as it appears to the Government Solicitor, (1) whether the application of the Bombay Chamber of Commerce to the Government of India in the Legislative Department makes out a sufficient case for the initiation of legislation with a view to placing receipts granted by Railway Administrations to consignees for goods entrusted to such administrations for conveyance by railway on the same footing as bills of lading ; (2) whether any practical objections suggest themselves to the initiation of such legislation ; and (3) the form which such legislation should take.

These questions are, of course, based on the assumption that, as the law of India at present stands, railway receipts are not negotiable instruments ; and as to this, it appears to the Government Solicitor that the letter from Messrs. Craigie Lynch, and Owen, appended to the letter from the Secretary of the Bombay Chamber of Commerce, makes out a conclusive case. Unless, however, the Honourable the Advocate-General concurs in this view, the questions, as above stated, will not arise.

The considerations urged by the Bombay Chamber and their Solicitors in support of their application appear to be very strong, and no reasons occur to the Government Solicitor (who concurs in the views expressed in Messrs. Craigie, Lynch, and Owen's letter) against the proposed legislation.

The Honorable the Advocate-General will please advise on the questions stated above.

Opinion by Mr. G. C. Paul, Advocate-General.

No. 6.] The letter from Messrs. Craigie, Lynch, and Owen to the Secretary of the Bombay Chamber of Commerce I think accurately enunciates the principles of law relating to bills of lading and railway receipts respectively. I am further of opinion that the Bombay Chamber of Commerce has made out a strong case for legislative action. If railway receipts are put on a par with bills of lading, doubtless the legal responsibility of the Government either as owners or principal proprietors of railways will be increased in cases where unpaid vendors can legally exercise their right of stoppage in transitu. The question for the Government to decide is whether, in view of the great advantages to trade which would be afforded by railway receipts being put on a par with bills of lading, an additional legal responsibility should not be incurred by the Government. This is a question of expediency and policy which is beyond my province as the Legal Adviser to the Government. But if my advice is sought on this subject, I would be disposed to view favourably the change in the law recommended by the Bombay Chamber of Commerce.

3. The proposal was then referred to the Agents of Guaranteed and the Managers of State Rail ways for their opinions, the Agents being instructed to send their opinions to their London Boards It was also suggested to the Secretary of State that the question should be discussed with the Boards of Directors of Indian Railway Companies. The opinions received are reproduced in substance below .

BENGAL-NAGPORE RAILWAY.

From the Manager, dated the 8th June 1887.

No. 7.] In my opinion the custom on the subject requires alteration, and that a railway should be justified in handing over goods at any time to any one producing their receipts for the same, and that having done so, they are free of all responsibility in the matter.

2. It is not universally admitted by legal authorities that a special legislation is necessary. Macpherson on Law of Indian Railways and Common Carriers, page 87, would lead to the opinion that all that is required is a receipt in the form of a special contract approved by the Governor-General in Council, as has been done with risk notes, and that such a contract could not be altered by the Civil Courts.

BILASPUR-ETAWAH STATE RAILWAY.

From the Manager, dated the 5th June 1887.

No. 8.] Officially no instance of the difficulties attended on the non-negotiability of railway receipts has ever occurred to me. I, however, am fully aware of the truth of what the Secretary of the Bombay Chamber of Commerce puts forward, and do not anticipate any difficulties likely to accrue to Railway Administration by giving effect to the suggestions.

BURMA STATE RAILWAY.

From the Manager, dated the 17th June 1887.

No. 9.] The matter was discussed at an official meeting held at this Office on Monday, the 13th instant, when the Examiner of Railway Accounts pointed out that the following endorsement appears on Goods Receipt Form No. S. N. 36 :

" This receipt must be produced by the consignee, or the goods will not be delivered ; if he does not himself attend, he must endorse a request for delivery to the person to whom he wishes it made If the consignment or this railway receipt is sold one or more times, the endorsement must be a distinct order to deliver to a certain person or firm, and this order must be on a one-anna stamp. If more than one order appears on the face hereof, each order must bear a stamp."

It was therefore resolved that in reply to the reference it be pointed out that the above-quoted rule, which is issued under the authority of the Government, evidently constitutes the document concerned a negotiable instrun ent, and that, as far as State Railways are concerned, no legislative action appears necessary.

EASTERN BENGAL STATE RAILWAY.

No. 10.] The legal aspect of the question appears to have been fully dealt with by Messrs. Craigie, Lynch and Owen, Solicitors to the Bombay Chamber of Commerce, and these gentlemen, after setting forth arguments in favour of the proposal, state:

From the Manager, dated the 24th June 1887.

"This object could, we submit, be effected by an amendment of the Indian Contract Act, or of the Bills of Lading Act (IX of 1856), or by passing a Railway or Inland Carriers Receipt Act."

I have referred to this, as I consider from a railway point of view that, in the event of the Legislature favouring the proposal, the manner in which the object is effected is of some importance. In my opinion the latter alternative is the best

I do not follow the Advocate-General where he seems to imply that if railway receipts are put on a par with bills of lading, an additional legal responsibility will fall on Government as owners or principal proprietors of railways. It seems to me that the responsibility of the railway as a carrier should not extend beyond the delivery of the goods to the consignee or endorsee, as the case may be In this connection, I may remark that the right of stoppage in transitu is very rarely exercised, and there appears no valid reason why railway receipts should differ from bills of lading in this respect.

TIRHOOT STATE RAILWAY.

No. 11.] I see no material objection to this as far as the railways are concerned, assuming that the projected legislation to effect this protects railways from loss or undue responsibility. The endorsement to a consignee, for instance, which would give him right of property in the goods, should at the same time involve responsibility to the railway for freight and undercharges, though we may still have to hold consignors responsible for fraudulent or mistaken description of goods. Due account should also be taken of the difference between the station staff on Indian Railways and those who have to deal with ordinary bills of lading used in shipping.

From the Manager, dated the 15th June 1887.

It is to be noted that the correspondence received with your letter under reply shews that the supporters so far of the proposal are those who would be buyers or consignees of goods to be dealt with under these negotiable receipts. It would be well to take the views of sellers on the matter. It would possibly be found that they were not so favourable to the proposal, and that the anticipated increase of trade among the smaller firms at ports, which it is urged or implied as likely to follow on the realisation of this proposal, would not be fulfilled unless the operation is protected by greater security to the consignor at the station of consignment. In any case consignors would desire, I think, that railway receipts are not made generally negotiable, but only when endorsed, or, better still, when granted and executed on a separate form intended for such negotiable receipts.

NORTH WESTERN STATE RAILWAY

No. 12.] The proposals are apparentlythat the railway receipts should be made in law an instrument of the same nature as a bill of lading, the most valuable features of which are stated to be—

From the Examiner of Accounts, dated the 9th June 1887.

(1) that it is negotiable and transferable by endorsement and delivery or by transmission:
(2) that endorsement and delivery or transmission of the bill of lading transfers the property in the goods to the endorsee (in the absence of a contrary intention on the part of the endorser and endorsee):
(3) that it may be endorsed either specially or in blank:
(4) that the holder of a bill of lading may by negotiating, endorsing, or transferring the same to a bonâ fide transferree defeat the vendor's right to stop in transitu.

The bill of lading is also, seemingly, with certain reservations as to fraud, &c., conclusive evidence of the receipt of the goods as against the carrier.

The State Railway form of receipt, after providing that it must be produced by the consignee, further provides that—

"If the consignment or this railway receipt is sold one or more times, the endorsement must be a distinct written order to deliver to a certain person or firm, and this order must be on a one-anna stamp. If more than one order appear on the face hereof, each order must bear a stamp."

This would seem to indicate an intention to recognise the receipt as a negotiable document and instrument showing title to the goods, and the proposed legislation would apparently define and legalise its position in these respects.

I am not quite clear as to the position the railway would occupy in the case of—

(1) An endorsement in blank.
(2) The bonâ fides of a transfer being questioned, and the consignor seeking in consequence to exercise a right of stoppage in transitu.

But I am inclined to think that, so far as the railway is concerned, the receipt should be specially endorsed, and that its production duly endorsed should be accepted as sufficient evidence of title and delivery made thereupon, except in case of an interdict from a Court.

Any increase in the responsibility of the railway is, I think, to be deprecated, and probably the requirements of the mercantile community might be sufficiently met without adding to the liability of the Railway.

With reference to the remarks of the Bengal Chamber of Commerce, it would probably be desirable to have a distinction between the parcels and goods receipts.

The proposals have been made in the interest of the export trade, but there is also a large internal trade to be considered, and I am unaware whether the proposed charges are such as would commend themselves to the large body of Native merchants who chiefly carry on the internal trade of the country. Steps might perhaps be taken to ascertain this. If necessary, there might be two sets of forms—one for the export, and the other for the internal trade to be used at the option of the consignors; but, except upon very strong grounds, it would seem undesirable to have forms of different legal nature for the same railway purpose.

From the Traffic Superintendent, Punjab Section, dated the 17th June 1887.

No. 13] It would, I think, be expedient to obtain a full explanation of the extent to which the legal responsibility of a Railway Administration is increased.

The Advocate-General implies that this increased responsibility will be incurred only in cases where unpaid vendors can legally exercise this right of stoppage in transition.

The clauses of the Contract Act which affect the case are—

99. "A seller who has parted with the possession of goods and has not received the whole price may, if the buyer becomes insolvent, stop the goods while in transit to the buyer."

101. "The seller's right of stoppage does not, except in the case hereinafter mentioned, cease on the buyer re-selling the goods while in transit and receiving the price, but continues until the goods have to be delivered to the second buyer, or to some person on his behalf."

102. "The right of stoppage ceases if the buyer, having obtained a bill of lading, assigns it, while the goods are in transit, to a second buyer, who is acting in good faith, and who gives valuable consideration for them."

To take the cases given in the Contract Act: A sells and consigns certain goods to B, and sends him the bill of lading. A being still unpaid, B becomes insolvent and assigns the bill of lading for cash to C; C either knows or does not know that B is insolvent. In the former case the transaction is not in good faith, and A can stop the goods in transit In the latter case the transaction is in good faith, and A cannot stop the goods in transit.

But the Railway Administration is not in a position to know whether the transaction between B and C is in good faith, and, in the absence of such knowledge, must of necessity be placed in a dilemma if A orders the goods to be stopped in transit

If the Railway does not act on A's instructions and allows the goods to be delivered to C, and it subsequently turns out that the transaction between B and C was not in good faith, it becomes liable to A for the value of the goods. If, on the other hand, the Railway stops delivery of the goods, and it turns out that the transaction between B and C was conducted in good faith by C, then C can sue the Railway for loss of market.

If my interpretation is correct, there is no question that Railway Administrations will incur a very serious responsibility; and the question is, whether the facilities given to merchants would be likely to increase trade to an extent which would compensate railways for the increased risk incurred.

On the whole, I am doubtfully disposed to believe that the prospect of extending trade is worth the risk, and to recommend that we declare in favour of the proposed legislation.

From the Manager, Punjab Section, dated the 28th June 1887.

No. 14.] Before we are called upon to express a definite opinion, some explanation is required of the extent to which our responsibility would be increased by the proposed legislation.

The wording on the form of receipt in use on State Railways would appear to imply that we already consider the receipt as a document showing title to the goods by the person to whom it has been last duly transferred by endorsement. I cannot, however, say under what responsibilities the Railway actually labours in the case of an endorsement in blank or in the event of the bonâ fides of a transfer being disputed by the consignor, and his instructions received to stop delivery. The responsibility would seem to depend upon whether the transfer was made in good faith between the parties concerned; but how the Railway is to ascertain this before it may be too late is in no way indicated.

If the proposed legislation will remove this difficulty, or at all events place us in no worse a position than we are now, I would willingly advocate the acceptance of the assimilation of bills of lading and railway receipts which the mercantile community appear to desire; but the opinion of the Honourable the Advocate-General distinctly indicates increased responsibility in certain cases, and we ought to know what the extent of this responsibility is likely to be.

From the Traffic Superintendent, Sind Section, dated the 14th June 1887

No. 15.] There can be no doubt that to place railway receipts on the same footing as bills of lading will be an immense convenience to merchants and bankers.

At the same time it is equally certain that the responsibility of the railway carrier will be largely increased, especially so if the consignee is allowed to retain his right to stop goods while in transit, and while the present practice of delivering goods on indemnity bonds remains in force. These considerations, however, cannot be allowed to outweigh the great convenience that would be afforded to traders, and I think it would be well if railway receipts were rendered negotiable documents.

No. 16] I concur in the general opinion that a railway receipt should be a negotiable document. But as this will virtually prohibit delivery without production of the receipt, it may possibly be advisable to restrict its application either to—

From the Manager, Sind Section, dated the 1st July 1887.

(1) certain trading localities :
(2) to consignments of certain value or quantity.
(3) to certain classes of goods, and allow all other traffic to be conducted on ordinary principles. A form of indemnity bond will also be necessary to meet cases of lost negotiable receipts.

There are also certain small consignments for short distances, the freight on which will scarcely cover the cost of printing and filling in the numerous forms which now complicate and retard the business of a railway, and I would venture to suggest, while the alteration of the law is under consideration, the advisability of still further altering the law and making it legal for railways to book small consignments at owner's risk without either a consignment note, receipt, or invoice, the fact of their entry in a receipt book and of a signature on a delivery book being considered conclusive evidence of receipt or delivery.

EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

No. 17.] My own opinion is that before any change in the law is considered, the alleged inconvenience to the public should be fully ascertained and established. If from the circumstance of railway goods receipts not possessing the legal status of bills of lading, the inconvenience to trade should be found to be considerable, I am of opinion that Railway Administrations should be prepared to accept the increased risk and responsibility which a change in the law would entail. Correspondence is enclosed.

From the Agent to the Board of Directors, dated the 10th September 1887.

No. 18.] I am desired to hand to you the enclosed copy of a report from Messrs. Freshfields and Williams, the Company's Solicitors, in which the question of the proposed legislation is fully discussed from a legal point of view.

From the Board of Directors to the Agent, dated the 25th November 1887.

For the rest, you are aware how anxious the Board have always been to grant the utmost facilities to traders using the East Indian Railway Company's system, or that of other Companies in connection therewith.

It appears, however, to the Board that the alterations now suggested by the Bombay and other Chambers of Commerce, if carried out, must entail increased, and probably onerous, responsibilities upon the East Indian Railway Company, and they therefore feel their inability to arrive at any judgment upon the question until they are able clearly to understand what course of legislation the Government of India would propose.

Should the Government, therefore, decide to proceed to any legislative enactment to alter the present status or force of the existing railway receipt for goods, you are directed to take the earliest opportunity of apprising the Board thereof, and to forward for their consideration (in conjunction with their legal advisers) the full terms of any measure to be introduced into the Legislative Council. You will further, at the same time, most urgently represent to the Government of India the Board's request that they may have ample time to consider any such legislation on a matter which appears to them of vital importance to the East Indian Railway Company before its final adoption.

No. 19] We collect from the correspondence and papers that, as a matter of practice, the East Indian Railway Company already treat the railway receipts to a certain extent as bills of lading, and deliver the goods at their destination to any endorsee of the receipt appearing thereon entitled to such goods. This practice, it is clear, is carried on at the Company's own risk.

From Messrs. Freshfields and Williams (the report mentioned in the foregoing letter)

The question then arises, what effect would the proposed legal assimilation of railway receipts with bills of lading have on the liability and responsibility of the Company in the carriage of goods.

We may here observe that it is not quite clear in what way the promoters of legislation propose to make the new law obligatory on the Railway Companies.

At present the system of railway receipts adopted by the Company is an entirely voluntary arrangement.

We understand that, under the Indian Contract Act, the sole duty of the Railway Companies as carriers is to deliver goods to the original consignees, and that the Company is not bound to issue railway receipts at all, nor to recognise or act upon endorsements, and consequently the Company can depart from or modify their present practice in any particular case when it may be convenient or prudent to do so.

If the law were altered so as to place railway receipts on the same footing as bills of lading, and a statutory form of bill of lading were prescribed and made obligatory on the Companies, they would become liable for the proper delivery of the goods to the party entitled under the bill, whether as endorsee or otherwise.

As a consequence of this, the Railway Company would have to take into consideration questions as to irregular and forged endorsements, and in the event of goods being delivered even to an innocent holder for value when a previous endorsee's signature had been forged, the Company would be liable to the right holder whose signature was forged for the goods so delivered

In addition to this, further inconvenience would arise in connection with the exercise by an unpaid consignor of his right of stoppage in transitu.

At present, when a consignor and consignee stand in the relation of unpaid seller and buyer, and before the delivery of the goods the consignor finds out that the consignee is insolvent, the former has a right to stop the delivery of the goods to the consignee; but in the case of a bill of lading, the consignor cannot stop the goods in transitu if the consignee has parted with the bill of lading, and it has passed into the hands of a bonâ fide holder for valuable consideration.

It follows that if railway receipts were turned into bills of lading, questions of the good faith, &c., of the holder would have to be considered when an unpaid consignor attempted to stop goods in transitu.

Whether or not, in the interests of trade, it would be advisable for the Government of India to impose upon Railway Companies the additional risk and responsibility which we have pointed out; it is not for us to express an opinion; but in our opinion the proposal is at least open to the criticisms and objections passed upon it and urged against it in the letters of Mr. Macpherson, and Messrs Morgan, and we think that, as pointed out by Mr. Macpherson, if any alteration of the law takes place in the direction now contemplated, it is essential that it should only apply to consignments above a certain fixed weight or value, otherwise a wide field would be opened for petty frauds on the Railway Companies, and we think that some provision for protecting Railway Companies against forged endorsements should, as suggested by Messrs. Morgan, be introduced into the Bill We prefer to defer giving any more definite opinion until we see the exact terms of the proposed legislation.

GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA RAILWAY.

No. 20.] The object which the Chambers have in view is understood to be to give further facilities to traders in the conduct of their business, and, in as far as it may be possible to secure that object, the Board recognise that the proposal is of a character deserving their support. It is not necessary for the Board to go at present into details as to the manner in which the arrangement suggested might affect the Railway Companies as carriers, but it must be remembered that there are in that respect circumstances which could not be overlooked in any proposed legislation.

From the Board of Directors to the Agent, dated the 11th November 1887.

That with this reservation, and with the understanding that it is not contemplated by means of the proposed legislation to affect unduly responsibilities at present attaching to the Railway Companies as carriers, the Board will be ready to give their best consideration and assistance to any Bill which may be introduced into the Legislative Council on the subject, and which they assume will be proceeded with in the Council in a way to afford the Railway Companies the fullest time for considering it, and representing their views in the matter.

BOMBAY, BARODA AND CENTRAL INDIA RAILWAY.

No. 21.] The change which the Bombay Chamber of Commerce advocates is one which confers certain advantages upon the mercantile communities of the ports of exportation, and it does not appear from the opinion expressed by the Solicitors to the Bombay Chamber of Commerce that the interests of the inland traders, or that the increased risks and responsibilities which would be entailed upon Railway Administrations by the introduction of the proposed change, have been dealt with in connection with the subject.

From the Agent to the Board of Directors, dated the 6th January 1888.

It is pointed out in the correspondence that difficulties would be likely to arise with respect to the stoppage of goods in transit in the case of the loss of railway receipts and with regard to the lien that Railway Administrations now have upon the goods of a consignee who has become insolvent, as well as in connexion with forged endorsements on railway receipts. Delivery without the production of railway receipts would involve the Railway in increased risks, and to insist on the production of railway receipt would often delay delivery, and so block up storage accommodation. This would specially affect the short distance traffic, such as our cotton traffic from Guzerat and Kathiawar, which often arrives at Bombay before the railway receipt can reach the consignee through the post.

The negotiability of bills of lading is doubtless in complete conformity with all existing legislation regarding shipping matters, while the extension of the same principle to railway receipts might necessitate many alterations in law as now affecting Railways; but in the main I agree with the opinion expressed by the Agent, East Indian Railway (copy attached, with copies of opinions of East Indian Railway officers), that if sufficient necessity is shown for the introduction of the proposed change, or the interests of trade and commerce are to be promoted thereby, I would not oppose the introduction of legislation to make railway receipts negotiable, provided that it is accompanied by safeguards to protect Railway Administrations against undue risks and responsibilities.

No. 22.] This subject is one of much importance, and in the opinion of the Board should not be legislated upon without full previous enquiry as to the nature and real extent of the disadvantages to traders and others alleged by the Bombay Chamber of Commerce, with the concurrence of the Bengal Chamber of Commerce, to result from the present status of railway receipts as untransferable and unnegotiable instruments not carrying a title to property in the same way as shipping bills of lading. The Board concur in the view expressed by yourself and the Agent of the East Indian Railway Company to the effect that, if a change in this status is advisable in the interests of trade and commerce, the Railway Companies should not oppose a necessary alteration therein, provided that in any legislation undertaken with a view to this end, the Railways are fairly protected against undue risks and responsibilities, and are not unreasonably hampered in the prompt conduct of their business as common carriers.

From the Board of Directors to the Agent, dated the 17th February 1888.

BHAVNAGAR-GONDAL RAILWAY.

No. 23.] The Traffic Superintendent of this Railway reports that no complaints have been received from merchants or traders of any inconvenience arising from the railway receipt not being a legalised document in the same sense as the bill of lading is, but at the same time he has no doubt that the railway receipt being placed on the same footing in point of law as the bill of lading would be a convenience generally to the trading community, and in this opinion I occur.

From the Manager, dated the 15th December 1887

4. About this time the Secretary of State had under consideration certain claims for compensation preferred by an officer of the army on account of injuries received, and the question of the liabilities and obligations of railways owned by the State was discussed. The opinions of the Legal Advisers of the India Office on this question and on the question of the negotiability of railway receipts were sent to the Government of India for consideration in connection with the Railway Bill which was then under preparation. The opinion on the latter point was as follows —

No. 24.] I do not think there is much legal aspect in this case, though the general considerations which apply to it are important For I do not quite see why the legal responsibility of the Government would be increased by the proposed change as suggested by the Advocate-General; and, if it would be, provision could be made in the proposed legislation for negativing such responsibility

Note by the Legal Adviser of the India Office on bills of lading, dated the 29th June 1887.

The general considerations applying to the case are follows:

The negotiability, &c., of bills of lading was brought about by custom or the law merchant, they being ancient mercantile documents applicable to goods at sea shipped in one bottom, which, if sold, could not be delivered by reason of being on the sea. If the bill of lading was not negotiable, the species of property to which it applied would be locked up, and, in the old sailing days, for long periods.

It may be doubtful whether the existing law as to bills of lading would have grown up and taken root so as to be recognised with judicial sanction in these days of quick voyages. And at all events the principle on which the negotiability of bills of lading is based, viz., that for a long period the goods, and the captain in charge of them, cannot be communicated with, does not apply to railway carriage with telegraphic communication.

However, in the words of Mr Justice Buller in Lickbarrow v. Mason: "In all mercantile transactions, one great point to be kept uniformly in view is to make the circulation and negotiation of property as quick, as easy, and as certain as possible," and if land carriage and water carriage were on all-fours, the proposed legislation might be beneficial.

But, so far from being on all-fours, there are important distinctions applying to them.

In water carriage, to which bills of lading apply, all the goods up to thousands of tons go in one bottom from port to port.

In railway carriage only part of the goods probably can go by each goods train, which would necessitate a separate receipt for each load, giving enormous trouble to the carriers, for a bill of lading is an acknowledgment by the captain of having received the goods on board his ship, and it will be a fraud by the captain to sign a bill of lading if he had not received the goods on board. And it appears to me that it would be improper to interfere with a vendor's rights, at all events until the goods were in actual transit—that is, not whilst they were lying at the railway station to be loaded for transit. For a bill of lading would not apply to goods on a wharf awaiting shipment.

And instead of one bottom carrying the goods, they would possibly have to pass over several systems of rails, the officer at the starting point who gave the receipt having no authority from the Company at the station of delivery.

On the whole, I think, the question requires very careful consideration, and I doubt whether it can be properly dealt with until a system of through booking is established.

I may add that Lord Blackburn, in dealing with this question in his book on the Contract of Sale, says:

"There have been some attempts made to give the same effect to the endorsement of dock warrants, wharfingers' receipts, delivery orders, and similar documents as is given to the endorsement of a bill of lading.

"These documents are generally written contracts by which the holder of the endorsed document is rendered the person to whom the holder of the goods is to deliver them, and in so far they greatly resemble bills of lading; but they differ from them in this respect, that when goods are at sea, the purchaser who takes the bill of lading has done all that is possible in order to take possession of the goods, as there is a physical obstacle to his seeking out the master of the ship and requiring him to attorn to his rights; but when the goods are on land, there is no reason why the person who receives a delivery order to dock warrant should not at once lodge it with the bailee, and so take actual or constructive possession of the goods. There is, therefore, a very sufficient reason why the custom of merchants should make the transfer of the bill of lading equivalent to an actual delivery of possession, and yet not given such an effect to the transfer of documents of title to goods on shore."

5. It was then decided on consideration of these opinions to discuss the question in the Legislative Council on the Railway Bill, and the Chambers of Commerce were so informed on the 1st November 1888. The Statement of Objects and Reasons, which was circulated with the Bill, contained the following remarks on the subject:

Railway Bill: Statement of Objects and Reasons.

No. 25.] Sections 57, 58, and 59.—The first of these sections legalises the existing practice with respect to the disposal of unclaimed property. The second and third of them have been suggested partly by existing practice, partly by the case of Eagleton v. the East Indian Railway Company (8 B. L. R., 581), and partly by the proposal to give railway receipts the same effect as bills of lading.

The proposal to give such an effect to railway receipts has not been adopted in the Bill, because Railway Administrations are understood to be averse to it, and it is not justfied by existing legislation elsewhere.

6. In discussing the Bill, the Chambers of Commerce of Bengal and Bombay wrote as follows on this question:

Bengal Chamber, dated the 7th August 1888.

No. 26.] In this connection, however, I am to invite your attention to my letter of 29th April 1887, in which this Chamber gave its adhesion to the suggestion of the Chamber of Commerce, Bombay, that railway receipts should be placed on the same footing as bills of lading. This question appears to the Committee to be one which might be discussed by such a body as a Railway Conference with great advantage, and they would suggest that the papers submitted to Government by the Bombay Chamber may form one of the subjects to which the attention of the Conference will be invited by Government.

Bombay Chamber, dated the 13th October 1888.

No. 27.] In dealing with the proposal of the Chamber for giving to railway receipts the status of negotiable instruments carrying a title to property conveyed by railways similar to that conferred by bills of lading on goods transported by sea, the "Statement of Objects and Reasons" attached to the Bill says that "the proposal to give such an effect to railway receipts has not been adopted in the Bill, because Railway Administrations are understood to be averse to it, and it is not justified by existing legislation elsewhere." As to whether, and for what reasons, the majority of the Railway Administrations are averse to the proposed change of the law relating to railway receipts, the Committee are not in a position to speak, the latest information at their disposal being conveyed in the Government of India's letter to the Chamber, dated 17th May 1887, when it was stated the question had been submitted to the Secretary of State for discussion with the Boards of Directors of the Indian Railways. The representative of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway, however, expresses himself as strongly in favour of the Chamber's suggestion; and as the Chambers of Commerce of Bengal and Madras have also supported it, the Committee would deprecate the omission of the provision regarding the altered power of railway receipts from the Bill until opportunity has been afforded the Chamber of ascertaining the extent and character of the opposition. That the change is not justified by existing legislation elsewhere is not, in the opinion of the Committee, sufficient ground for rejecting the amendment of the law in India, as the conditions of railway traffic in this country are admittedly widely different from those prevailing in England and Continental Europe. The length of time occupied in the transit of a large portion of the railway traffic in this country renders some means of intermediate finance, as between interior markets and the sea-board, absolutely essential to avoid restriction of trade, and it is impossible to imagine a better basis for it than the mode suggested by the Chamber of giving to railway receipts the same power and effect as bills of lading. The legitimate rights of the consignor and consignee would thereby be effectually safeguarded, while the liabilities of the Railway Administrations would be immensely simplified and diminished. The mere fact of its being an innovation on the existing practice in other countries should not, the Committee respectfully submit, be allowed to stand in the way of the adoption of what the commercial community regard as a much needed reform.

7. The Honourable Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit also wrote:

Sir D. M. Petit, dated the 27th November 1889.

No. 28.] The Chamber of Commerce of Bombay wish to provide about the negotiability of railway receipts as bills of lading. The Great Indian Peninsula Railway and North-Western Railway are in favour of such suggestion. I do not think that any Railway Company can have any possible objection to the same.

It may be mentioned that an unpaid consignor had filed a suit in the Bombay Court of Small Causes against an assignee of a railway receipt who had advanced moneys on the same, and that the Chief Judge of that Court had held that railway receipts are negotiable under section 102 of the Indian Contract Act; but it is understood that an appeal is intended to be preferred to the High Court against this judgment

The Bombay Cotton Trade Association, at their meeting held on the 4th September 1889, passed a resolution on this subject, and it will, I think, be better if I quote it here—

"That, in the opinion of the Cotton Trade Association, the practice of advancing money on railway receipts in the present state of the law is most unadvisable; but as it appears impossible to alter at present the custom of buying produce from the North-West, the Association desires to signify its approval of the action the Chamber of Commerce has taken in requesting Government to legislate for the purpose of rendering railway receipts negotiable instruments, carrying a title to property similar to bills of lading and that the Secretary be requested to prepare a representation to Government in support of the Chamber proposals."

The law which at present exists operates as a source of restraint on the thriving trade of this great country. On the railway receipt in its present form, a trader cannot get as advance on his goods as he can do on a bill of lading, and consequently the money invested in the goods remains locked up until he is able to sell the goods.

From my experience as a merchant, I am of opinion that if the railway receipt be made negotiable, as represented by the Bombay Chamber of Commerce, not only there will be great facility to the trade, but the same will be much developed and increased, for if the receipt will be negotiable, the merchant will be able to obtain advances on his goods and thus, by free circulation of his money, he will be able to invest the money received by him as advances in the purchase of other goods. This will greatly increase the traffic, and the Railway Companies also will thereby derive great benefit.

3. Meanwhile the question had been submitted to a Railway Conference which sat at Simla in the summer of 1888, with the result stated in Resolution No. 110 of the Conference which was as follows:

No. 29] Proposed by Mr. Carter, seconded by Mr. Hanna,—

That, with reference to the proposal of the Bombay Chamber of Commerce to place railway receipts on the same footing as bills of lading, the Conference is of opinion that such a course would increase the responsibility of Railway administrations without any corresponding advantage, the proposed legislation is unadvisable

9. When moving on the 25th October 1888 for leave to introduce the Railway Bill, the Honourable Mr. Scoble stated why the proposal had not been embodied in the Bill, and was followed by the Honourable Sir Charles Elliott:

No. 30.] It may be convenient, in connection with this question of responsibility, to refer to a proposal to give railway receipts the same effect as bills of lading. This proposal has not been adopted. The two classes of documents stand upon an entirely different footing. The principle upon which the negotiability of bills of lading is based, namely, that for a long period the goods, and the captain in charge of them, cannot be communicated with, does not apply to railway carriage with telegraphic communication. Indeed it may be doubted whether, in these days of quick voyages, the law as to bills of lading would ever have come into force. If the law were altered so as to place railway receipts on the same footing as bills of lading, and a statutory form of delivery order were prescribed under which Railway Administrations were subjected to the same responsibilities as shipowners, they would become liable for the proper delivery of the goods to the party entitled under the order, whether as endorsee or otherwise. As a consequence of this, the Railway Company would have to take into consideration questions as to irregular and forged endorsements, and, in the event of goods being delivered even to an innocent holder for value when a previous endorsee's signature had been forged, the Company would be liable to the right holder whose signature was forged for the goods so delivered. In addition to this, further inconvenience would arise in connection with the exercise by an unpaid consignor of his right of stoppage in transitu. At present, when a consignor and consignee stand in the relation of unpaid seller and buyer, and before the delivery of the goods, the consignor finds out that the consignee is insolvent, the former has a right to stop the delivery of the goods to the consignee; but, in the case of a bill of lading, the consignor cannot stop the goods in transitu if the consignee has parted with the bill of lading, and it has passed into the hands of a bonâ fide holder for valuable consideration. It follows that if railway receipts were turned into bills of lading, questions of the good faith and so forth of the holder would have to be considered when an unpaid consignor attempted to stop goods in transitu.

These are among the inconveniences which would result from the adoption of the proposal, and the Government of India has not deemed it advisable to impose this additional risk and responsibility on the railways in the absence of similar legislation on the subject in England.

Sir C Elliott's remarks.

No. 31.] My honourable friend the Law member in his speech has referred to the impossibility of bringing railway receipts under the law which affects bills of lading given by seagoing vessels. It may be worth while to mention in connection with this that section 81 of the Bill proposes to give one very desirable convenience to exporters from this country, in that it facilitates the through booking of goods from India to England, and vice versâ, and will thus help to remove the difficulties which have been met with in carrying out the arrangements which Colonel Conway-Gordon has made between the North-Western Railway and the Hall Line of steamers for the through booking of goods between England and the Punjab. I hope that the encouragement thus given to this system will tend to its development and spread on other Railway Administrations.

10. When moving in Council on the 21st March 1890 that the report of the Select Committee on the Bill be taken into consideration, the Honourable Mr. Scoble again stated his opinion, being supported on this occasion by Sir Alexander Wilson, the representative of the Calcutta mercantile community.

Railway Bill; Further remarks by Mr. Scoble, 21st March 1890.

No. 32.] In connection with this Chapter, I may notice another proposal which has been made, that railway receipts should be given the same effect as bills of lading. This proposal has not been adopted by the Select Committee.

In introducing the Bill, I stated the objections which to my mind stood in the way of the acceptance of such a proposal. One of these was the inconvenience likely to arise in connection with the exercise by an unpaid consignor of his right of stoppage in transitu. A recent case which has been decided by the High Court at Bombay affords a good illustration of this difficulty. A firm at Bijapur sold to a firm in Bombay three parcels of wheat, and received from the purchaser hundis payable at sight for the purchase-money. The railway receipts were thereupon handed to the purchaser, who promptly endorsed them for value to a third party. The hundis were dishonoured on presentation, and the purchasing firm became insolvent. The endorsees of the railway receipts claimed the goods, and actually obtained delivery of a portion of them; the delivery of the residue was stopped on a telegram from the original vendor. The High Court held that the railway receipts were not instruments of title within the meaning of section 108 of the Indian Contract Act, and that the unpaid vendor was therefore not deprived of his right to stop the goods in transit by reason of the endorsement of the receipts to secure a specific advance. The endorsee in this case seems to have been an innocent holder; but it is easy to see what a door would be opened to fraud under a different state of facts; and I am not surprised that a very large majority of the members of the Railway Conference, which assembled at Simla in 1888, came to the conclusion that it was not desirable to give the same legal effect to railway receipts as to bills of lading.

Sir Alexander Wilson's remarks.

No. 33.] A proposal has been brought forward that the Bill should incorporate a provision to give railway receipts the same effect as bills of lading. This proposition has not been adopted, and wisely so, I think, looking to the wide difference between a consignment of goods in wagons passing over, it may be, various lines of railway under different administrations, and a shipment of goods on board a vessel in one port bound to another.

I cannot see that any provision of the kind would have materially benefited the export trade, and certainly not on this side of India, and would have been a departure which did not commend itself to the Railway Administrations, and which does not seem justified by existing legislation elsewhere.

11. While the Bill was still before the Council, the Bombay Chamber of Commerce again wrote to the Government on the subject of railway receipts, the letter being as follows,

From the Bombay Chamber, dated the 11th February 1890

No 34.] In a letter, dated 10th November 1886, this Chamber had the honour to represent to Government the unsatisfactory condition of the existing law relating to railway receipts in India, and expressed the hope that His Excellency the Governor-General in Council might see fit to initiate such legislative action as might be deemed necessary, not only to regulate more definitely the respective rights and liabilities of the public and the various Railway Administrations under these documents, but also to render them transferable and negotiable instruments, carrying a title to property in the same way as bills of lading.

2. The representation, as the Chamber understands, was duly considered by Government, and, further, referred to the discussion of Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India in conference with the Boards of Directors of Indian Railways in London. As to the result of these deliberations, however, the only information which has come to the Chamber was the remark in the Statement of Objects and Reasons attached to the draft Railway Bill for India (1888), that "the proposal to give such an effect (the same effect as 'bills of lading') to railway receipts has not been adopted in the Bill, because Railway Administrations are understood to be averse to it, and it is not justified by existing legislation elsewhere." In reporting to Government on the provisions of the draft Railway Bill, under date of 13th October 1888, the Chamber ventured to express the opinion that these reasons were neither adequate nor sufficient grounds on which to come to a final conclusion regarding such an important question, and the Committee of the Chamber again desire to approach Government in the hope that their proposal may receive further consideration in conjunction with the deliberations now in progress on the new Railway Bill.

3. It is unnecessary to repeat here at length the reasons formerly adduced by the Chamber for soliciting the suggested legislation. I am now directed to say that, in the interval which has elapsed, these reasons have materially gained in strength, and the urgency for legislation has been more clearly demonstrated by the difficulties which traders have experienced, and the unsatisfactory character of the litigation which has taken place with regard to railway receipts. In a recent judgment delivered by the Honourable the Chief Justice of the Bombay High Court and the Honourable Mr. Justice Scott—a copy of which, for convenience of reference, I am directed to annex—any doubt which formerly existed as to whether railway receipts were documents showing title to goods within the meaning of those expressions as used in sections 103 and 108 respectively of the Indian Contract Act is finally settled.

4. The judgment also disposes of the possibility of any custom having grown up or being in existence by which railway receipts could be treated on the same footing as bills of lading, and in so doing concludes with the following words:

"If this be thought by the commercial community to be an unsatisfactory state of the law, it will be necessary, in our opinion, that the desired change should be made by the Legislature."

5. This Chamber, on behalf of the commercial community, begs most respectfully, but emphatically, to repeat that it does consider the present state of the law unsatisfactory, and is strongly of opinion that a change should be effected by legislation. Such legislation, the Chamber would submit, could be shortly and effectually dealt with in the new Railway Bill now under consideration; but should the legal advisers of Government object to this course, my Committee venture to express the hope that His Excellency the Governor-General in Council will be pleased to sanction the required amendment of the Indian Contract Act, or the introduction of a Railway or Inland Carriers Receipts Act.

No. 35.] BOMBAY HIGH COURT.—ORIGINAL SIDE.

Law report referred to in the Chamber's letter.

[Before SIR CHARLES SARGENT, Chief Justice, and MR. JUSTICE SCOTT.]

THE GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA RAILWAY COMPANY versus HANMANDAS RAMKISSEN AND ANOTHER.

This was a reference to the High Court by Mr. Hart, Chief Judge of the Small Causes Court, upon a point of general interest to mercantile men in relation to the liability of a Railway Company as carriers.

The Chief Justice, in delivering judgment, said:—The facts out of which this reference by the Chief Judge of the Small Causes Court arises are fully set out in the case stated by the court. With respect to the third question, whether there was such a delivery to Chinu Deokarn's agent at Bijapur as to deprive the first defendant of his right of stoppage, we agree with the Chief Judge that it must be answered in the negative. There was no actual delivery to the agent of that firm at Bijapur, and the wheat therefore remained in transitu in the hands of the Railway Company until delivery to the consignee—James v. Griffin, 2 M. and W. 632, where Parke, J., says—

"The vendor has a right if unpaid, and if the vendee be insolvent, to retake the goods before they are actually delivered to the vendee, or some whom he means to be his agent to take possession, and keep the goods for him."

It is clear, therefore, that whether the first defendant be regarded as a factor and quasi-vendor, he was entitled to stop the 73 bags before they were delivered by the Company in Bombay.—Feise v. Wray, 3; East and Ireland v. Livingstone, 5, H. L., L. R. With respect to the fourth question, we think there was such a delivery of the 73 bags at the Wari Bunder to second defendant's servant as to determine the first defendant's right of stoppage in transitu. Section 105 of the Contract Act provides that the notice by the vendor to the carrier to stop the goods must be given to the principal in possession at such time, and under such circumstances, that the principal by the exercise of reasonable diligence may communicate it to his servant in time to prevent a delivery to the buyer. It is left in doubt by the case whether the Goods Traffic Inspector received the first defendant's telegram before all the 73 bags had been placed on the carts; but in any case we must assume that it did not arrive in time to prevent the bags being placed with the consent of the railway official on the second defendant's carts hired for the purpose; for it is plain that it was not till the loading the carts had been completed that the Company's servants interfered to prevent the second defendant's servant from removing the carts from the railway compound. Before that the freight for these 73 bags had been paid by the second defendant's servant to the Company, and the railway receipt had also been given up to the Company duly signed by the second defendant's servant. It remains to consider the first and second question as to the effect of the endorsement and delivery by the firm of Chinn Deokarn of the railway receipts to the second defendant as regards the remainder of the 181 bags. In Trikam Panachand v Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway Company, Mr. Justice Farran held that the railway receipts in that case, which are in the same form as those which are issued by the Great Indian Peninsula Railway Company, were not documents of title, being in form simple receipts with a notification that "the Company reserve the right of delivering the goods without the production of the receipt," and therefore not distinguishable from wharfingers' certificates and mates' receipts, which were held not to be documents of title in Bolchaw v. Vaughan & Co., L. R. 10 ch. App. 491, and Laing v. Laden, 17 Eq. 92. However, in Chinulal Fadhay v. the Great Indian Peninsula Railway Company the same learned Judge had under consideration a railway document signed by the Rajputana-Malwa Railway officials in the same form as that of the present goods receipt note, and which is, we are informed, the one in use on all the State Railways, and is somewhat differently worded from the goods receipt in the former cases. It runs thus:

"Received from the consignor the undermentioned goods for conveyance to C, Banda Station, by goods train. Consignee, Chinn Deokarn. Description, 181 bags of wheat. This receipt must be produced by the consignee, or the goods will not be delivered. If he does not himself attend, he must endorse a request for delivery to the person to whom he wishes it made. If the consignment of this railway receipt is relied on one or more times, the endorsement must be a distinct order to deliver to a certain person or firm, and this order must be on a one-anna stamp If more than one order appears on the face hereof, each order must bear a stamp. For conditions of contract, see back —Signature ( )."

The learned Judge expressed the inclination of his opinion that such a goods receipt was an instrument of title within the contemplation of section 103 of the Contract Act; but added that he did not intend to decide the question whether he should have held them to be such without some evidence that they were so treated by merchants and the trade, as he had come to a conclusion on another part of the case which made it unnecessary for him to do so. There can be no doubt, we think, that such a document or endorsement would not have been treated in the English Courts as a document or instrument of title to exclude the vendor's right of stoppage in transitu when the Contract Act came into force in September 1872. The decision of the Exchequer Court in 1846 in Farina v. Home, 16 M. and W. 119, was then in force (see Benjamin on Sales, paragraph 803), by which a delivery warrant signed by a wharfinger, whereby the goods were made deliverable to the plaintiff "or his assignee by endorsement, was held to be" no more than a token of authority to receive "possession." "Blackburn on Sales, page 297," or as Mr. Baron Parke states it—

"Only an engagement by the wharfinger to deliver to the consignee or any one he may appoint, and that until the wharfinger has attorned to the assignee, and agreed with him to hold for him, there was no constructive delivery to the assignee."

That decision was never overruled, and authoritatively determined the legal effect of such documents— at any rate until the passing of the Factors Act of 1877, 40 and 41 Vict, Cap. 39, the language of the goods receipt in question scarcely affords so strong an indication of an authority to the assignee by endorsement to receive the goods as that of the document before the Court of Exchequer, and the document therefore is in no higher degree "a symbol of the goods" so as to exclude the right of stoppage than the wharfinger's certificate in the above case. It may be that both of them would have that character by virtue of section 5 of the English Factors Act of 1877, which, as pointed out in "Benjamin on Sales," page 708, assimilates all documents of title as defined by section 4 of the previous Factors Act 5 and 6 Vict., Cap. 39, to bills of lading for the purposes of defeating the right of stoppage. But that Act has not been extended to India. In Trikam Panachand v Bombay and Baroda Railway Company, Mr. Justice Farran seems to have thought that, in the absence of any definition of a document of title on the Contract Act itself, section 4 of Act 20 of 1844, by which the English Factors Act 5 and 6 Vict., Cap. 39, was extended to India, might be properly accepted as a guide to the meaning of the expressions "documents showing title to goods" or "instruments of title to goods" in sections 108 and 103 of the Contract Act; but it appears to us that, however much that definition might assist in construing the expression "document showing title" in section 108 of the Contract Act, which was virtually substituted for the Factors Act, and is in pari materia, it cannot be properly used in construing the expression "instrument of title" in section 103, which relates to an entirely different subject matter from the Factors Act, and that it is therefore more reasonable to presume that in a matter of such general commercial importance, the framers of the Contract Act intended to leave the term "instrument of title" in section 103 to be construed with reference to the decisions then in force in the English Courts.

The case of the Merchant Banking Company of London v. Phœnix Bessemer Steel Company, 5 Ch. Div., which was decided before that Act came into force, was referred to as bearing on the question. There doubtless the Master of the Rolls, Sir G. Jessel, decided against the right of stoppage, but it was on special grounds (see page 217)—first, on account of the general custom of the iron trade; and second, because he thought he ought to impute to the vendors special notice and special knowledge that the warrant was intended to be used for the purpose of raising money on it, and having that knowledge they issued the document in that particular form. In conclusion, he adds:

"Vendors purposely issued a second document of title with a view to its being issued for a special purpose."

In the present case no custom has been proved, and there are no special circumstances from which the intention could be inferred that the goods receipt should be used for pledging the bags. We must therefore answer the first and second questions in the negative. If this be thought by the commercial community to be an unsatisfactory state of the law, it will be necessary, in our opinion, that the desired change should be made by the Legislature. Costs of this reference to be costs in the case.

12. The Chamber's representation was again supported by the Madras Chamber in the subjoined letter

From the Madras Chamber, dated the 25th February 1890.

No. 36.] I have the honour to state that this Chamber has been afforded the opportunity of seeing the memorial of merchants and others carrying on business in Bombay to the Viceroy and Governor-General, praying that a short Act may be passed declaring railway receipts in India to be instruments or documents of title under the Indian Contract Act, or that other provision may be made, as may be thought expedient, for effecting this object.

This Chamber addressed you on the subject on the 8th December 1886, and it was informed by the Secretary, Public Works Department, Government of India, on the 1st November 1888, that the question would shortly be discussed in the Viceregal Legislative Council, and that the action taken would be published in the proceedings of the Council.

The Chamber is not aware that any action has yet been taken; and as it shares the opinion of the Bombay memorialists that the recognition of railway receipts as instruments of title, or that such documents should be placed on the same footing as bills of lading, is desirable, it entertains the hope that the Government will be pleased to give the subject the consideration which it has for several years seemed to the mercantile community to deserve.

13. Lastly, with a letter dated the 26th February 1890, from Messrs. Chalk, Walker, and Smetham, Solicitors, of Bombay, was received the subjoined memorial from "nearly all" the leading native merchants and commission agents of Bombay in grain, seed, cotton, and opium.

Memorial from native merchants in Bombay.

No. 37.] Your petitioners are grain, seed, and cotton merchants and commission agents trading in Bombay, and in the ordinary course of their business are in the habit of borrowing and advancing large sums of money upon the security of railway receipts, which are assigned over by or to them by simple endorsement, it being the universal practice among the mercantile community of Bombay to treat these receipts as documents of title transferable by endorsement.

2. The question whether this practice is such a sufficient legal assignment as will preclude an unpaid vendor from stopping the goods in transitu has been frequently before the Courts, but the decisions thereon have, until the decision mentioned in paragraph 3 hereof, been of so conflicting a nature (although in the main holding that railway receipts are not documents of title) that your petitioners have been advised to discontinue the practice until legislative provision is made to meet the case.

3. There has been for some time past great uncertainty as to the legal effect and value of these documents in the hands of a merchant advancing money upon them, and this question has recently been carefully considered by the 1st Judge of the Court of Small Causes at Bombay in the case of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway Company v. Hanmandas Ramkissen and Veerjee Hansraj, who was of opinion that in the case brought before him, the railway receipts were documents of title and valid securities in the hands of a bonâ fide holder for value. A copy of his judgment, wherein the authorities are reviewed, the custom of the trade cited, and the subject most ably dealth with, is hereunto annexed for Your Excellency's information and marked A.

4. Upon the application of the unpaid vendor and first defendant in the above-mentioned suit, a case was stated for the opinion of the High Court by His Honour the 1st Judge of the Court of Small Causes at Bombay, the first question therein propounded being "whether the receipt of the Southern Mahratta Railway Company in the form thereunto annexed was, in the circumstances set forth in the said case, an instrument of title within the meaning of section 103 of the Indian Contract Act." The receipt in question was a receipt in the form given in the Public Works Code for use on all guaranteed State Railways, and a copy thereof is hereunto annexed and marked B. A copy of the said case is also hereunto annexed and marked C. The said case came on for argument before the Honourable Sir Charles Sargent, Chief Justice, and the Honourable Mr. Justice Bayley, when they decided that the said railway receipt was not a document of title within the meaning of the section. A copy of the judgment on the said reference is hereunto annexed and marked D.

5. The question of the negotiability of railway receipts has been for several years under consideration by the Bombay Chamber of Commerce, and their views on the matter, as well as those of the Chambers of Commerce of Bengal and Madras, are entirely in favour of receipts being recognised as instruments of title, and put on the same footing as bills of lading, as appears from paragraph 3 of a letter addressed by the Bombay Chamber to the Secretary to the Government of India on the subject of the draft Bill to consolidate, amend, and add to the law relating to railways in India under date the 13th of October 1888. A copy of the said paragraph is hereunto annexed and marked E. The reasons set forth in the said paragraph are entirely in accordance with your petitioner's views, and offer, they humbly submit, strong grounds for the legislative changes herein prayed for. For convenience of reference, your petitioners have also hereunto annexed (marked F) copies of the correspondence upon this subject which was communicated to the public press in Bombay by the Chamber of Commerce, and published in the local newspapers on the 6th day of September 1889.

6. Your petitioners submit that the custom referred to in paragraph 1 of this petition is one of universal acceptance among all merchants in Bombay, and that, therefore, it is of the most vital importance to the whole of the mercantile community that your Excellency in Council should pass a short Act with as little delay as possible, putting the railway receipts of all Railway Companies on the same footing as bills of lading, and declaring them instruments or documents of title under sections 102 and 103 of the Indian Contracts Act., 1872, or make provision for the use of a uniform railway receipt in India that shall come within the said sections of the said Act.

Your petitioners, therefore, pray that a short Act may be passed as soon as possible, declaring the railway receipts of all Railways in India instruments or documents of title under sections 102 and 103 of the Indian Contract Act, or that provision may be made for the use of a uniform railway receipt in India that shall come within the said sections of the Contract Act, or that such other provision may be made as Your Excellency in Council may think expedient or desirable for effectuating the objects of this petition.

The 17th June 1890.—The following letter from Her Majesty's Consul at Jeddah to the Government of India, Foreign Department, is published for general information.

C. C. STEVENS,
Offg. Chief Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

Dated Jeddah, the 14th April 1890.

From—C. G. WOOD, Esq., Her Majesty's Consul at Jeddah,
To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Foreign Department.

I HAVE the honour to inform you that according to Article "7" of the Special Reglement for the pilgrimage season of 1890, a copy of which is herewith enclosed, all Indian pilgrims coming vid Suez being considered as coming direct from India, unless they can show by their papers that they have been living in Egypt or other places in the north for some time, are subjected to 10 days' quarantine in the island of Abu Saad in Jeddah harbour.

As a large number of Indian pilgrims come to the Hedjaz vid Suez after visiting the shrines in Irak, Arabia and Syria, and a few after visiting Europe, it would be advisable to inform them before their departure from Bombay that they should have their passports viséd by Her Majesty's Consuls in those places through which they pass, in order to enable them to obtain free pratique on their arrival at this port.

ARTICLE "7."

Les pèlerins indiens ou malais qui prennent la voie indirecte de Suez pour se rendre au Hedjaz sont soumis à la quarantaine, à moins qu'ils ne puissent prouver à leur arrivée à Djedda, par leurs passeports ou autres documents officiels, qu'ils viennent d'au-delà du Canal de Suez ou qu'ils ont séjourné en Egypte en libre pratique et bonne santé pendant dix jours au moins.

TEXT-BOOKS IN MIDDLE SCHOOLS.

THE subjoined list of text-books, authorised for use in middle schools of which the vernacular is Bengali, is published for general information.

From the date of publication, middle schools of every class, whether maintained or aided by Government or by District Boards, or competing for Government scholarships, are restricted to the use of the books included in this list. Managers of schools will be at liberty to choose out of the list any books that they may prefer for use in the various classes of their schools, subject only to the following conditions:—

(a) The text-books prescribed by this office for the middle scholarship examination of 1892, or by Circle Inspectors for that of 1891, must be read in the first classes of middle schools for those years respectively;

(b) The separate orders prescribing special text-books in sanitary teaching for the different scholarship examinations are still in force.

With these exceptions, the selection of text-books from the authorised list, in every subject of every class, is henceforward left to the unrestricted choice of school managers.

For those subjects in which the two courses correspond, text-books for the first two classes of upper primary schools may be selected from those sanctioned in the list for the third and fourth classes of middle schools.

Authorised lists of text-books in Hindi and Urdu, and also in Uriya, will be published hereafter.

A. CROFT,
Director of Public Instruction, Bengal.

the Governor-General in Council is pleased to make the following rules under the said Act :

1. The time within which amounts deducted from salary, annuity, pension, or gratuity paid by a Local Authority under section 8, sub-section (1) of the Act must be paid to the credit of the Government of India is fixed at one week from the date of payment of the salary, pension, annuity, or gratuity. The payment to the credit of the Government shall be made by remitting the amount to the Collector with a statement giving the following particulars for each person from whom the tax has been realised :

(1) Name.
(2) Period for which the salary, pension, or annuity has been paid.
(3) Amount of salary, pension, annuity, or gratuity paid.
(4) Amount of tax.

2. The return required by section 10 of the Act shall be in Form A hereto appended.

The name of any person who is receiving, at the date of the return prescribed by section 10 of the Act, a salary, pension, or annuity which does not amount to Rs. 300 per annum, or has received during the year ending on that date a gratuity which does not amount to that sum, need not be shown in the return.

3. Any sums, such as payments to regimental mess or band funds or the like, compulsorily stopped from salary by the orders, or with the approval of the Government, shall be deducted from the salary previous to assessment.

A portion of salary withheld in pursuance of an order of a Court is not a sum compulsorily stopped from salary within the meaning of this rule.

4. When a deduction is made from the amount of salary, pension, or annuity liable to assessment on account of a payment made to a Life Insurance Company, the sum deducted shall, if the premium is payable in sterling, be the actual cost of remittance as stated by the assessee ; or, if the assessee is unable to state such actual cost, the equivalent in rupees of the sterling payment calculated at the official rate of exchange for the year in which the deduction is made.

5. A deduction such as is mentioned in the preceding rule must be supported either—

(1) by the original receipt of the Insurance Company ; or
(2) (in the case of a deduction claimed by a servant of the Government or of a Local Authority) by a copy of the same presented, together with the original, to the officer who pays the salary, pension, or annuity, and attested by that officer, who should, after such attestation, return the original ; or
(3) by a duplicate receipt given by the Insurance Company ; or
(4) by a certificate of payment given by the Insurance Company.

In cases (1), (3 , and (4), the receipt or certificate should be returned as soon as the fact of payment is admitted in the due course of audit.

Where the Collector is satisfied that none of the above prescribed documents can be produced without an amount of delay, expense, or inconvenience which, under the circumstances of the case, would be unreasonable, he may accept such other proof of payment of the premium as he may deem sufficient.

6. The amounts exempted from the tax by section (5), sub-section (1), clause (g) of the Act, and referred to in rule 4 of these rules, shall not be deducted from income for the purpose of determining whether the income is liable to the tax, or of determining under Part I of the second Schedule of the Act the rate at which the tax shall be levied.

7. The amount to be assessed under section 24, sub-section (1) of the Act on account of a building occupied by the owner thereof, shall not in any case exceed 10 per cent. of the aggregate income of the owner derived from all sources. It must not, however, be understood from this that a maximum of 10 per cent. of the aggregate income of the owner is to be assumed in every case as equivalent to the letting-value of his house. The letting-value should in all cases be ascertained on the best data available in view of the circumstances of the locality in which the house is situated.

8. After the close of the year of assessment, each Accountant-General or other auditing officer shall submit Return No. I, in the form hereto appended, to such officer as the Local Government may direct.

9. The certificates referred to in the second column of Part III of the second Schedule of the Act shall be in Form B or in Form C hereto appended.

10. Any claim under section 5, sub-section (1), clause (e) of the Act to exemption from the levy of the tax on the interest of securities employed solely for religious or public charitable purposes within the meaning of that clause must be supported by a certificate from the Collector, which shall be in Form D hereto appended.

11. In the case of securities the interest on which is payable by the Government of India, the amount deducted on account of the tax under section 13, sub-section (1) of the Act shall be paid to the credit of the Government on the same day as the payment of the interest is made.

12. In the case of securities the interest on which is not payable by the Government of India, the amount so deducted shall be paid to the credit of the Government within one week from the date on which interest is paid. The person deducting the amount should pay it to the credit of the Government by remitting the amount to the Collector, with a statement showing the following particulars :—

(1) Name of owner.
(2) Description of security.
(3) Number of security.
(4) Date of security.
(5) Amount of security.
(6) Period for which interest is drawn.
(7) Amount of interest.
(8) Amount of tax.

13. After the close of the year of assessment, each Accountant-General and Comptroller shall submit Return No. II, in the form hereto appended, to such officer as the Local Government may direct.

14. In calculating the amount of tax payable, the amount due on a fraction of a rupee shall be neglected. Thus the tax to be realized on a monthly salary of Rs. 166-10-8 is Rs. 4-5-2 only.

15. All public servants are forbidden to make public or disclose, except for the purpose of the working of the Act, any information contained in documents delivered or produced with respect to assessments under Part IV of the second Schedule of the Act, and any public servant committing a breach of this rule shall be deemed to have committed an offence under section 166 of the Indian Penal Code.

All public servants are further enjoined to be most careful to regulate their proceedings as far as practicable in such manner as to prevent information which should be kept secret from becoming known. It should be noted that information of this nature is to be withheld by officers administering the Act from persons in the employment of assessees.

16. Power to make further rules is hereby delegated to the several Local Governments, and no rules already made by Local Governments, under authority given by the Governor-General in Council, shall be deemed to be cancelled by the supersession of any of the notifications quoted in the present notification.

17. Each Local Government will prescribe forms of registers to be maintained by Collectors and others for the purpose of showing the demand and collections of the tax, the various classes of incomes assessed, and the working of the several provisions of the Act.

18. After the close of the year of assessment, each Local Government will submit to the Government of India, in the Finance and Commerce Department, a report on the working of the Act.

19. The following returns in the forms hereto appended will be submitted with that report :—

7. He* shall give correct information about his own name, age and residence, the name and residence of the owner, the place where the cart is ordinarily kept and such other particulars necessary to establish his own identity and that of the owner of the cart as he may be required by the Registering Officer to state at the time of each half-yearly registration.

8. He must carry with him, when plying for hire, the cart license for the then current half-year, and produce it whenever required for the inspection of all Municipal and Police Officers and the hirer of the cart.

Re building of portion of old buildings.

1. Whenever any old masonry building has been taken down to an extent exceeding one-half of such building, such to be measured in cubic feet, the re-building of the portion thereof shall be deemed to be the erection of a new building, and such portion shall be subject to the regulations of the Act and to the bye-laws respecting new buildings.

Construction of outer walls and foundations.

2. Every masonry building shall have its outer walls constructed of brick or other hard and incombustible substance, and the foundation shall be the solid ground, or concrete, or other solid substructure on which the footings shall rest.

Footings to walls.

3. Every person who shall erect a new building shall construct every wall of such building so as to rest upon proper footings. He shall cause the projection at the widest part of the footings of every wall on each side of such wall to be at least equal to one-third of the thickness of such wall at its base, unless an adjoining wall interferes, in which case the projection may be omitted where that wall adjoins. All walls of houses intended to be used as dwelling houses shall have a damp proof course at or above the level of the ground floor.

He shall also cause the diminution of the footings to be in regular offsets, or in one offset at the top of the footings, and he shall cause the height from the bottom of the footings to the base of the wall to be at least equal to two-thirds of the thickness of the wall at its base.

All walls and return walls to be bonded together.

4. In the case of any building exceeding one storey in height, every wall shall be properly bonded and solidly put together with mortar, and no part of such wall shall overhang any part underneath it, and all return walls shall be properly bonded together.

This rule is not intended to apply to cornices or mouldings where otherwise admissible.

Thickness of walls.

5. Every wall and every return wall of such building shall be of such thickness as may be considered safe by the Commissioners having regard to the height of the buildings, the materials of which it is constructed, and the purposes to which it will be put; provided that is shall not be lawful for the Commissioners to require more than is required by Appendix I.

Support of beams and girders.

6. All beams and girders shall be supported by a sufficient breadth of brickwork, stone or other solid substance to secure the stability of such beam or girder.

Roofs, skylights, &c., to be of incombustible material.

7. The roof of all buildings shall be externally covered with some incombustible material. Also every gutter shoot or trough in connection with the roof of such building shall also be constructed of incombustible materials.

8. Every person intending to construct an oil, flour or soorky mill or an iron foundry shall, at the time of applying for sanction to the erection thereof under section 236 or 247, distinctly state that the building or hut will be used for that purpose.

9. Any person obtaining approval to build under section 238 or section 247 shall construct the house or hut in accordance with the plan approved of by the Commissioners. No prosecution under this bye-law shall be commenced without the sanction of the Commissioners.

For new huts built in bustees under Section 247.

10. In any bustee when new huts are being added under section 247 to existing ranges or clusters of huts, they shall be so erected as to block up no existing roads or paths, and so as to keep as far as practicable in line with the existing main lines of huts which are to be taken as directing lines In no case shall the roadway left between two new huts, or between a new hut and an existing hut, be less than nine feet in width.

11. If new ranges of huts are being erected they shall be built in regular lines with a road or path of a minimum breadth of nine feet between every two lines. The direction of the lines will be determined by the Commissioners in accordance with the position of the land, the preference being given to footpaths running due north and south.

12. Any road as above terminating in a cul de sac shall have a sufficient space at the end not less than 15 feet in width to enable a conservancy cart to turn round.

13. Such roads shall remain private property, but shall be kept open for the passage of conservancy carts, without thereby conveying any right of property in them to the Municipality.

* The two immediately preceding bye-laws which have already been confirmed are :—

5. When loading or unloading goods in streets which admit of the passage of two carts abreast, the carter shall rest his cart alongside of the footpath with one of its wheels touching the curb stone.

6. He shall light his lamp as soon as it becomes dark and obey all reasonable orders of the Police on duty.

14. No new huts shall be erected at a greater distance than 100 feet from the nearest part of one of the above roads unless otherwise specially sanctioned by the Commissioners.

15. The space between the walls of any two new huts or of any new hut and any adjacent existing hut or building shall not be less than three feet for ventilation. But this rule will not apply to two or more huts built in continuation and composing one "bari."

16. Every new hut which may be built abutting on a road or footpath, whether public or private, shall be so built as not to project on the road or footpath, and also shall be so constructed as not to allow rain-water from its roof to fall upon or injure the same.

17. No new huts shall be erected unless sufficient privies have been provided to allow of at least one privy for common use to every 100 residents.

18. By section 247 every new hut must have a plinth at least two feet above the level of the centre of the nearest public road, but this will not suffice unless the ground on which it stands is also sufficiently raised to admit of surface drainage.

19. Such surface drains may be required by the Commissioners for the drainage of all new huts as the circumstances of the bustee and the position of the nearest sewer may render practicable.

20. When any new drain has to be constructed for the benefit of any hut or huts, the owners of which are tenants-at-will, notice will be served on the owner of the land, and if the drain is constructed by the Commissioners in default, he will be charged with the cost thereof, but if such drain fall into subsequent disrepair after construction, the owner of the hut or huts for whose benefit the drain was constructed shall be charged with the cost of its repair.

21. Every person who re-builds the sides and roof of any hut shall apply to the Commissioners for approval thereof under section 247.

(f) Regarding ventilation and the extent to which space must be left for the free circulation of air as required by the provisions of section 243 of Act II (B.C.) of 1888.

1. With respect to masonry buildings which are to be newly erected on any site previously unbuilt upon, the following provisions shall have effect, namely:—

The foundation of any such building shall not be constructed on any site which has been filled up with street or other refuse, unless such refuse is either properly removed or unless a period of 20 years has elapsed from the date when the refuse was deposited.

Provided that, with the consent of the General Committee, the period of 20 years may be reduced to not less than 10 years if the state of the soil after investigation is found to be such as to admit of it.

2. No new masonry building which abuts on a street of a less width than 40 feet shall be erected to a greater height than two storeys without the special consent of the Commissioners in meeting.

3. Every such building intended to be used as a dwelling shall be so constructed that the whole of at least one side of every room thereof shall either be an external wall or abut on an interior open space or on a verandah. Such interior open space shall have an area equal to not less than one-fourth of the aggregate floor area of all the rooms abutting thereon, and shall not be in any direction less than 6 feet across. Such external wall shall, where it faces a street of less than 16 feet in width, have between it and the boundary line of the owners' premises an open space of not less than 2 feet in width. At the sides it may be attached to the adjacent premises, but if not so attached at the sides and in every case at the back, it shall have a space of 4 feet along the whole side of the building between it and the boundary line of the owners' premises or between it and the inner edge of the boundary wall, if that boundary line is a wall. And every open space, whether exterior or interior, required by this clause, shall be and be kept free from any erection other than a boundary wall and shall be open to the sky, and shall be and be kept open to access from each end thereof.

6. Every such room shall have a clear superficial area of not less than 80 square feet.

7. Every such room shall be ventilated by means of doors or windows which open directly into the external air or into a verandah and have an aggregate opening equal to not less than one-fifth of the superficial area of the side of the room which faces an open space.

8. The Commissioners may exempt from the provisions of clauses (e) or (f) any particular building or class of buildings to which the rules or any particular rule may appear to them to be inapplicable.

(g). Drainage, cess-pools, privies, cow-houses and stables.

1. No privy connected or unconnected shall be constructed underneath a dwelling room.

2. All connected privies and urinals shall be constructed, so that one wall at least shall be an outer wall of the building.

3. All soil pipes shall be carried outside the building and ventilated by means of pipes leading the foul gases above the highest point of the building.

4. Separate cisterns shall be constructed for connected privies. No tap or draw-off shall be affixed to any pipe between the cisterns and the privy or urinal.

5. All waste pipes and overflow pipes of cisterns shall terminate in the open air, and be cut off from all direct communication with drains.

6. The privy room shall be thoroughly ventilated and well lighted by windows opening directly into the external air or into a verandah.

No public latrine or depôt shall be closed without the sanction of the Commissioners in meeting.

FOR BURNING CORPSES AT THE BURNING GHATS.

1. The Sub-Registrar of every municipal burning ghât shall live in the immediate vicinity of the ghât, and shall cause a board, containing his name and official designation, to be placed in some conspicuous portion of his dwelling-house.

2. Every corpse brought to a burning-ghât, without being accompanied by a certificate in the form prescribed in section 190, Act II (B.C.) of 1888, shall be examined forthwith by the Sub-Registrar, without touching the corpse, who, upon being satisfied that death has resulted from natural causes, shall enter, without fee, in the register kept for the purpose, the particulars specified in the abovementioned form, every such entry being made in order from the beginning to the end of the book. When a corpse is accompanied by a certificate from a Registrar or Medical Officer, the Sub-Registrar shall file such certificate, and then permit the corpse to be burnt.

3. If the Sub-Registrar has any reason to suspect that death has not resulted from natural causes, he shall send immediate intimation thereof to the nearest police station, and in the meantime withhold permission to have the corpse burnt. Where there is no reason for such suspicion, the corpse shall be burnt within four hours after its arrival.

4. The Sub-Registrar shall see that no corpse, or portion of a corpse, shall on any account be allowed to be thrown into the river. He shall take particular care that no corpse, or portion of a corpse, except the navel, shall remain with ut being completely reduced to ashes, or be removed in any other condition. The charge to be made for the burning of a body will be on a scale laid down by the Commissioners.

5. The Sub-Registrar shall submit to the Health Officer a weekly return every Monday of all deaths registered at the ghât. This return shall contain the particulars specified in schedule 11 of Act II (B.C.) of 1888, and shall be accompanied by the certificates granted by the several Registrars or medical men during the week separately arranged in different bundles according to the several wards to which they relate.

6. The Sub-Registrar shall be very careful to see that all the belongings of a corpse, such as clothes, mats, bed and bedding, &c, brought with the corpse, are burnt, and none of the afore-said things shall on any account be allowed to be removed from the ghât by the Domes or any other person. This prohibition shall not apply to any shawl or other valuable apparel brought with dead bodies.

7. Corpses may be burnt both during the day and night, but the Sub-Registrar in charge of the ghât shall see that the ashes and sweepings are removed daily, and that the burning ghât is always kept clean.

8. The Sub-Registrar shall allow persons to burn the corpses of their friends and relatives, each according to the rites of his religion, without any interference.

9. No child or fœtus is allowed to be buried on the riverside.

10 The Domes in charge are strictly prohibited to drink spirituous liquors within the burning-ground enclosure, or to be in a drunken state when on duty. The Sub-Registrar shall see that this rule is strictly enforced. He shall also remove from the burning-ghât all persons who are drunk or disorderly.

11. All persons connected with the burning-ghât must be civil and attentive to those who come there to have dead bodies burnt.

13. The contractor, who supplies the necessaries for burning corpses, shall not be allowed to charge more than the rates specified below.

14. The Brahmin shall not demand any fee, gratuity or reward other than that authorized by the Commissioners for the performance of the necessary religious rites, and it shall be his duty to attend immediately on being sent for at all hours of the day or night, and to officiate as priest and cause the performance of the ceremony, and he shall be considered to be a servant of the Commissioners for the purpose of this rule.

15. The Brahmin shall on no pretence enter within the walled enclosure of the burning-ground, except when called by the relatives of deceased persons to officiate as priest, nor shall he remain therein after his services are completed.

16. Should the Brahmin demand any fee, reward or gratuity of any kind whatever in excess of the fee fixed in the tariff, or enter the enclosure except when sent for, or remain therein after his services have been completed, or after he has been required by the Sub-Registrar or other officer of the Municipality to quit the same, or fail to attend when sent for, he shall be liable to dismissal at the discretion of the Commissioners and to be ejected from the burning-ground. Provided always that no person coming to burn a corpse will be prevented from bringing with him his family priest should he prefer to have the cremation ceremony performed by him. In such a case, however, the party who brings his own priest to the burning-ground shall be bound to allow the Brahmin his usual fee.

17. The contractor shall at all times keep on hand a sufficient supply of fuel and the other necessary articles named in the tariff; should he fail to do so, or neglect, or refuse to supply the same at any hour of day or night, or fail to keep his shop open at all times for the purpose of supplying the same, or use false or short weights, or supply inferior or unsuitable articles or create any disturbance within the limits of the Commissioners' lands, his license shall be cancelled, and he shall be summarily ejected from the land and be further liable to criminal prosecution as a trespasser.

18 Persons coming to the ghât for burning dead bodies shall be bound to purchase all the articles named, and the quantities specified in the tariff, from the contractor. But they will be at liberty to provide themselves with whatever else they may require for cremation, as also all the articles therein named but in excess of the quantities specified in the tariff, or, when the contractor fails to supply them, from wheresoever they like; and the contractor shall not on any account interfere with persons bringing articles for burning dead bodies from outside.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

A Dictionary of the Economic Products of India.

BY DR. GEO. WATT, C.I.E,

Reporter on Economic Products.

Published under the authority of the Government of India in the Revenue and Agricultural Department.

The first two volumes of this work are now ready for issue, and intending subscribers are invited to register their names with the Superintendent of Government Printing, Calcutta.

The Dictionary is intended to deal with the pr ducts of India—animal, vegetable, and mineral; each product being treated after a uniform plan, the paragraphs of which give the scientific, vernacular, and European names; habitat or source; history; properties and uses, both chemical and industrial; trade statistics; markets, &c. The work is arranged alphabetically according to scientific nomenclature, but commercial and important vernacular names are also given as cross references so that little difficulty need be experienced in finding the account of a product even when its scientific name is unknown to the reader.

An important feature of the Dictionary consists in the fact that derived information is in every instance given under quotation marks, and with a reference to the original publication. Numerous contributions have, however, furnished the results of new discoveries, and confirmed the vernacular names; so that the Dictionary is not only a complete compilation of published information, but has been brought abreast of the most recent inventions and discoveries.

Volume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 559 royal pages; Volume II embraces the letter C in 689 pages; Volume III is in course of preparation, and will contain the letters D, E, F, and G. The whole work will, it is expected, be completed in six volumes by 1891; but a seventh volume may also be issued consisting of an index to all the vernacular and other names contained in the Dictionary; and this as a work of reference, it is hoped, may prove of considerable value.

The price to subscribers will be in India Rs. 30 and in England 2 guineas, payable in advance, for the complete set An extra charge for packing and postage will be made for the set—in India, at 8 annas per volume, and for England at 2 rupees 6 annas per volume.

For copies bound in half calf or half morocco, Rs. 6 and 8 shillings respectively will be charged extra for the whole sets.

 No copies will be issued to non-subscribers till the work is complete, and no single volume will be sold separately. The price to non-subscribers will be Rs. 45 in India, and 3 guineas in England, exclusive of packing and postage.

RESOLUTION ON THE ANNUAL REPORT ON THE LUNATIC ASYLUMS IN BENGAL FOR THE YEAR 1889.

RESOLUTION.

MEDICAL.

Darjeeling, the 6th June 1890.

READ—

Report on the Lunatic Asylums in Bengal for the year 1889.

Read again—

Report for 1888 and the Resolution recorded upon it.

The Lieutenant-Governor is much indebted to the Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals for the admirable punctuality with which this report has been submitted. Its bulk has slightly increased, but it has been compiled with much care, and His Honour would have been sorry to lose any of the suggestions and criticisms that it contains.

2. The population of the five lunatic asylums in Bengal has increased in the year under report. There were 957 persons detained in them on the 1st January, and during the year 225 were admitted and 22 readmitted, giving a total of 1,204 persons treated. This is the largest total that has yet been attained. The discharges numbered only 130 and the deaths 87, so that on the 31st December 1889 there was a population of 987. The daily average of patients was 972·63 as compared with 932·8 in 1888, and the percentage of recovery on the daily average strength rose from 7·18 in 1888 to 9·45 in 1889. At Dacca and Cuttack further accommodation for the inmates of the asylums has already been provided, and a proposal is now under consideration for the enlargement of the institution at Berhampur.

3. In a series of interesting paragraphs which have been illustrated by full statistics, Dr. Hilson has again entered on the troublesome question of the large increase in the criminal population of Bengal asylums, and has pointed out that while admissions have not been excessive in the past year, there have been very few discharges. The criminal lunatics in asylums in Bengal at the end of 1889 numbered 440 as against 276 in 1879 and 363 in 1884, an increase of 59·42 per cent. in ten years, or 21·21 in five. The Inspector-General is of opinion that this is due in part to the insufficient relief given by the rules framed by the Committee appointed in 1888 to enquire into this question. Dr. Hilson's remarks in these paragraphs will be submitted to the Committee for their opinion, but the Lieutenant-Governor thinks it too early to come to any definite conclusion on the effect of the system which they have introduced, and would be unwilling to modify it except on very strong reason being shown. In the meantime, however, the comparison which Dr. Hilson has instituted between the figures he has obtained of the proportion of criminal lunatics admitted to the asylums of other provinces shows that the proportion in Bengal is far higher than in any of those provinces, and His Honour would be glad if the Inspector-General would follow up the question and ascertain in what respect the rules of admission and discharge of criminal lunatics in other parts of India differ from those in force in Bengal.

4. The difficulty of classifying the different forms of insanity has not been removed by the new nomenclature given by the College of Physicians of London, and it is clear that uniformity of classification will not be secured until some arbitrary definition of the various types of insanity is prescribed. The figures that are dependent on the new nomenclature are consequently useless, and the inconsistencies noticed by the Governor-General in Council in the report of 1887 still exist. Dr. Hilson has already dealt with the subject fully in his report for the year 1888, and has shown how impossible it is, under the present conditions, to place any reliance on the returns made on this subject. As far as can be ascertained, the use of intoxicating drugs is as potent a cause of insanity as ever, no fewer than 89 admissions being traced to this cause.

5. The figures and paragraphs in which Dr. Hilson has dealt with the sickness and mortality in these asylums form perhaps the least satisfactory portion of the report. It is impossible to compare the figures of sickness with those of previous years owing to a change which has been made in the method of preparing the returns; but there are reasons to suppose that the rate of admissions to hospital was generally higher than in 1888, and the daily average number of sick, 69·55, is high. The mortality rose from 7·93 in 1888 to 8·94 in 1889, and this rise is largely due to the heavy death-rate in the asylums at Patna and Berhampur, and the Lieutenant-Governor notices the increased number of deaths in these two asylums with much regret. In Patna it is suggested that the dampness of the wards in connection with the repairs may have had something to do with its unhealthiness, and at Berhampur the Inspector-General attributes it to the defective sanitary condition of the asylum, and to some extent to overcrowding during the year. In regard to the latter asylum, Sir Steuart Bayley hopes that the proposals now under the Superintendent's consideration for remedying the defects that have been pointed out will be put before Government in a practical form with the least possible delay, and that every effort will be made to prevent a recurrence of the lamentable epidemic of the past year.

6. Had it not been for four escapes from the Dullunda Asylum, the record of such incidents would have been a very good one in the year under report. The Lieutenant-Governor fully agrees with the remarks made by the Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals on the subject of accidents and escapes in asylums, and hopes that increased attention to the classification and segregation of violent lunatics may have the effect of diminishing their number and their seriousness.

7. The total expenditure on the asylums was Rs. 79,163-15-8 against Rs. 74,067-8-1 in 1888, showing an increase of Rs. 5,096-7-7, which is said to be due to the increased number of patients treated, and to the comparatively high price of food. The expenditure on account of public works rose from Rs. 6,668-14-4 in 1888 to Rs. 10,224-6-2 in 1889, owing to certain additions and alterations in the Patna and Cuttack Asylums, and to the quadrennial repairs of the buildings at Berhampur. The figures given of receipts and expenditure under the head of Manufactures are not satisfactory. The total credits show a surplus over the total debits of only Rs. 3,491-13-8. The Lieutenant-Governor would be glad to receive detailed proposals for improving the position of the keepers at Patna and Berhampur; it should be shown how the necessary expenditure could be met by reductions in other directions.

8. His Honour is glad to see the favourable terms in which the Inspector-General acknowledges the general efficiency of the Superintendents and their subordinates in the discharge of their duties.

9. The European Asylum at Bhowanipur is, as usual, dealt with in a separate series of paragraphs at the end of the report. The past year was an uneventful one. The population was slightly smaller than in the previous year, and the proportion of recoveries among the patients showed a serious diminution, due, it is said, to the admission of a larger number of females during the year. The Superintendent reports that they are found to suffer more frequently than males from the chronic and incurable forms of insanity. The asylum has been financially well managed, the increase in expenditure being more than covered by the increase in the receipts from paying patients, and the expenditure debitable to Government has been proportionately reduced. The health of the inmates was excellent, and the Lieutenant-Governor has no doubt that the commendation that is bestowed by the Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals on the general management of the asylum has been well deserved.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of this Resolution, together with a copy of the report, be submitted to the Government of India, Home Department.

Ordered also that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to the Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals, Bengal, for information.

Ordered also that the Resolution be published in the Calcutta Gazette.

The Report for 1888 and the Resolution recorded thereon.

The operations against the hill tribes beyond the frontier, undertaken during the cold weather of 1889, resulted in the establishment of a new permanent post at Lungleh in the Lushai country and two new temporary outposts, one at Lungsin, on the new road between Demagri and Lungleh, and the other at Jourmarong up the river Changree. As 200 men were required to garrison Fort Lungleh, two temporary outposts, Ohipoom and Khagrasurry, had to be abolished, and a third, Palitye, could not be occupied up to the end of 1889.

2. The sanctioned strength of the Frontier Police during 1889 was the same as in the previous year, namely 539. The force was 45 under strength at the close of the year, against 18 in 1888 and 19 in 1887; and of the actual strength of 494 men, 31 were unpassed recruits. A recruiting party was formed, and it was arranged that it should proceed to Chumparun to enlist 70 men to fill up existing and expected vacancies. The party could not, however, leave the district till the beginning of the current year, as most of the men comprising it had to be deputed to Lungleh to complete the sanctioned strength of that post.

3. Owing to the importance of the duties on which the men of the force were engaged, none of them could be collected at head-quarters on the 1st June for the purpose of the usual drill instruction. The men stationed at Ruma, Demagri and Lungleh, however, were put through company drill, manual firing, bayonet exercises, and position and squad drill as usual, and the 31 unpassed recruits are being taught drill daily at Rangamati. Owing to unavoidable circumstances the majority of the Frontier Police could not go through the customary course of firing practice in the year. One hundred and eighteen men stationed at Rangamati, Ruma and Demagri did some target practice, but there was no European officer available to superintend the firing at Ruma. At the remaining posts there are no ranges, and consequently nothing could be done in this direction.

4. The Lieutenant-Governor regrets to learn that the experience of the past year tends to prove that the privilege of free passes by railway and steamer which has been granted to men who wish to rejoin the force after long leave in Nepal is not appreciated, and does not operate as an inducement to such men to return. His Honour awaits the special report on the subject which has been promised by the Commissioner.

5. Despite the very arduous duties which have fallen to the lot of the Frontier Police during the past year, and the number of admissions to hospital which were the direct result of wounds or ailments resulting from the severity of the work the men had to perform, the total admissions to hospital and the rate of mortality have not increased. The daily average number of sick in hospital and the average number of days spent in it by each patient are higher than last year, but the increase is not so great as might well have been expected. The figures below give a comparative statement for the last three years—

Deaths	14	27	26
Admissions into hospital ..	2,361	2,609	2,153
Daily average of sick	52	53	67
Average number of days spent by each patient	7·5	7·7	8·5

The newly-opened hospital at Lungleh admitted 648 patients during the last eight months of the year; but as a considerable number of these were suffering from wounds and ulcers, the general health of the force at Lungleh may be held to have been satisfactory.

6. Imported coolies from the Sonthal Pergunnahs were employed during the year in clearing jungle and making roads. It speaks well for the treatment they experienced at the hands of the local officers that a large number of the former gang should have returned. They did excellent work, and appeared to be fully satisfied with the conditions under which they were required to perform it.

7. There were no changes in the distribution of the Civil Police during the year. They continued to do the usual simple duties which have been entrusted to them in the absence of a staff of peons and chuprasis in the hill tracts, and were also employed on some miscellaneous work in connection with the Lushai Expedition.

8. In paragraph 20 of the Report, a detailed account is given of the duties performed by the Frontier Police in connection with the operations in the Lushai country. This is a matter which will be dealt with in the Resolution reviewing the Administration Report of the Chittagong Hill Tracts for the past year. The Lieutenant-Governor desires, however, to record his high appreciation of the good services rendered by the force and of the excellent work done by it on many important occasions. Sir Steuart Bayley is fully alive to the arduous and responsible duties entailed on the men in consequence of the disturbed state of the frontier, and he is glad to observe that the force has always been found to be equal to the task imposed on it, and able to maintain its reputation as a thoroughly efficient body.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to the Commissioner of the Chittagong Division for information.

Ordered also that the Resolution be published in the Calcutta Gazette.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

C. C. STEVENS,
Offg. Chief Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

RESOLUTION ON THE ANNUAL REPORT OF THE BOTANIC GARDENS FOR THE YEAR 1889-90.

FINANCIAL DEPARTMENT—MISCELLANEOUS.

Darjeeling, the 14th June 1890.

READ—

The Annual Report of the Botanic Gardens for the year 1889-90.

Dr. King's report, which will as usual be published in the Gazette, gives an interesting account of the work done during the past year. The gardens have been maintained in a high state of efficiency, the herbarium in particular has been especially attended to, and organised exploration in Burma and Assam has added to it some valuable collections. Under the recent order of the Government of India this exploration will be extended. The control of Indian botanical operations has been centralised in the Calcutta Gardens, and the Superintendent has been appointed Director of the Botanical Survey of India. The grants promised by the Administrations of Burma and Assam will enable collections to be made on a larger scale and more continuously. As this work will constitute a separate Department, it has been ordered that in future years a separate report should be submitted on the subject.

2. During the year Dr. King issued a monograph on jack-fruits, oaks and chestnuts of the Indo-Malayan region. This forms the second volume of the Garden annals. The third and concluding part of his monograph of the genus Ficus has lately been issued. Dr. Prain has also published several important papers which are described in the Superintendent's Report.

3. The thanks of the Lieutenant-Governor are due to Dr. King, and to his able Assistant, Dr. Prain, for the very thorough and successful discharge of their duties throughout the year.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of this Resolution, and of the Report, be submitted to the Government of India, in the Revenue and Agricultural Department, for information.

Ordered also that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to the Superintendent of the Botanic Gardens for information.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

H. J. S. COTTON,

Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

No. 17G, dated Seebpore, the 14th May 1890.

From—BRIGADE SURGEON GEORGE KING, M.B., LL.D., F.R.S., C.I.E., Superintendent, Royal Botanic Garden, Calcutta,

To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Financial Department.

I HAVE the honour to submit herewith the one hundred and third Annual Report of the Botanic Gardens, Calcutta and Darjeeling.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE ROYAL BOTANIC GARDEN, CALCUTTA, FOR THE YEAR 1889-90.

No new work of much importance was carried out in the garden during the year, and the attention of the staff was chiefly devoted to the maintenance, in as high a state of efficiency as possible, of the various departments of the garden. The display of orchids was by far the finest that has been seen in the garden since I took charge of it nineteen years ago. This improvement is due partly to the great recent extension of correspondence and interchange with Collectors, both in India and outside its borders, and partly to improvements in our conservatories and in our methods of cultivation. The number of tropical South American orchids in the collection is steadily increasing; and our accessions have been obtained for the most part by exchange for indigenous species. Much labour and material have been expended on the roads within the garden. It is, however, a matter of great regret that the new road leading to the garden along the river bank remains still incompleted by the Department of Public Works. The completion of this road would greatly increase the number of visitors; for there is no doubt that the crowded condition of the present route through the narrow bazars of Howrah, Ramkristopore and Seebpore acts as a deterrent to many. The last of the disputes as to boundaries of the garden having, by the advice of the Legal Remembrancer, been settled by compromise, it only now remains to prevent the recurrence of any encroachments in future by the erection of a proper boundary fence. Estimates for this work are understood to be in preparation by the Executive Engineer in charge of the Workshop Division.

2. Economic plants.—A considerable correspondence regarding plants of economic interest of various sorts forms part of the regular work of the Superintendent. During the past year there has been no diminution of this. And the issues of economic plants themselves to Government officers and to others have been considerable. The cheap and efficient extraction of rheea fibre still remains an unsolved problem; and I am informed by Colonel Cadell, v.c., Chief Commissioner of the Andamans, that the working of the French machine so generously presented to the Settlement there by Sir Walter deSouza has not hitherto been very successful. A process involving the use of very simple machinery is understood to be under trial by private enterprise in Bengal; but, with what promise, I have not yet heard. The cultivation of the species of plantain which produces the fibre known as Manilla Hemp is receiving a patient and extended trial under Colonel Cadell's fostering care in the Andamans; and I trust the result may prove favourable. The use of Sabai, Bhabur or Babui grass, which was first suggested as a good raw material for paper-making in the annual reports of this garden, has now become fairly established; and large quantities are regularly purchased by the various paper mills in Northern India. As yet, however, this fibre does not appear to form an article of export.

3. Herbarium.—From a scientific view the collection of dried and named plants is the most important feature in a Botanic Garden. But it is the feature which has the least amount of interest for the general public. Very few of even the most regular visitors to this garden have ever been inside the building in which the Calcutta Herbarium is housed, and they know little of the extent and importance of the collection. It may not be out of place therefore to give a brief account of its recent progress. Up to the year 1882, the Herbarium was crowded in a small and totally insufficient building. During the late Sir Ashley Eden's tenure of office as Lieutenant-Governor, an admirable new structure, modelled to some extent on the new Herbarium building at Kew, was erected in the garden. At the time when the mounted collection was removed from the old into this new building it was accommodated in 93 cabinets. It now fills 186 cabinets, uniform in size with the former 93; and the number of specimens is estimated at considerably more than half a million. And there is, over and above, a very large number of specimens in boxes and open shelves which have not yet been examined or named. Fresh consignments of specimens are continually arriving; and, in view of the recent orders of the Government of India for the botanical exploration of Burma and Assam, for the centralization (on the recommendation of the authorities at Kew) of Indian botanical operations in the Calcutta garden, and for the appointment of its Superintendent as Director of the Botanical Survey of India, accessions at a still increased rate are inevitable. The treatment of the material thus received involves not a little mechanical labour, and an amount of critical botanical work of which none but an expert can form any just idea. Specimens, on arrival, have to be accurately ticketed and to be laid out on sheets of paper for being mounted. That is mechanical work, and is to a large extent done by comparatively unskilled labour, under supervision of course. But, after having been mounted and poisoned, the specimens have to be arranged according to natural families, and finally referred to their genera and species. This is botanical work, and it can be done only by a skilled botanist. Moreover, it can be done quickly and accurately only by a botanist of experience. It takes many years to acquire such experience when a Flora so varied and extensive as that of India has to be dealt with, comprising as it does more than 14,000 species of flowering plants, to say nothing of the still more numerous flowerless species. Several specimens of each species are usually received in every gathering, and these are disposed of in the following way. One or more is incorporated in the general Herbarium, while the duplicates are distributed to other Herbaria, either in India or in Europe. The distribution of named specimens of Indian plants to the great Herbaria located at the centres of botanical science in Europe is much appreciated by European botanists. The working of this on any considerable scale has, however, been possible only for the past three years, during which time I have had the advantage of the services, as Curator of the Herbarium, of Dr. D. Prain, who is at once an accomplished botanist and an energetic man. But, even with Dr. Prain's help, the work is getting very heavy, and it may be necessary before long to apply for the services of yet another botanist. During the year under review the following named specimens have been issued :—

On the other hand, 6,060 specimens have been received from various contributors, amongst whom the chief are the Director of Kew, the Director of the Botanic Garden, Singapore, the Curator of the Museum at Perak, Mr. Curtis, of the Penang Forest Department, Messrs. J. Sykes Gamble, Gustav Mann and W. A. Talbot, of the Indian Forest Department. Dr. Prain has also, in connection with the botanical survey, collected 808 plants. The determination and description of hitherto undescribed species is a very important part of herbarium work, eliciting, as it does, whatever botanical acumen and sagacity a man may possess. A considerable number of new species have been described during the year. As regards publications, a monograph by the Superintendent, of the Jack-fruits, Oaks and Chestnuts of the Indo-Malayan region has been issued during the year. This forms the second volume of the Garden Annals, and is illustrated by 104 quarto figures, drawn by the garden artists, and lithographed mostly at the Government School of Art. The third and concluding part of the Superintendent's monograph of the genus Ficus has also been issued; and to this is appended a most important memoir by Dr. D. D. Cunningham, F.R.S., on the mode of fertilization in one of the species. Dr. Prain has published a most interesting paper on new species of Pedicularis, and another on the Flora of the Laccadive Islands; and he has prepared, with reference to a suggestion of the Agricultural Department of the Government of India, papers on the Non-indigenous Element in the Andamans' Flora and on the Flora of Diamond Island. He has besides elaborated a large and important monograph of the difficult and extensive genus Pedicularis. This is at present passing through the press, and will soon be published in the third volume of the Garden Annals.

Botanical collections in Burma and Assam.—The Government of India, in the Agricultural Department, having made over to the garden the sum of Rs. 1,000 for the purpose of collecting specimens in Burma and Assam, I was enabled to do more than usual in both these provinces. In Burmah a native Collector was sent into the Shan Hills, and a good many interesting specimens were obtained. The country was still, however, rather too unsettled for very successful collecting. Dr. Prain personally visited Diamond Island, the Andaman Islands, and also the Great Coco and Table islands which lie to the north of that group, and which were previously botanically unknown. Dr. Prain secured good collections in all these localities, and, as already stated, he has prepared some results of these visits for publication. In Assam, the exploration grant was expended in maintaining a native collector in the Aka Hills, under the supervision of Mr. Penny. The collector was, however, unable to penetrate far into the Aka country. A Eurasian collector was also subsidised in Cachar.

5. Library.—The library has been entirely rearranged; many tracts and small memoirs, hitherto uncatalogued, have been incorporated; and a fresh catalogue has been prepared by Dr. Prain. A large number of volumes have also been rebound, and a few new books have been acquired.

6. Interchange of plants and seeds.—From the distribution lists attached as appendices to this report, it will be seen that the issues of packets of seeds during the year amounted to 3,619 as against 2,075 for the previous year; and that no fewer than 58,901 living plants were distributed, as against 31,183 during 1888-89. Both plants and seeds were issued mostly for public purposes. Sales to private persons of plants which are easily obtainable from private nurseries are not encouraged, as it is not desired to interfere with commercial enterprise. Packets of seeds to the number of 1,282 and 13,392 living plants were received during the year, both numbers being thirty per cent. in excess of those of last year.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE LLOYD BOTANIC GARDEN, DARJEELING.

7. Mr. W. A. Kennedy was in charge of the Botanic Garden at Darjeeling for nine months of the year. During the remaining three months Mr. Kennedy was on privilege leave in Europe, and his duties as Curator were performed by Mr. Hartless, one of the assistants on the Cinchona Plantation. Both Messrs. Kennedy and Hartless, in addition to their duties in the garden itself, devoted a good deal of attention to the general improvement of the station of Darjeeling by planting young trees in all hopeful spots. This is, however, a very difficult and, I fear to some extent, a thankless task; for the present happiness and unbridled liberty of milk cows and goats is considered by many of the residents as of more consequence than the future amenity of the station.

8. The sum provided in the budget for the maintenance of the gardens, both at Calcutta and Darjeeling, was spent in full. And the whole of the additional sum of Rs. 1,000, contributed by the Government of India for botanical collections in the provinces of Assam and Burmah, was also expended. The estimated receipts (Rs. 1,700) were almost realised, there being a shortcoming of only Rs. 46-5.

9. Dr. Prain was in charge of the Herbarium and library during the year, and worked with untiring zeal. As I have explained in paragraph 3, the present efficient condition of the scientific department of this institution is very largely due to the skill and energy of this officer. I have also to acknowledge the efficient assistance in comparing specimens of various difficult and obscure plants given during the year by Mr. W. Botting Hemsley, F.R.S., Indian Assistant at the Royal Herbarium, Kew. Messrs. McHardy and Proudlock have respectively carried on the duties of Curator and Assistant Curator of the garden during the year with much enthusiasm and energy. Baboos Gopal Chandra Dutta, the head of the office establishment, and Prosonno Coomar Sein, the garden overseer, both discharged their duties admirably. The latter, I greatly regret to say, died from the effects of a severe attack of influenza shortly after the year ended. Man and boy he had been connected with the garden for fifty years, and in him Government lost a faithful servant of the good old school. Innocent of the kind of information by which now-a-days a University degree is secured, and conservative to the last degree of old customs and ways of thinking, the Baboo possessed an amount of knowledge of plants, and of their cultivation and uses, which it is quite unusual to find amongst native gentlemen of the present day.

Resolution No. 1579R.A., dated 3rd June 1889.

OBSERVATIONS.—The reviews of the transactions of the Fine Fund of the railways under the control of the Government of Bengal for the year 1889-90 have been received from the Managers with their letters quoted above, and are on the whole satisfactory.

2. The transactions of the funds are summarised below:—

RAILWAYS.	RECEIPTS.				EXPENDITURE.			Balance at end of 1889-90.
	Balance on 1st April 1889.	Fines.	Interest.	Total.	Disbursements.	Refunds.	Total.
	Rs. A. P.	Rs. A. P.	Rs. A. P.	Rs. A. P.	Rs. A. P.	Rs. A. P.	Rs. A. P.	Rs. A. P.

The amount of fines realised during the year is less than during the previous year, with the exception of the Tirhoot State Railway, on which there has been an increase of Rs. 473-9-11.

3. Under the head of Expenditure the principal disbursements have been as follows:—

Tirhoot State Railway.—Institute Rs. 1,850; amusements Rs. 300; volunteering Rs. 100; overcoats to station staff Rs. 400.

Nalhati State Railway.—Schools Rs. 70; institute Rs. 16.

Eastern Bengal State Railway.—Institute Rs. 2,017; schools Rs. 3,253; amusements Rs. 250; clothing Rs. 1,470; bonuses to employés Rs. 524; entertainments Rs. 400.

RESOLUTION.—In the Resolution of the 3rd June 1889, it was observed that though the balance of the fund on the Eastern Bengal State Railway had been reduced, it was susceptible of further reduction, and that there was a tendency to increase the balance on the Tirhoot State Railway. The attention of the Managers was therefore drawn to the expediency of keeping the balances as low as possible.

The Lieutenant-Governor is glad to observe that during the current year the instructions given have been acted upon, and that large disbursements have been made on both the Eastern Bengal and Tirhoot State Railways. On the former line, in addition to large grants to the Institutes and Schools, European and Native, Rs. 1,470 were expended in supplying blankets to menials employed in outdoor work, and Rs. 524 given as bonuses to employés and their families in need of pecuniary assistance through injuries or loss of employment.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to the Government of India, in the Public Works Department, and to the Managers, Eastern Bengal, Tirhoot, and Nalhati State Railways, for information, and that the Resolution be published in the Calcutta Gazette.

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph and from observations made at 6h., 10h., 16h., and 22h.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

Explanation.—Summary.—The normal means of air pressure and temperature are the arithmetical average or means of the reading during the same period for the last ten years. The Humidity of the atmosphere is expressed as percentage, saturated air being presented by 100. A clear sky is denoted by 0 and an overcast sky by 10. The numbers in the next column are means or averages of the rainfall in each district determined from the returns sent in by the subdivisional station for the period in question during the past week, the returns divided by the number of stations. A rainy day is one on which at least hundredth of an inch fell.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL, AND OF THE METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN ASSAM, FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY, THE 13TH OF JUNE 1890.

WEATHER conditions have been very similar throughout the week, the chief features being—the steadily rising pressure, changes varying very slightly in different parts of the province; high humidity and cloudy skies; and the heavy rainfall in the northern districts and Orissa, while over a strip of country running east and west, including East and South-West Bengal and Chutia Nagpur, the average falls are from ten to thirty per cent. below the normal. At the beginning of the week pressure was from a twentieth to a tenth of an inch below the normal, but the rise then going on (rather rapid in Behar and North Bengal and diminishing towards the south) quickly reduced the defect, and by the 8th the distribution was practically normal. Meanwhile temperature was falling with great rapidity along the west of the province and moderately elsewhere, and heavy rain was falling in North Bengal and Orissa. On the 8th rain was almost absent in South-West Bengal and Chutia Nagpur, and temperature rose rapidly in these districts, but as general very heavy rain was falling in North Bengal and Behar, temperature there fell rapidly, a large defect, of nearly 10° in some cases, resulting. On the 9th pressure was steady, followed by a rapid rise in the central districts on the 10th, the commencement of a high-pressure area which remained over the northern half of the Bay and the southern districts of Bengal till the end of the week. During these two days rainfall was more general in all districts than at any other time, and consequently temperature was falling and everywhere below the normal. On the 11th pressure changed very slightly except in Chutia Nagpur and the east of the Bay, where the rise exceeded a twentieth of an inch, after which excess was about a tenth of an inch from Arakan in a north-westerly direction to Chutia Nagpur. Temperature rose in all districts except Orissa, and rainfall from this date till the end of the week was general in North Bengal and scattered in the other districts. On the 12th excess was very nearly ·15 inch at the coast stations, and above a tenth of an inch in all districts except Behar, North Bengal, and part of Assam, but on the 13th pressure was falling moderately, and the high-pressure area moved to the west.

Pressure—Has generally been above the average, and means are in all cases in excess by somewhat variable amounts, ranging up to six-hundredths of inch. The mean excess for the week is above a twentieth of an inch in Orissa and part of South-West Bengal, the Sunderbuns and Singbhoom, these areas giving roughly the part of the province over which pressure was, relatively to the normal, higher than in the other districts.

Temperature—Has been below the normal except in East Bengal, but changes have been very large and irregular from the scattered rainfall in all districts except North Bengal. The largest change was the fall of 16° in South Behar on the 7th, when temperature from being 8° above the normal fell to 8° below. This was followed by a rise of 7° on the 8th, small changes on the 9th, a general fall of about 3° on the 10th, and a rapid rise in the northern districts on the 11th. The means are largely below the normal in the northern districts, defect being 4·6° in North Behar, 3·4° in Assam, 3° in South Behar, and 2° in North Bengal. In Chutia Nagpur defect is 2°, Orissa 1·2°, South-West Bengal 0·5°, and in East Bengal there is excess of nearly 1°.

Rainfall—Has again been very heavy in North Bengal, but this week the relatively heaviest falls are reported from North Behar. Fairly heavy rain has also fallen in South Behar and Orissa, while in the other districts there is considerable defect. The average actual falls for the large divisions expressed as percentages of the normal falls are as follows—North Behar 224, North Bengal 191, Orissa 150, South Behar 145, South-West Bengal 90, East Bengal and Chutia Nagpur 70. These heavy falls in the northern districts are due to the current of moist air which has been passing northwards to the east of the Bay and giving the steady rain in Burmah, but the Orissa rainfall is probably connected with the disturbed conditions prevailing in Southern and Central India during the greater part of last week.

The heavest falls in North Bengal expressed in inches are—Cooch Behar 21, Alipore Dooar 18·5, Dinhatta 18, Fallacatta and Mickligunge 17, and Julpigoree 15. The heavest falls in North Behar are—Kissengunge 8·2, Purneah 7, Kaliagunge 6·3, Arrareah 5·5, Maddapore 4·8, and several other stations between 3 and 4. In South Behar Rajmehal reports 5·5 inches and Pakour 3·4 inches, and in Chutia Nagpur nearly all stations between 1 and 2 inches, but Ghatsilla and Baharagura over 4 inches.

It will be seen that last week the highest mortality occurred in the town of Poori (62·9) and the lowest in Santipore (5·2).

Measured by last week's mortality, the highest annual death-rates from the following registered death-causes were as follow :—

	Tons.
INCREASES.
Coal	1,690
Stocks for railway and flotilla consumption.
Rice	168
The increase is slight and due to ordinary fluctuations of traffic.
Jute, unscrewed	113
The increase was contributed by Khoolna and Gobardanga principally, but there were small increases from Maslandpur, Bongong, and Nawapara also.
Betel-nuts	531
From the B. C. Flotilla exclusively.
DECREASES.
Oil-seeds	865
The largest decrease was from Singhea, 13,020 maunds, but Bongong, Jadabpur-Nabharan, and Khoolna also show considerable falling off, said to be due to restricted outturn.
Sugar	1,268
Gobardanga and Jadabpur-Nabharan show decreases, but the decrease from Jhikargacha alone was 38,535 maunds, said to be due to dullness of the Calcutta market.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

A Dictionary of the Economic Products of India.

BY DR. GEO. WATT, C.I.E,

Reporter on Economic Products.

Published under the authority of the Government of India in the Revenue and Agricultural Department.

The first two volumes of this work are now ready for issue, and intending subscribers are invited to register their names with the Superintendent of Government Printing, Calcutta.

The Dictionary is intended to deal with the products of India—animal, vegetable, and mineral; each product being treated after a uniform plan, the paragraphs of which give the scientific, vernacular, and European names; habitat or source; history; properties and uses, both chemical and industrial; trade statistics; markets, &c. The work is arranged alphabetically according to scientific nomenclature, but commercial and important vernacular names are also given as cross references so that little difficulty need be experienced in finding the account of a product even when its scientific name is unknown to the reader.

An important feature of the Dictionary consists in the fact that derived information is in every instance given under quotation marks, and with a reference to the original publication. Numerous contributions have, however, furnished the results of new discoveries, and confirmed the vernacular names; so that the Dictionary is not only a complete compilation of published information, but has been brought abreast of the most recent inventions and discoveries.

Volume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 559 royal pages; Volume II embraces the letter C in 689 pages; Volume III is in course of preparation, and will contain the letters D, E, F, and G. The whole work will, it is expected, be completed in six volumes by 1891; but a seventh volume may also be issued consisting of an index to all the vernacular and other names contained in the Dictionary; and this as a work of reference, it is hoped, may prove of considerable value.

The price to subscribers will be in India Rs. 30 and in England 2 guineas, payable in advance, for the complete set An extra charge for packing and postage will be made for the set—in India, at 8 annas per volume, and for England at 2 rupees 6 annas per volume.

For copies bound in half calf or half morocco, Rs. 6 and 8 shillings respectively will be charged extra for the whole sets.

 No copies will be issued to non-subscribers till the work is complete, and no single volume will be sold separately. The price to non-subscribers will be Rs 45 in India, and 3 guineas in England, exclusive of packing and postage.

AMENDMENT OF THE PUBLIC DEMANDS RECOVERY ACT 1880, AND THE REVENUE SALE LAW.

Read—

This Government's Resolution, dated the 2nd December, 1889.

Letter from the Government of India, Revenue and Agricultural Department, No. 324CI, dated the 15th March, 1890.

Letter, dated the 3rd May, 1890, from Mr. John Beames, with enclosures.

In September, 1889, the Lieutenant-Governor represented to the Government of India that it was desirable to recast the law on the important subject of the recovery of the land revenue and other public demands, with a view not only to putting it in a more convenient form, but also to the introduction of such substantive improvements as it seemed possible to effect for the convenience of the different classes concerned without impairing the efficiency of the system. In the interest of the zemindars, Sir Steuart Bayley proposed to give them notice through the post, if they so desired, of any failure on the part of their agents to pay the revenue before the latest appointed day, an arrangement originally suggested by the British Indian Association in 1874; to give one share-holder, advancing revenue on behalf of his partners, a summary means of recovering the amount from them, as recommended by the East Bengal Landholders' Association; to take additional precautions to secure the due publication of the notices prescribed by law; to permit payment after the latest day, subject to a fine; and, when auction sales unfortunately occurred, to ensure the best price for the property, by giving the purchaser the most assured title possible. For the benefit of mortgage-holders and other encumbrancers, the Lieutenant-Governor desired to enable them also, according to the suggestion of the British Indian Association, to secure notice of default of revenue, if they desired to do so, and to appeal against irregular sales affecting them injuriously. Under the existing law unregistered tenures are voidable on the occurrence of revenue sale, at the pleasure of the purchaser, and in the case of the majority of such tenures the time during which registration might have been effected has elapsed. The Lieutenant-Governor considered that if the deed constituting the tenure has been registered within the period prescribed by Act III of 1877, effect may be given to it at any time for the purposes of the Sale Law by the further registration required by Act XI of 1859, and that tenure-holders should be encouraged to protect themselves in this way by a reduction in the fee charged. This will prevent revenue sales from affecting injuriously the position of a numerous class in no way responsible for the defaults by which such sales are occasioned. Much importance was attributed to an amendment suggested in the interest of ryots and others, against whom certificates for the realization of dues have been made, by permitting the Collectors to set aside irregular sales held under their own certificates. At present the only remedy is by appeal to the Commissioner, a more distant and less familiar authority, with whom the poorer debtors do not always find it easy to communicate. The Lieutenant-Governor proposed to have these amendments embodied in two Bills, one for the recovery of land revenue, the other regulating the procedure for recovering other public demands, and to publish the Bills for the criticism of those affected. The Government of India having accepted the proposal, the Bills have been prepared with great care by Mr. Beames, with explanatory notes indicating in detail the different changes which they introduce, and the opinion of the Board of Revenue and of the principal Associations of the Province will be solicited as to their merits. The further action of this Government must depend on the tenor of the replies which may be received.

ORDER.—Ordered that this Resolution, with the Draft Bills and the explanatory notes appended thereto, be published in the Calcutta Gazette, and that copies be forwarded to the Government of India, the Board of Revenue, the Superintendent and Remembrancer of Legal Affairs, and to the Associations named below—

The British Indian Association.	The Central Mahomedan Association.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

P. NOLAN,

Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

Draft Bill to amend the Public Demands Recovery Act, 1880.

EXPLANATORY NOTES BY MR. BEAMES.

1. Act VI (B.C.) of 1880 was intended to be read as one with Act XI of 1859, the law for the sale of estates for arrears of revenue. Section 2 of the former Act prescribes that "this Act, so far as is consistent with the tenor thereof, shall be construed as one with Act XI of 1859 passed by the Governor-General in Council and Act VII of 1868 passed by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in Council." This arrangement, though in accordance with the state of the law since 1868, has been found to give rise to serious practical inconveniences. Before 1868 sums due to Government by individuals could only be realized in the same manner as an arrear of land revenue, that is, by the sale of the defaulter's estate, or by the still more tedious and expensive process of a civil suit. When a more summary procedure for the realization of such dues was introduced in 1868, it was treated as supplementary to the old procedure and the two systems continued, and still to a certain extent continue, to be mixed up together. But now that the certificate procedure has been in force for upwards of twenty years, and all classes of the population are familiar with it, it has become possible, and will be extremely advantageous, to separate the two processes, which have in fact nothing in common, and have probably been kept in a state of relation to one another more from the influence of association than for any more valid reason. A separate Bill has accordingly been prepared for the amendment of the sale law, and the present Bill is intended similarly to amend the certificate law. The two processes, that by which the land revenue due from the proprietors of estates is realized, and that by which a great number of minor demands—fees, fines, duties, taxes, costs and the like—are recovered from the public in general, will henceforth stand apart from, and independent of, each other, each having its own statute and its own procedure.

2. In addition to this reason for amending the present Act there are also complications caused by the peculiar wording of certain sections, and omissions to provide for certain necessary contingencies. Recently also a decision of the High Court, which will be fully discussed later on, has put upon one section of the Act an interpretation which it was undoubtedly not intended to bear, and which seriously affects the successful working of the law. The alterations made by the present Bill will now be explained in detail.

3. Section 2.—As above explained, the words by which Act VII (B.C.) of 1880 was directed to be construed as one with Act XI of 1859 and Act VII (B.C.) of 1868 have been omitted. The provisions necessary for making the certificate procedure independent and self-contained have been inserted in various sections of the Bill. The provision, however, that the powers given by the Act are to be deemed to be in addition to the powers conferred by any Act now in force has been retained. The certificate procedure is now applicable to so many Acts that the removal of this provision might cause some confusion in the proceedings of various departments; and though it is not likely that it will often have any practical significance, it will be on the whole safer to retain it.

4. Section 4.—Very great difficulty has been caused by the vagueness of the definition of "Collector" in this section. Two classes of officers are referred to in the Act, the Collector of the district and the Collector, but no definition of the former is given. In section 7 of the Act the power of issuing certificates is given to the Collector of the district, and this was at first held to imply that this power could not be exercised by any one but the Collector-Magistrate, the officer at the head of the revenue administration of a district. Seeing that in most districts many thousands of certificates are issued every year, it would be practically impossible for the District Collector himself to issue them all; and though the Government has, in consequence of the great increase of work, invested numerous Deputy Collectors with the powers of a Collector under the Act, yet a strict interpretation of the words of section 7 would seem to indicate that none of these officers can issue certificates under that section. On the other hand, certificates under section 5 can apparently be issued by any officer invested with the powers of a Collector. The Act itself affords no explanation of this inconsistency. It appears also that only the District Collector can refer petitions for enquiry to Deputy Collectors under section 15, while in section 19 a Deputy Collector can exercise powers subject to the control, not, as might be expected, of the Collector of the district, but of the Collector.

5. The confusion as to powers caused by this defective wording of the Act was removed by an ingenious opinion given by the Hon'ble the Advocate-General in 1882. In this opinion it was pointed out that 'in section 4 (b) Collector means the Collector of the district or any officer specially appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor to perform the functions of a Collector. Any officer so specially appointed is therefore a Collector, and as a Collector is a Collector of the district, any officer specially appointed is a Collector of the district and can issue certificates under section 7." The Advocate-General, though holding that the above results naturally flowed from the section as worded, expressed a doubt (which will be shared by most officers) whether this result was intended by the framers of the law. And in fact if the view first held, that none but the actual Collector of the district could issue certificates under section 7, did not go far enough, the view propounded by the Hon'ble Advocate-General goes too far. It was obviously intended, on the analogy of many other Acts referring to the administration of various revenue departments, that while power to transact the ordinary business of the certificate system should be conferred on Deputy Collectors and other similar officers, the general direction, control and supervision of this, as of all other departments, should rest solely with the Collector of the district. But by the Advocate-General's opinion subordinate officers are not only admitted to the power of conducting ordinary business, but they are invested with full powers of control and are rendered independent of the Collector, to whom in this as in all other matters they should properly be subordinate. The opinion therefore removes one difficulty only to introduce another.

6. Owing to the peculiar arrangement of section 4 (b) it is very difficult to make such alterations as will establish a clear distinction between the supervising and controlling "Collector of the district" and the "Collector," a subordinate officer empowered to perform judicial and executive functions, but not to usurp the authority of the head of the district, while the latter still retains power to perform all the functions of a "Collector" under the Act, whenever for any reason it may seem fit to him to do so.

7. The steps taken to solve this perplexing problem are these. A definition of "Collector of the district" has been introduced, taken from the Cess Act. Then in clause (b), instead of saying that "Collector" means "Collector of the district or any officer, &c.," a phrase which puts the two classes of officers on a level, the words "and includes, subject to the provisions of section 30, any officer, &c.," have been introduced. Section 30, taken from the Board's Rules relating to the certificate procedure, provides that every officer empowered under the Act shall exercise his functions subject to the control of the Collector of the district. The word "Collector" has been substituted for "Collector of the district" in section 7, and similar corrections have been made, where necessary, in other sections of the Bill. It is hoped that these alterations, should they become law, will remove the uncertainty hitherto prevailing on this point, and admit of the general employment of Deputy Collectors and other subordinate officers in performing the ordinary business of certificate cases without destroying the control of the District Collector.

8. Section 7, clause 3.—The list of Acts to which the certificate procedure is applicable has been brought up to date by the addition of the India Council and Bengal Council Acts passed since 1880. Among these is the Ferry Act (Bengal Act I of 1885), the insertion of which in clause (3) renders necessary the cancelment of clause (5) of the Act, which referred to the old law on ferries, Regulation VI of 1819, now repealed.

The proviso at the end of clause (7)—clause (6) of the Bill—has been remodelled to bring it into accordance with the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act of 1885, which has rendered the law on the subject of enhancement more definite than it was at the time when the Public Demands Act was framed.

9. Section 8.—A clause (b) has been added to give effect to the proposed application of the certificate procedure to the case of joint proprietors of an estate who to save the estate from sale may have paid up the whole amount of revenue in arrears. A provision allowing such persons to apply to the Collector to recover the excess payments from their co-sharers by certificate has been inserted in the Revenue Sales Bill now before Government, and this clause is necessary to complete the procedure.

10. Section 9 (a).—The word "notice" applied in the Act to the communication addressed by a public officer or a Court of Ward's Manager to the Collector has been replaced by the word "requisition." The word "notice" is used for those documents by which a Collector gives information to, or makes any demand upon, the public, and the use of this word for an entirely different purpose is calculated to give rise to confusion. The word "requisition" seems a more appropriate designation for the communication dealt with in this and the following sections.

11. In this section the difficulty above discussed about "Collector" and "Collector of the district" occurs again. It may be in some cases desirable that the Manager's requisition should be addressed to the Collector of the district, as that officer is responsible for the proper management of the Ward's estate, but there are many instances where the Collector, for good and sufficient reasons, and with the sanction of superior authority, has made over the supervision of some particular Ward's estate to a Deputy Collector, and in such cases it is not necessary that the requisition should be addressed to the Collector. The words in italics have therefore been introduced to enable the Collector of the district to arrange for the submission of requisitions to the Collector, that is, to the officer empowered under the Act, the "certificate officer" as he is usually called. This officer will under clause (c) satisfy himself that the demand is justly recoverable. In cases other than Wards' estates also it will often be convenient that requisitions should be presented to the certificate officer direct.

12. Section 9 (c).—The words in italics have been inserted to facilitate the recovery from a defaulter of the cost of the court-fees required to be paid by a Manager under clause (b) of this section. Suggestions to this effect have been made by the Board to Government on previous occasions, and so far back as 1881 Government consulted the Board on the subject of a draft Bill containing the provision now inserted, but action was deferred till a revision of the whole Act should be undertaken. The present seems therefore a proper opportunity to give effect to them.

13. Section 15.—This consists of the first part of clause (b) of section 8 of the Act, which has been removed to this place as coming more appropriately in the order of events after and not before the proceedings on objection. This transposition of the section has necessitated a slight alteration in the opening words of the section.

14. Section 16.—This is the remaining portion of clause (b) of section 8, which follows in natural sequence in this place.

15. Section 17.—Section 15 of the Act. This is one of the instances referred to above, in which alteration is necessary to remove the confusion existing in the Act between "Collector" and "Collector of the district." The officer referred to in this section is clearly the Collector of the district, who is the only officer to whom the Assistant and Deputy Collectors mentioned in the section can be said to be "subordinate." When a Deputy Collector is vested with the powers of a Collector under this Act, it cannot be said that all the other Deputy and Assistant Collectors in the district become subordinate to him, and it would give rise to much confusion and inconvenience if he were allowed to refer as many objection petitions as he pleased to his fellow Deputies for decision. This power of reference should be restricted to the Collector who, as the head of the district, is responsible for the due despatch of public business, and must therefore have the power of distributing work among his various subordinates, so that all shall be fully occupied and none overburdened. It would upset the Collector's arrangements for the distribution of work if a Deputy Collector exercising the powers of a Collector under the Act were able to throw upon any officer a number of objection cases whenever he pleased. The word "Collector" has therefore been altered to "Collector of the district." At the same time to avoid the necessity for the District Collector passing an order of reference on each case which would be onerous, and to provide against delay being caused by the Collector being out in camp, and the like, the words "by a general or special order" have been inserted. This will enable a Collector to distribute the objections in groups or classes among his subordinates. Thus one officer might be empowered to take up objections in Ward's cases, another in Irrigation, a third in Cess cases, and so on.

16. Section 18.—The proviso to this section (section 16 of the Act) has been added to meet the case of a certain subdivision where, owing to the existence of a large Government estate, the certificate work is unusually heavy. The Subdivisional Officer is vested with the powers of a Collector under this Act, and as the law now stands appeals from his orders would be to the Collector. But it has been suggested that it inflicts some hardship upon the ryots to compel them to go to the Commissioner's head-quarters to prefer their appeals, and that as the Collector of the district is the immediate superior of the Subdivisional Officer, he is the natural appellate authority in such cases. As there may be other instances of this kind in other parts of Bengal, the provision has been made generally applicable. The distinction between Collector of the district and "Collector" has been inserted in this section in such a way as to allow of appeals being heard by a "Collector" when such a course may be convenient, and with reference to the new part of section 30 below.

17. Section 19.—The words in italics have been inserted for the reasons given in section 18 above.

18. Section 20.—The sums entered in certificates are such as in many cases legally bear interest, and it seems equitable that this interest, as in the case of a civil court decree, together with the costs of execution, should be leviable together with the principal sum. The words "with interest and costs" have therefore been inserted.

19. Section 21.—This is the most important section in the Act (section 19), and the one which has given rise to most controversy. The principal difficulties have reference to the interpretation of the clause which specifies those parts of the Civil Procedure Code which are applicable to this Act. This clause was taken with a few alterations from Act VII (B.C.) of 1868. The Civil Procedure Code in force when the Act of 1868 was passed was Act VIII of 1859, but by the time that the present Act came to be passed this had been superseded by Act X of 1877, which in its turn was not long after replaced by Act XIV of 1882, so that the specification of the various parts of the Code applicable to certificates no longer corresponded to the arrangement of the actual Code. This was particularly the case with the first item in the clause, which runs "in respect of sales in execution of decrees." This expression, though defining with sufficient accuracy the subject as it stood in Act VIII of 1859, fails when applied to the present Civil Procedure Code, Act XIV of 1882, in which there is no one chapter so headed. The other items in the clause also do not very accurately correspond to the headings of the present Code, and there is thus considerable room for doubting which sections of the Code do, and which do not, apply to certificate cases.

20. In the first item mentioned above this vagueness of expression has led to a serious practical difficulty. It had for a long time been held by the Board, supported by the legal advisers of Government, that sections 311 and 312 of the Civil Procedure Code were applicable to sales of immoveable property in execution of a certificate. A circular was issued by the Board to this effect in August 1883, in which it was laid down that "the rules prescribed by section 311 et seq of the Civil Procedure Code come strictly within the terms 'practice and procedure' used in section 19 of the Act" and that therefore those sections are applicable to cases of sale under the Public Demands Recovery Act. The effect of this instruction is that a person desiring to set aside a sale under the above Act would have to apply under section 311 to the Court which held the sale to set it aside on the ground of a material irregularity causing substantial injury to the applicant, and that the Court, if allowing the objection, might set aside the sale under section 312, or, if the objection be not allowed, might refuse to do so. Under section 588, clause 16, an appeal would lie from such orders.

21. The procedure thus indicated remained in force till 1886, when, in the case of Sadhusaran Singh versus Panchdeo Lall and others, 14 I.L.R. Cal. p. 1, the High Court held a different view. The portion of the judgment relevant to the present subject is as follows:—

"Supposing there are material irregularities in publishing or conducting a sale held in execution of a certificate issued under Bengal Act VII of 1880, and supposing such irregularities have caused substantial injury to the owner of the property sold, what are his remedies? ..... Section 19 of Bengal Act VII of 1880 says that all the practice and procedure provided by the Code of Civil Procedure in respect of sales in execution of decree, &c., &c., shall apply to every execution issued to enforce a certificate. It seems to us that the words "in respect of sales in execution of decrees" do not include any proceedings instituted after the sale for setting it aside. We think, therefore, that only the provisions of the Procedure Code up to the stage at which the auction sale is held apply to an execution issued to enforce a certificate, and therefore the provisions of sections 311 and 312 are not applicable..... We are of opinion that the only remedy of a judgment-debtor, whose property has been sold in execution of a certificate issued under Bengal Act VII of 1880, and who has sustained substantial injury by reason of a material irregularity in publishing or conducting the sale, is by way of appeal under section 2 of Bengal Act VII of 1868..... We think that by the force of section 2 of Act VII of 1880 the provisions in section 2, Bengal Act VII of 1868, became applicable to a sale under an execution issued upon a certificate made under Act VII of 1880."

22. This last argument is based upon the fact that in section 2 of the Act of 1880, it is directed that the Act shall be construed as one with Act XI of 1859 and Act VII (B.C.) of 1868. This provision, as mentioned in paragraph 3 above, it is now proposed to repeal and thus remove the confusion that has arisen from regarding the three Acts as one. But as the law stands at present, the wording of section 2 afforded grounds for the view held by the learned Judges. It also carried them a step further; for the decision goes on to say: "That being so" (i.e. the three Acts being regarded as one) "the sale in this case may be considered as a sale under section 2 of Act VII of 1868 within section 2 of that Act. The appeal under that section against the sale therefore lies to the Revenue Commissioner. Similarly, all sales under Act VII of 1880 would become final in the manner and at the time provided in section 27 of Act XI of 1859." The ruling in this case was followed by another Bench of the High Court in the case of Ramlagan Ojha versus Bhawani Ojha, 14 I.L.R., 9.

23. The effects of this judgment upon the working of the certificate system are, in the opinion of the Board of Revenue and all officers of experience, very serious. In the first place appeals against sales must be made to the Commissioner, and thus a costly and tedious process is substituted for the simple and expeditious one of applying under section 311 to the Court which held the sale. In many parts of Bengal many thousands of certificates are issued every year, often for comparatively small sums, and it is unavoidable that errors should creep in, and a certain number of erroneous sales should be made. The person injured should have a ready and simple means of redress, such as is provided by section 311; but under the High Court ruling he has to go to the Commissioner's Court, often a great distance off, and institute a regular appeal.

24. Secondly, if, as held by the High Court, all proceedings after the sale are governed by Act XI of 1859, then the certificate to be given by the Collector to the purchaser must be in the form prescribed by section 28 of that Act. But what passes by a sale under Act VII of 1880 is the right, title, and interest of the judgment-debtor, and this may be merely a share in an estate, or a certain number of fields, a tenure, or a ryot's holding; whereas the certificate under section 28 of Act XI conveys an absolute title to an estate or share of an estate on the Collector's towjih or rent roll, and not merely the rights and interests of the judgment-debtor. A certificate under this section may therefore be issued for something which has not been sold, and the person injured can have no redress but by a civil suit under section 33. Even this remedy is denied him if the usually received view is acted upon, under which no one but a defaulter can appeal to the Commissioner, and no sale can be annulled by a Civil Court unless there has first been an appeal to the Commissioner.

25. The remedy for the various inconveniences caused by this decision of the High Court seems to consist in defining accurately those portions of the Civil Procedure Code which are applicable to sales under a certificate. This has now been done in section 21 of the Bill. The list has been drawn so as to include all sections of the Procedure Code which can in any way be rendered applicable to sales under this Act, especially the important sections 311 and 312, and the order of the items has been re-arranged so as to bring it into accordance with the arrangement of subjects in the Civil Procedure Code now in force (Act XIV of 1882). Although the list of sections now given may at first sight appear lengthy, yet a comparison of the twelve groups of this section of the Bill, with the corresponding portion of section 19 of the Act, will show that no new sections have been introduced; the law remains as it was; no portions of the Civil Procedure Code which were not, previous to the High Court's ruling, generally understood to be applicable to certificates have now been made applicable. All that has been done is to state definitely, one by one, the sections applicable, so that in future no doubt whatever may exist on the subject. There may be room for question whether this or that section should be included or excluded from the list, and this will doubtless be duly considered in Committee. The principle followed has been, while adhering to the specification given in section 19 of the Act as far as its vagueness would allow, to exclude all sections of the Code which refer to matters not likely to come within the limited scope of certificate proceedings, or which would tend to make the proceedings unduly complicated or protracted.

26. As regards the special question raised by the decision in Sadhuaran Singh's case, the mention of sections 311 and 312 in item (7) of the section removes all doubt, and makes it clear that the procedure for setting aside a sale will, if the Bill become law, be by petition to the Court which held the sale, and not by appeal to the Commissioner, while the total dissociation of the certificate procedure from that of sales for arrears of revenue effected by the preparation of two separate Bills for the two processes will prevent any confusion arising from the supposed relation of the old section (2 of Act VII B.C. of 1868) to certificate sales. Further, the insertion of sections 314 and 316 in item (6) of the section makes it clear that the sale becomes final and possession is to be given under the terms of these sections, and not, as is assumed in the High Court's decision under the wholly inappropriate and inapplicable sections 28 and 29 of Act XI of 1859.

27. Section 22.—The final sentences of section 19 of the Act have here been thrown into a separate section under clauses (a) and (c), because section 19 was already too long. In clause (c) the words "Collector of the district" have been substituted for "Collector" in order to carry out the principle enunciated in paragraph 7 above, of establishing and carrying through the whole system of certificate procedure the distinction between the executive head of the district and an officer invested with the powers of a Collector.

28. Clause (b) is new, and is intended to meet a difficulty which has arisen. It has been represented by many Collectors that the rules issued by the High Court under section 287, of the Civil Procedure Code regarding sales of immoveable property, were not suitable for certificate sales, as they "not only entail expenses, but make the already tedious procedure still more tedious and dilatory." Two instances of this effect of the rules were brought into special prominence. In the first place, the rules require that ten days' notice shall be given to the defaulter before fixing the details of the sale proclamations; and secondly, a search is to be made in all registry offices for possible incumbrances on the property sold. It is obvious that when the Public Demands Act has already allowed ample delay to defaulters it is not necessary to allow still further time, and that in the case of the usually petty properties sold in certificate cases it is not necessary to institute an elaborate search for incumbrances. In fact, the High Court rules are made for a state of things which differs very considerably from that prevailing in certificate matters.

29. Under the circumstances, the Board adopted the course of directing Collectors to guide themselves by certain portions of the High Court rules only, and to pass over the rest as inapplicable; but the correctness of this course is open to question, for either section 287 is applicable to certificate sales or it is not. If it is not, then the whole of the High Court's rules cease to apply. If it is, then the whole of the rules apply, and as they have the force of law, it does not seem that an executive authority such as the Board of Revenue is competent to set aside any of them. The question as to which sections of the Civil Procedure Code are, and which are not, applicable to certificate matters being now set at rest by section 21 of this Bill, and section 287 having been therein declared to be one of those sections which is so applicable, it will follow, if this section of the Bill be passed, that so much of section 287 as directs that the High Court shall frame rules, and that those rules shall have the force of law, will be in force and cannot be set aside. As the most experienced revenue officers are unanimously of opinion that the High Court's rules, being made for a totally different class of work, are not suitable to certificate cases, and cannot be followed without imposing on parties to the case expense and delay, it seems advisable to transfer to the Board the power of making such rules as may be suitable to the circumstances of certificate sales. In making this transfer the Bill merely carries on the analogy of the general provisions of section 19, for if the Collector is substituted for the Civil Court, it is only consistent to substitute the Board—the chief revenue authority in these provinces—for the High Court. It will also not be disputed that no authority is so likely to be well acquainted with the peculiarities of certificate proceedings, or so well qualified to judge what rules should govern them as the Board of Revenue.

30. Section 30.—The latter part of this section, beginning at the words "and no officer," has been added to this section from the Board's rules in the Certificate Procedure Manual The rule in question was issued with the sanction of Government, and its insertion here is thought advisable with reference to the distinction between "Collector" and "Collector of a district" made in section 4 (b) ante.

31. Section 31.—This is new In the case of Rakhal Chandra Rai Chowdhry versus Secretary of State, 12 I. L. R., page 698, the High Court held that "no special provision is made in Bengal Act VII of 1880 as to the manner of service of the notice prescribed in section 10." This remark overlooks the fact that the mode of service is prescribed by section 5 of Act VII (B.C.) of 1868, and in section 2 of the Act of 1880 it is directed that the Act shall be construed as one with the Act of 1868, consequently the rules for the service of notices laid down in one Act would govern notices issued under the other. This is a striking instance of the inconvenience and confusion caused by the present state of the law. Now that Act VII of 1868 is about to be amalgamated with Act XI of 1859, and the certificate procedure entirely separated from that for revenue sales, it becomes necessary to avoid misleading and confusing references from one Act to another. This section has therefore been introduced prescribing the method of serving notices under the Act. In accordance with the system followed in other parts of the Act, the course has been adopted of declaring certain sections of the Civil Procedure Code applicable to notices issued under the Act, which is thus provided with a procedure entirely independent of any enactments relating to sales for arrears of revenue.

Such application shall be verified by the applicant in accordance with the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure for the verification of plaints, and shall bear a court-fee stamp of the same amount as is payable under the Court-fees Act for the time being in force in respect of a plaint for the recovery of a sum of money equal to that stated in such application.*

And if the person so depositing, whose money shall have been credited as aforesaid, shall prove before a competent Civil Court that the deposit was made in order to protect an interest of the said person, which would have been endangered or damaged by the sale, or which he believed in good faith would have been endangered or damaged by the sale, he shall be entitled to recover the amount of the deposit, with or without interest as the Court may determine, from the defaulting proprietor. And if the person so depositing, whose money shall have been credited as aforesaid, shall prove before such a Court that the deposit was necessary in order to protect any line he had on the estate or share or part thereof,

25. If on the publication of the applications prescribed in section 22 any recorded proprietor of the estate, whether the same be held in common tenancy or otherwise, object—

(a) that the applicant has no right to the share claimed by him, or that his interest in the estate is less or other than that claimed by him, or

(b) (when the application is in respect of a specific portion of the land of an estate, or in respect of an undivided interest held in common tenancy in any specific portion of the land of an estate) that the amount of revenue stated by the applicant to have been heretofore paid on account of such portion of land or on account of the applicant's undivided interest therein, is not the amount which has been recognized by the other sharers as the revenue thereof, the Collector shall refer the parties to the Civil Court, and shall suspend proceedings until the question at issue is judicially determined.

Application to close a separate account.

26. Whenever any share in respect of which a separate account has been opened by the Collector under section 22 shall no longer correspond with the character and extent of interest held in the estate by any proprietor or jointly by one or more proprietors, any recorded proprietor of any interest in the estate for a share of which such separate account is open may submit to the Collector a written application setting forth the circumstances under which such share no longer corresponds with the character and extent of interest held as aforesaid, and specifying the manner in which such share has been broken up and distributed among the proprietors of the estate, or the manner in which the said character and extent of interest have been changed, and praying that the separate account standing open in respect of such share may be closed; and if he so desire, that another separate account be opened in respect of any other share or shares which were wholly or partly included in the share in respect of which the previous separate account was open.

Act VII (B.C.) of 1876, section 72.

Illustration.

In a certain estate separate accounts have been opened under section 19 for the 4 annas share of A, and also for the 5 annas share of B, the accounts of the remaining 7 annas share being kept jointly in the names of the remaining proprietors C, D and E.

In course of time X has inherited A's 4 annas share and also C's interest in the 7 annas share which amounted to 3 annas; X has also acquired by purchase 2 annas out of B's 5 annas share, so that the interests in the estate are now distributed as follows:—

X	...	...	...	9 annas.
B	...	...	...	3 „
D and E	...	...	...	4 „

X, if a recorded proprietor of the estate, may apply to the Collector to close the separate account which is open in respect of A's 4 annas share, and also the separate account which is open in respect of B's 5 annas share, as neither of these shares corresponds with the extent of interest held by any one proprietor or held jointly by two or more proprietors in the estate.

X may, in the same application, also apply for the opening of a separate account in respect of the 9 annas share which he now holds. Any of the other proprietors may also make a similar application.

Act VII (B.C.) of 1876, section 73, and part of 74.

Separate account may be closed and another opened.

27. (a) On receipt of such application the Collector shall cause a copy of the same to be published in the manner provided in section 8, and if within six weeks of the date of such publication no objection is made by any other recorded proprietor of the estate, the Collector shall close the separate account which then stands open, and shall open a separate account with the applicant as desired by him under section 19, 20 or 21, as the case may be.

(b) If any recorded proprietor object that the share in respect of which any separate account is open as aforesaid has not been broken up and does still correspond with the character and extent of interest held by any proprietor or proprietors, the Collector shall proceed as provided in section 25.

New, based on Act VII (B.C.) of 1876, section 28.

Collector may close an incorrect separate account suo motu.

28. Whenever it shall come to the notice of the Collector that a share for which a separate account has been opened under section 22 does not correspond with the character and extent of interest held in the estate by the proprietor with whom the separate account was opened, the Collector shall issue a notice to the said proprietor informing him of his intention to close the said separate account, and requiring him to state in a written application any objection he may have thereto. If within six weeks from the service of the said notice the said proprietor shall not make such application, or if the objections made by him are not in the opinion of the Collector good and sufficient, the Collector shall record a proceeding stating his reasons for believing the said separate account to be incorrect, and shall order that the said separate account be closed, and it shall be closed accordingly.

Act XI of 1859, section 13.

Sale of separate shares.

29. Whenever the Collector shall have ordered a separate account or accounts to be kept for one or more shares, if the estate shall become liable to sale for arrears of revenue, the Collector shall, in the first place, put up to sale only that share or those shares of the estate from which, according to the separate accounts, an arrear of revenue may be due. In all such cases notice of the intention of excluding the share or shares from which no arrear is due, shall be given in the advertisement of sale prescribed in section 9. The share or shares sold, together with the share or shares excluded from the sale, shall continue to constitute one integral estate, the share or shares sold being charged with the separate portion or the aggregate of the several separate portions of revenue assigned thereto.

Entire estate may be sold under certain conditions.

30. If in any case of a sale held according to the provisions of the last preceding section, the highest offer for the share exposed to sale shall not equal the amount of arrear due thereupon to the date of sale, the Collector shall stop the sale, and shall declare that the entire estate will be put up to sale for arrears of revenue at a future date, unless the other recorded sharer or sharers, or one or more of them, shall within ten days purchase the share in arrear by paying to Government the whole arrear due from such share. If such purchase be completed, the Collector shall give such certificate and delivery of possession as are provided for in sections 50 and 51 of this Act, to the purchaser or purchasers, who shall have the same rights as if the share had been purchased by him or them at the sale. If no such purchase be made within ten days as aforesaid, the entire estate shall be sold, after notification for such period and publication in such manner as is prescribed in section 9.

Provided that when such estate, share or part has been attached under the provisions of this section, the proceeds shall be paid to the Collector, and the Collector, after deducting the claims of Government for revenue and other public demands, together with any interest which has accrued upon such public demands other than revenue, and the charges of management due up to the date of making such deduction, shall release such estate, share or part from attachment and shall pay any balance of the proceeds still remaining in his hands to the proprietor of such estate, share or part, or to his duly constituted agent, and shall furnish such proprietor or agent with an account of the receipts and expenditure extending over the time when such estate, share or part was under attachment.

But Collector may attach estate.

The Collector may on an arrear accruing on any such estate attach the estate and collect the rents and all arrears of rent due, managing the estate either directly or through a manager or by farming it as he may think fit for a period not exceeding ten years, nor extending beyond the time when such minor or one of such minors completes his age of twenty-one years.

Application of proceeds of farmed estate.

35. When an estate has been farmed under the provisions of section 33, the proceeds of such farm shall be paid to the Collector, and the Collector, after deducting the amount of the claims of Government for revenue and other public demands and the charges of management, shall either pay the proceeds to the proprietor or to his duly constituted agent or shall dispose of them in any of the modes mentioned in section 49 or section 50 of Bengal Act IX of 1879. Whenever such estate shall be released from attachment the Collector shall furnish such proprietor or his duly constituted agent with an account of the receipts and expenditure extending over the time when such estate was under attachment.

If within the limited time no objection is made, the Collector shall consider the deeds or other evidence produced by the applicant, and if he shall be satisfied of their genuineness and sufficiency, he shall register the tenure or farm. If within the limited time an objection is made by any recorded proprietor, or by any person interested not being a proprietor, the Collector shall examine the person so objecting or his authorized agent, and if it shall appear to him that such person has probable ground of objection, or if the deeds or other proofs produced by the applicant shall not appear genuine and sufficient, the Collector shall suspend proceedings, and shall refer the parties to the Civil Court; otherwise he shall grant the application. If the decision of the Civil Court be in favour of the applicant, the Collector, on the presentation of a copy of the final decree, shall register the tenure or farm.

68. When the application is for special registry the Collector shall serve and issue the notices prescribed in the last preceding Section.

If within the limited time no objection is made, the Collector shall cause any enquiry that he may deem necessary for the security of the Government revenue, to be made; and if he is satisfied that the Government revenue of the parent estate is sufficiently secured so far as it may be affected by the tenure or farm in question, he shall report the case to the Commissioner, who, if also satisfied on that point, shall direct the tenure or farm to be registered according to the application; otherwise the application shall be rejected.

If within the limited time any recorded proprietor or any person interested not being a proprietor object to the registry, the Collector shall examine the person so objecting or his authorized agent, and if it shall appear to him that such person has probable ground of objection, shall suspend proceedings, and shall refer the parties to the Civil Court; otherwise he shall proceed as if no objection had been made.

If the decision of the Civil Court be in favor of the applicant, the Collector, on the presentation of a copy of the final decree, shall proceed as above provided for cases in which no objection is made within the limited time.

Provided that a tenure or farm in the hands of a bonâ fide purchaser for value shall not be avoided by reason of such fraud. The Draft Revenue Sale Bill.

EXPLANATORY NOTES BY MR. BEAMES.

THE law regarding the sale of estates for arrears of revenue is contained principally in Act XI of 1859. A considerable portion of this Act is merely a reproduction of an older law, Act I of 1845, as that again was of Act XII of 1841. The revenue officers of the present day are therefore administering a law all the provisions of which are thirty, and some nearly fifty, years old; and this fact alone would, in a country the development of which has been so rapid and striking as that of Bengal, be a sufficient justification for undertaking its amendment. But not only are changes rendered necessary by the altered economic conditions of these provinces: defects have been brought to light by the experience of so long a period; cases have occurred in which the meaning of particular sections has been found to be open to doubt; and modifications are called for in order to bring the law into harmony with recently introduced methods of procedure for the recovery of public demands. From time to time also subsidiary and supplementary Acts have been passed having reference to specific portions of the sale law, and it is found inconvenient and even misleading to have the different parts of one and the same subject embodied in a number of separate enactments scattered all over the statute book.

2. The early history of the methods adopted for the recovery of arrears of Government revenue is fully detailed in Mr. Grimley's excellent "Manual of the Revenue Sale Law," and need not therefore be given here. A brief account of the course of legislation subsequent to the passing of Act XI of 1859 is, however, necessary to explain the method followed in preparing the present Bill

3. The first modification took place in 1862, three years after the passing of Act XI, when by Bengal Act III of that year the scale of fees prescribed for opening separate accounts and for common and special registry in Act XI was reduced, the period allowed for registration of tenures created before the passing of that Act was extended to three years, and a period of three months from the date of the document creating them was fixed for the registration of tenures created after the passing of that Act. The reasons for, and the results arising from, this enactment will be discussed further on under the sections which refer to it.

4. The next important addition to the subject of sales was made by Bengal Act VII of 1868. The first fourteen sections of this Act supplemented omissions and cleared up doubts regarding certain points in Act XI. It supplied definitions of the principal terms used, none of which were defined in that Act. It introduced some modifications into section 25 regarding appeals, and extended the period allowed for notices of sales under section 6 from fifteen days to thirty, and that at which sales, the purchase-money for which had been paid up, should become final, from thirty days to sixty. It made some new provisions regarding the service of notices: endeavoured (not perhaps successfully) to give finality to sales and security to the purchaser by declaring that the sale certificate issued under section 28 of Act XI should be conclusive evidence that all notices required by that Act to be served had been served, and that the purchaser's title should not be "impeached or affected" by any informality in such service. It quieted certain doubts as to the legality of sales of lakhiraj tenures for arrears of revenue, and made a few minor provisions. But the most important additions to the sale law made by this Act were the provisions of section 11 and the following, which placed tenures paying revenue direct to Government on the same footing as regards sales, and gave the purchaser as near as might be the same privileges as in the case of permanently settled estates.

The second portion of this Act created a new method of procedure called the Certificate Procedure, for the recovery of various dues and demands of Government. As this matter forms the subject of a separate Bill which is now under preparation, it need not be further alluded to here.

5. A minor amending Act (Bengal Act II of 1871) was also passed to correct certain errors which had crept into the wording of section 11 of Bengal Act VII of 1868.

6. The Land Registration Act (Bengal Act VII of 1876) introduced a comprehensive system of recording the names of proprietors of estates, which, though not specially made applicable to the sale law, reacted upon it in various ways, particularly in defining the person known as the "recorded proprietor," an expression which, when used in Act XI, had not so clear and distinct a significance as it has acquired since the passing of this Act. It is true that before this Act was passed the law required persons succeeding to the ownership of estates to have their names entered in the Collector's registers; but this proceeding, known as "Dakhil kharij," or "Nam jari," was not compulsory, and was very widely neglected, so that the distinction between a recorded proprietor and one who was not recorded had for the most part no particular value.

Apart from this point, however, a material addition to the sale law was made by sections 69 to 74 of this Act; section 69 provided that separate accounts under sections 10 and 11 of Act XI should not be opened for incorrect shares, that is, for shares which did not correspond to the interest in the estate held by the person applying for the separate account. Section 70 extended the principle of sections 10 and 11 of Act XI to cases where a proprietor held an interest in a specific portion of an estate not extending over the whole estate. Section 72, the most important of all, enabled the Collector to close a separate account on the application of the proprietor when it no longer corresponded to the interest held by him in the estate. The remaining three sections, 71, 73 and 74, laid down the procedure to be followed in opening and closing such accounts.

7. Again in the same year the Partition Act (Bengal Act VIII of 1876) contained two provisions regulating the effect of the sale law upon estates under partition and upon shares in such estates for which separate accounts had been opened.

8. The Court of Wards Act (Bengal Act IX of 1879) also effected some change in the provisions of section 17 of Act XI, in respect to the exemption from sale of estates under the management of the Court and estates the property of minors. The sections of the Ward's Act relating to these points were repealed by Bengal Act III of 1881, and re-enacted in a somewhat altered form.

9. Finally Bengal Act VII of 1880, the Public Demands Recovery Act, which repealed (as above stated) the latter half of Act VII (B.C.) of 1868, is directed to be construed as one with Act XI of 1859 and Act VII (B.C) of 1868, "so far as is consistent with the tenor thereof," a somewhat vague and misleading provision, because not only does the Public Demands Act treat of what has long become a totally different subject from that of revenue sales, but there is no guide as to when any provision of this Act is, or is not, consistent with the tenor of Act XI.

10. The above-mentioned Acts and portions of Acts constitute what is called the substantive law on the subject of revenue sales at the present time. The adjective law (as it is called), consisting of rulings of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council and the High Court of Calcutta, is not very extensive nor very important. It is believed that all the really important cases will be found noticed in the detailed explanations on various sections of the Bill, and where any of them point to the necessity for amendment of any part of the law, that amendment has been inserted in the Bill. For the most part, however, the rulings are explanatory of the meaning of the law, or merely affirm its principles. In an Act like Act XI, which is to a great extent confined to executive matters, it was to be expected that the case law should be meagre. A large number of important questions has, however, been raised from time to time, and these form the subject of numerous files of correspondence in the office of the Board of Revenue. The amendments suggested by these files have been worked into their proper places in the Bill.

11. In most of these cases the conclusion arrived at by the Board, in many instances with the concurrence of Government, was that whenever a general amendment of the law might be called for, these points should be brought up for consideration. It was not, however, for some time thought desirable that a general revision of the law should be undertaken. Instances of inconvenience and difficulty caused by certain provisions of the law continued, however, to accumulate, and at length it became clear that the question was ripe for discussion. After much careful examination of the various points in a long correspondence, the details of which it is not necessary to go into here, it was resolved that legislation should be undertaken. In accordance with this decision the present Bill has been prepared.

12. The work to be done was of three kinds—

(1) Re-arrangement.
(2) Consolidation.
(3) Amendment.

First, Re-arrangement.—The sections of Act XI do not in all cases follow the regular sequence of events in the course of a revenue sale. This is due to the fact that Act XI was founded on Act I of 1845, and the new provisions which it introduced were inserted among the sections of the older Act on principles the grounds of which cannot now be traced, but the result has been that sections which should stand together are found widely separated, while some that should be first are put last, and vice versâ It has been thought likely to prove convenient to re-arrange the sections in their natural order, and to insert the sections brought in from other Acts, as also the new sections, in the order in which they would naturally fall in tracing the history of an arrear from its inception to its ultimate consequences. For the same reason the Act has, as is customary in recent enactments, been divided into parts. Thus Part I contains such preliminary matter as title, extent, commencement, repeals, and definitions. Part II treats of all processes prior to the actual sale; as the determination of what constitutes an arrear, the latest day of payment, issue of notifications and notices. Part III is also considered as prior to sale, because the protection and exemption which it affords, if availed of, would render it impossible for a sale to take place. In this part come the provisions for deposits, the opening of separate accounts, and the exemptions claimable by estates under the Court of Wards and Attached Estates. Part IV deals with the actual sale from the determination of the place where and the time when it can take place, through appeals, annulment, confirmation, and delivery of possession down to the final disposal of the surplus sale proceeds. Part V defines the rights and liabilities of purchasers of various kinds, and Part VI, which is closely allied to it, provides for the protection of incumbrances against a purchaser by common and special registry, and the incidents thereto appertaining. Part VII groups together the sections relating to proceedings in the Civil Courts, the last in the series of remedies open to the public against sales, and the Act concludes with Part VIII, which contains certain miscellaneous provisions which could not conveniently find place elsewhere.

13. Second, Consolidation.—This process consists in incorporating into the Bill in the appropriate places the sections of the supplementary and subsidiary Acts mentioned above. In some cases these sections have been inserted as separate sections, in others (as, for instance, section 11 of Act VII (B.C.) of 1868) it has been found more convenient to break up the section and work the parts into the corresponding sections of Act XI.

14. Third, Amendment.—Under this head come the new sections and new parts of sections which have been introduced in order to carry out the orders of Government passed from time to time on references from the Board, or to give effect to rulings of the High Court, or to express the suggestions made by experienced officers and others who have beeen consulted. The wording of Act XI has also been cautiously modernised where needful, and, as far as was possible, vernacular words have been replaced by English equivalents. A few vernacular words have been retained as having a special technical meaning which would not necessarily be conveyed by a literal translation into English. The full details of the amendments, with the reasons for them, will be found in the following paragraphs; but it will perhaps be convenient to give in this place an abstract of the principal alterations and amendments of the existing law embodied in the present Bill—

(a) Definitions of the terms used in the Act have been supplied.

(b) The four classes of arrears and demands for which a notification is required to be issued have been reduced to one, the other three classes being practically obsolete, or provided for by other laws.

(c) Instead of leaving to the Collector power to receive or reject a tender of arrears made after sunset on the last day of payment, such arrears are now made legally receivable at any time between the latest day of payment and the sixth day before the day of sale, on payment of a fine not exceeding 25 per cent. of the arrear.

(d) When one of the proprietors of an estate pays an amount of revenue, to save the estate from sale, which is in excess of the amount due from him for his interest in the estate, he can recover the excess payment from his co-sharers by the certificate procedure.

(e) The Collector can close suo motu a separate account which has been opened for a share of an estate whenever he becomes aware that the account is incorrect, i.e. that it does not correspond to the interest in the estate held by the person in whose name it has been opened.

(f) Before holding sales for arrears, the Collector is to call for all the notifications and notices required by law to be issued, and satisfy himself that they have been properly issued, and an attestation of his having done this is to be placed on record and given to the purchaser with the certificate of sale.

(g) Persons other than the defaulting proprietor can appeal to the Commissioner against the sale of an estate.

(h) Before a reference can be made to the Board to cancel the sale of an estate on the ground of hardship, the defaulting proprietor must deposit a sum sufficient to satisfy the claim of the auction purchaser for interest and for other demands of Government which he may have paid.

(i) The Collector is to give the purchaser a certificate of sale on application only, and no steps for giving him possession will be taken till he has taken out the certificate. The procedure has been assimilated to that of the Civil Procedure Code, sections 316, 318 and 319, in giving possession of immoveable property in execution of decree.

(j) In the disposal of surplus sale proceeds the Collector is empowered, when application is made by any one who is not the defaulting proprietor, to hold an enquiry and either pay the amount or refer the applicant to the Civil Court.

(k) The liability of the person declared to be the purchaser under section 22 of Act XI (section 43 of the Bill), and his right to collect rents from tenants and ryots are made to run from the last day of payment.

(l) The provisions of Act XI for common and special registry of talukdari tenures have been extended to tenures of all descriptions without limitation of the period within which application may be made, and at a reduced fee of Rs. 2 in each case. The only condition imposed is that where the tenures have been created by deeds such deeds shall have been duly registered, and where not created by deeds, or where the deeds have been lost, proof that the tenure has been in existence for twelve years must be adduced.

(m) The schedule of fees prescribed for various applications under the Act has been revised.

PART I.

15. Section 1.—The extent of the Bill is the same as that of Act XI as declared by various notifications from time to time issued.

16. Section 3.—Act XI contained no definitions. This defect was to some extent supplied by Act VII (B.C.) of 1868, and the definitions in the latter Act have been inserted into this section of the Bill, those of "estate" and "proprietor" having been expanded by the addition of a few words taken from the corresponding definitions in the Tenancy Act. In the definition of "Revenue" the words relating to advances for takavi, embankments, and the like have been omitted, as under the law now in force these sums are recoverable by the certificate procedure. "Tenure" has been more strictly defined. In section 1 of Act VII (B.C.) of 1868 it was defined as all interests in land other than estates; but this definition would admit raiyats' holdings which was apparently not intended. The words "nor raiyats' holdings as defined in the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885," have therefore been inserted. This addition is important with reference to the extension of the system of common and special registry under Part VI of the Bill. A new expression, "independent tenure," has been adopted to facilitate the incorporation of the provisions of section 11, Act VII (B.C.) of 1868. into the numerous sections of the Bill where such incorporation is necessary, and where it would not have been possible to insert the words "tenure not being an estate the revenue of which is payable to Government" without sacrificing lucidity and grammatical accuracy.

A few additional definitions of minor importance have also been inserted.

PART II.

17. This part includes all the proceedings prior to the actual sale. It consists partly of the existing provisions of Act XI, with the additions made by Bengal Act VII of 1868 worked into their proper places, and partly of some new and important provisions.

18. Section 8.—This is section 5 of Act XI with the addition of the words "independent tenures" from section 11 of Act VII. An important change has, however, been made. The section as it stands in Act XI specifies four classes of arrears, no sale for the recovery of which can take place till after issue of a notification. According to present practice, however, the first, second and fourth of these classes are recoverable by the certificate procedure under the Public Demands Recovery Act, and in fact it is very doubtful whether arrears of the first two classes ever occur at all in the present day. These three classes have therefore been struck out and the remaining class incorporated into the text of the section. No alteration has been made in the wording of this class, as the Privy Council decision in the case of Bunwari Lal Sahu vs. Mahabir Prosad Singh XII B. L. R. p. 297, shows that there is no room for any serious doubt as to the meaning of the words as they stand.

19. Section 11.—This section, which is new and supersedes section 18 of Act XI, introduces a very material change in the law Section 18 was merely a re-enactment of a similar provision in Act I of 1845, which was intended to mitigate the stringency of what is known as the "sunset law" (section 6 of Act XI), under which, if the arrears are not paid in full by sunset on the latest day of payment, the estate becomes liable to sale. But section 18 contains no instructions to Collectors as to the considerations which should guide them in accepting or refusing payment tendered between sunset of the latest day of payment and the day of sale. Frequent instructions have, it is true, been issued for the guidance of Collectors in this matter by the Board and Government, and such instructions have always inculcated a spirit of leniency. But from the nature of the case it was impossible to secure uniformity of practice in all districts, and the discretion allowed to Collectors by the law has in consequence been exercised in different ways by different officers. This, though inevitable under the circumstances, exposes landed proprietors to all the inconvenience arising from uncertainty, and it is felt by Collectors themselves to be an embarrassing responsibility from which they would gladly be relieved. Act XII of 1841, the precursor of Act I of 1845, has been repealed, all but one section which provides that "there shall be no demand of interest or penalty upon any arrear of land revenue." This section it is now proposed to repeal, and having done so, to substitute for the present law section 11 of the Bill, which authorizes the Collector to accept arrears subsequent to the last day of payment, if accompanied by a graduated penalty as noted in the margin.* It is not proposed to allow the Collector any option in the matter, and the result will be that default will not, as at present, be invariably followed by the extreme measure of sale, but will involve in the first instance only some additional expense. The maximum penalty has been fixed at 25 per cent. (which was the amount levied in former times under Regulation VII of 1830) in order to prevent the concession being abused and default thereby encouraged. But in order that the penalty, while heavy enough to prevent intentional postponement, may not press with undue severity on persons who default for large amounts, it is proposed to levy half the ordinary penalty for arrears exceeding Rs. 5,000, and a quarter of the penalty for those exceeding Rs. 10,000. The section provides that arrears accompanied by the penalty shall be received up to the sixth day before the date of sale in ordinary cases, while section 12 of the Bill (which is also new) allows of its being received in extreme cases until the day of sale itself. Cases falling under the latter of these two sections will probably be rare, though it seems necessary to allow the Collector this small amount of option to meet peculiar and exceptional circumstances; while by fixing the close of the period for the receipt of ordinary arrears at six days before the date of sale, a stop will be put to the disturbances which not unfrequently occur in the Collector's office from defaulters arriving at the last moment and clamorously demanding permission to pay even while the sales are in progress.

20. Section 14—Is also new. It was recommended in 1874 by the British Indian Association that notices of default should be issued to certain classes of persons having claims on or interests in an estate. It was not found practicable to give effect to this suggestion at the time, nor indeed can it now be accepted in its entirety. It has, however, been provided in this section that persons having an interest in an estate may by paying a small fee, and registering their names and addresses in the Collector's office, receive notice of default by registered letter. It has been felt, however, to be necessary to provide against this arrangement, made solely for the benefit of the public, being made use of as an argument in appeals against sales, and it has therefore been distinctly laid down that no sale shall be vitiated by non-receipt of the letter, provided it can be shown that it has been registered and posted. It is not probable that the public will avail themselves very largely of this section, and the work of a Collector's office will not be very much increased thereby. The provision, however, meets what has been asserted to be a defect in the existing law, and affords an effectual protection to those who may avail themselves of it against the estates in which they are interested being sold without their knowledge.

PART III.

21. Sub-head "A. Deposits"—Is merely a reproduction of the provisions of the existing law, and calls for no special remarks.

Section 16.—It has been represented that when any one of the proprietors of an estate pays in to the Collectorate land revenue in excess of the amount due from him in order to save the estate from being sold, owing to default of his co-sharers, the only means of recovering this excess amount is by a contribution suit in the Civil Court, which is so costly and tedious a process that it is practically not worth while to resort to it. To remedy this grievance it has been suggested that the procedure of section 49 of the Cess Act (Bengal Act IX of 1880) should be extended to this class of cases, and the amount paid in excess should be recoverable by the certificate procedure. With this view this section has been inserted, taken almost verbatim from section 49 of the Cess Act. The two last paragraphs of that section have, however, been omitted, as they will be more appropriately placed in the Public Demands Act itself, a Bill for the amendment of which is now under preparation. A sentence has been inserted, taken from section 9 (b) of the Public Demands Act, making applications under this section liable to court fee stamp, as for a plaint in a money suit of similar value.

Sub-head "B. Separate Accounts"—Similarly contains the sections of Act XI and Bengal Act VII of 1868, referring to the opening of separate accounts, only slightly re-arranged and brought together. The only new provision is that in italics at the end of section 24, which provides on the analogy of section 11 of the Partition Act (Bengal Act VIII of 1876) that no separate account shall be opened for a share the revenue of which is less than one rupee. Much practical inconvenience having been found to arise from opening separate accounts for extremely small shares, this course has been taken to prevent such cases from occurring.

22. Section 28—Supplies an omission in the existing law. While section 72 of Act VII (B.C.) of 1876 provided a procedure by which a person in whose name a separate account stands open can procure the closing of that account on the extent of his interest in the estate being changed, no provision existed by which a Collector could close a separate account suo motu on finding that it was incorrect. Several cases have occurred in certain districts, in which, through mistake or fraud, persons had had separate accounts opened in their name for shares in an estate larger or smaller than those which they really possessed. A share of this kind was brought to sale for arrears of revenue, and the purchaser on attempting to take possession found that the defaulter, though having a separate account opened in his name for a 4-anna share, had really been in possession of only a 3-anna share. He then under section 29 called on the Collector to put him in possession of a 4-anna share in accordance with the sale certificate granted under section 28, and as this could not be done much difficulty ensued. To remedy cases of this kind this section has been inserted, modelled on section 28 of Act VII (B.C.) of 1876. It provides for the Collector giving notice to the holder of the share, and allows him full opportunity for objection, while it enables the Collector to close the separate account if satisfied that it does not accurately correspond with the extent of the holder's interest in the estate.

23. Sub-head C, Estates under Court of Wards.—These sections have been transferred to the Bill from the Court of Wards Act (Bengal Act IX of 1879 as amended by Bengal Act III of 1881). This portion of the law, it is considered, belongs more strictly to an Act concerning sales than to one concerning wards, as the action which it prescribes is taken by the Collector in the Sale Department of his office, and not in the Wards Department. One of the objects of this Bill as explained above being to bring together in one enactment all the scattered provisions of law relating to the subject of sales for arrears of revenue, these sections naturally fall into the place in which they have now been inserted.

24. The only change that has been made in the sections as they stood is that at the end of section 35 the provision in section 32, to the effect that on an estate which has been attached for arrears due when it ceased to be under the Court, being released from attachment, the Collector shall furnish the proprietor with accounts of the management while under attachment, has been extended to the case of minor's estates similarly released from attachment.

25. Sub-head D, Attached Estates. Sections 37 and 38.—The portions of section 17 of Act XI which have not been repealed are here inserted, but they have been divided into two sections. This has been thought a more convenient arrangement, as the conditions of the two kinds of attachment are somewhat different. Some officers having entertained doubts whether the attachment of immoveable property, such as a revenue-paying estate, under section 10 of the Public Demands Recovery Act, was an attachment of the nature contemplated by section 17 of Act XI, operating to exempt the estate from sale for arrears of revenue, the Board have found it necessary to explain that such an attachment does not exempt from sale. It is in fact merely an attachment in execution of decree. It has been thought advisable for the removal of such doubts to embody this ruling of the Board in the present Bill, in the shape of an explanation to section 38.

PART IV.

26. Section 41.—In the Full Bench ruling of the High Court in the case of Lala Mobarak Lal versus Secretary of State and others, XI I. L. R., Cal , p. 200, it has been held that in a case where a sale had been held less than thirty days from the date of affixing the notice prescribed by section 6 of Act XI, such sale might be set aside notwithstanding the limitations laid down by section 33. The irregularity, it was held, was not of such a nature as could be cured by the provisions of section 8, Act VII (B.C) of 1868, and the sale was in consequence not a sale under Act XI at all. Irregularity in the issue of the notifications and notices prescribed by law having thus such serious consequences, it becomes necessary to guard against such errors in future. It is believed that in most cases of the kind the errors are caused by mistake and oversight on the part of the subordinate ministerial officers to whom the issue of such notices is usually entrusted. It has therefore been provided that before the sales actually take place all such notifications and the returns of service of all notices shall be personally examined by the Collector himself, and that he shall place on record formal attestation that he has satisfied himself by personal inspection that all that the law requires in this respect has been duly performed. The number of notifications and returns of service which the Collector will have to examine will not be great, as in most districts (if not in all) it is customary to issue only one notification under section 6 for all estates in arrear on any one sale day. Some instructions will be required to guide Collectors in securing that the dates of issue of notices and affixing of notifications are accurately recorded, and that the returns of service are intelligible and reliable; these, however, can be provided for by executive orders of the Board or Government. The attestation will have the effect noticed under section 52 infra, and will, it is believed, render it impossible for errors regarding the issue of notices to occur in future.

Section 42.—As a further security for the proper performance of the duty of attestation by the Collector prescribed in section 41, this section, which reproduces section 21 of Act XI has been slightly changed. The initial words, "on the day of sale fixed according to section 6 of this Act" have been omitted, and in their place the words "upon completion of the attestation prescribed in the last preceding section" have been inserted. This will have the effect of rendering any sales illegal which are undertaken without the previous process of attestation. The only other alteration in the section is the substitution of the word "rent-roll" for the vernacular "taujih," a practice already in force in the Board's circulars and orders.

27. Section 44.—A question has been raised whether the difference between two bids should be realised from the defaulting bidder by the Collector suo motu, or only on the application of the late proprietor. In some districts the former, in others the latter course was pursued. It has therefore become necessary to amend section 23 of Act XI so as to clear up the point in question. It seems to have been intended that this amount should be realized by the Collector as part of the procedure necessary for recovering arrears of revenue, and it does not seem equitable that the cost of realizing the amount should be thrown on the late proprietor, who is not in any way responsible for default being made by a bidder at the sale. The words "the Collector shall proceed to levy the difference from him" have therefore been substituted for "the difference shall be levied from him." This will make it incumbent on the Collector to proceed at once of his own accord to recover the amount, instead of as at present (in some districts) waiting till the late proprietor makes an application to that effect.

28. Section 46.—It is generally considered that appeals against sales can be preferred only by the defaulting proprietor, and this view, though based on no distinct provision of the law has been held by the Board, and has been confirmed by an opinion given by the Advocate-General in 1883. It rests upon the argument that as the section (section 25 of Act XI and section 2 of Act VII) prescribes that the Commissioner on annulling a sale may award to the purchaser payment from the defaulting proprietor of compensation for his loss, the proprietor must be a party to the appeal, or, in other words, the appellant. A construction of the section which would let in the persons mentioned in section 9 of Act XI (section 17 of this Bill) would render several appeals by persons interested admissible, and this does not seem to be contemplated by the law. The ground for appeal also is simply this, that the sale has been conducted contrary to the provisions of the Act, and this is practically a question between Government and the defaulter alone, and concerns no one else.

Without questioning the correctness of this view, it must be observed that it is an inference only and not a clear precept of law, and it seems therefore expedient that the law should state definitely who are the persons who may appeal. In the opinion of some officers of experience the right of appeal should be extended to others than the defaulting proprietor, and an attempt has here been made to give effect to this opinion. It is, however, a matter of some difficulty to do this, and it is questionable whether the admission to appeal of others than the defaulting proprietor may not lead to serious complications. If an appeal be made by one who is not a proprietor, then the ground of the appeal could not be merely that the sale had been conducted irregularly, but it would also have to be proved that some injury had thereby been caused to the interests of the appellants, and if such appeal were decided in their favour and the sale annulled, it would not be equitable to make the defaulting proprietor, who would not have been a party to the appeal, pay compensation to the purchaser. On the other hand the law, as at present interpreted, debars all persons, not proprietors, who may be injuriously affected by a sale, from obtaining any redress, for section 33 of Act XI (section 74 of this Bill) provides that no sale shall be annulled by a Civil Court unless the appellant shall have first pleaded substantial injury in an appeal before the Commissioner. All remedy is therefore interdicted to those who, not being proprietors, cannot first appeal to the Commissioner.

29. Having regard to the above considerations, the section has been tentatively amended by inserting after "to receive" the words "from any person injuriously affected thereby." This renders necessary further alterations in the latter part of the section, for a person injuriously affected must plead other grounds than mere irregularity of procedure. Irregularity may be a sufficient ground for appeal as between the proprietor and Government, because the two parties are under engagement to one another, and the proprietor has a right to demand that he shall not be deprived of his estate, even though he default, except through the duly established forms of law. But with others than the proprietor Government is under no such obligation, and in their case the only ground for appeal is that the irregularity has inflicted on them some injury. This is the line taken in section 33 of Act XI, and to be consistent it must be the line taken in an appeal before the Commissioner. The words in italics have therefore been inserted.

A further alteration is also necessary to make it clear that compensation to the purchaser can only be awarded when the proprietor is the appellant. Words to this effect have therefore been inserted.

30. At the end of the section the rate of interest on compensation payable to the purchaser has been raised from "the highest rate of the current Government securities," which is generally 4½ per cent., to 12 per cent., on the ground that purchases of estates at revenue sales are frequently made with borrowed money, and that money cannot ordinarily be borrowed in these provinces at less than 12 per cent.

31. Section 47.—After 'hardship or injustice" have been inserted the words "having been caused to the appellants," the section as it stands being open to the charge of vagueness. The portion in italics has been incorporated into the law from a circular of the Board issued with the sanction of Government under the following circumstances. On sales being annulled by Government under this section, the law gives to Government power to impose such conditions as may appear proper, but it does not state how those conditions are to be enforced. In the case of the proprietor refusing or neglecting to comply with the conditions, when those conditions involve his paying interest on the purchase-money, it has been held that the purchaser can only recover the amount so due to him by a civil suit. But as this is manifestly an unsatisfactory state of things, it was suggested that the proprietor, when appealing on the ground of hardship, should prove his readiness to comply with the conditions that might be imposed on him by Government by depositing beforehand the amount of interest on purchase-money and a sum sufficient to cover other payments which may have been made by the purchaser. This was the substance of the circular, and it is now thought advisable to give it the sanction of law.

32. Section 48.—The rate of interest has here also been raised to 12 per cent. for the reasons stated under section 46.

33. Section 50.—Important changes have been made in this section. The law as it stands (section 28 of Act XI) provides that "immediately on a sale becoming final and conclusive the Collector shall give to the purchaser a certificate." But it is useless to prescribe that the Collector "shall" do something which it may not be in his power to do. The Collector cannot give the purchaser the certificate if the purchaser will not come and take it. In many districts it has been found that purchasers do not come to take the certificates, and the Collector is therefore powerless to carry out the law. The reasons for the neglect to take certificates are variously stated by different officers, but they may be practically reduced to three heads—

(1) Because the purchaser does not want to get possession. Either the defaulting proprietor has purchased the estate himself benami and remains in possession all along, or the purchaser retransfers the estate to the defaulting proprietor and receives back the purchase-money; or the estate has no real existence, having diluviated or otherwise disappeared, and the purchaser, on discovering this, simply defaults at the next kist and so gets rid of a bad bargain.

(2) Because as the law stands the Collector notifies the transfer on the estate without waiting for the purchaser to take the certificate. The purchaser thereby gets possession without difficulty, and the ryots having heard the proclamation pay him rent without opposition. The Collector must also under section 29 give possession before the certificate is taken. Under these circumstances unless the purchaser's title is disputed there is no need for him to take out the certificate, all that he requires being done for him without it.

(3) Because under Article 16, Schedule I of the Stamp Act (I of 1879), the certificate must bear the same stamp as a conveyance, which amounts to one rupee on every hundred rupees of the purchase-money.

34. Undoubtedly the heaviness of the stamp duty is one of the chief causes of the general neglect to take out the certificate. But as in all cases of private sale a conveyance is required and a stamp duty is charged thereon, it is obviously fair that stamp duty should also be charged on the certificate which in revenue sales takes the place of the conveyance in private sales. The loss to the revenue by purchasers not taking out certificates is in some districts considerable, and it becomes therefore necessary to make some provision by which the taking out of certificates shall be made as far as possible compulsory.

With this object, in the first place the words of section 28 quoted above have been omitted, and the words in italics in section 50 of the Bill substituted. This change relieves the Collector from the injunction to do what he has not the power to do, and substitutes the provision that the purchaser shall be entitled to receive a certificate on application.

35. In the second place the procedure of this and the following section has been assimilated to that of the Civil Courts in giving possession of immoveable property purchased at a sale in execution of decree as provided in sections 316, 318 and 319 of the Civil Procedure Code. The difference between this procedure and that of Act XI lies in the material point that in the former possession is not given till the certificate has been granted. Any purchaser therefore who requires to obtain possession (as the great majority of them do) will be compelled to take out the certificate without delay. It has now been provided, by the insertion in section 50 of the words "on such certificate being granted," that the Collector will not notify the transfer in the interior of the district until the certificate is granted. The insertion of the same words at the beginning of section 51 also precludes the Collector from giving possession till the certificate has been granted. It is true that in section 316 of the Civil Procedure Code the grant of the certificate is made compulsory on the Court, and it has been ruled that the Court has no discretion, and that the purchaser may apply for it at any time within three years as provided in Article 178, Schedule 2 of the Limitation Act (XV of 1877). But there is considerable difference of opinion on this subject (see the rulings in Broughton's "notes of cases," page 440), and the same considerations are not applicable to revenue as to Civil Court sales. In the latter neither the Government nor the Court has any interest beyond that of the stamp revenue in compelling the purchaser to take out a certificate quickly, while in the former the security of the Government revenue renders it advisable that the purchaser should both take out the certificate and enter on possession without delay.

It would seem also that the words in section 316, "the Court shall grant," are always construed as contingent on application by the purchaser (see Johurmul Khurba versus Taran Kisto Deb 10 I. L. R., Cal., p. 252). It is even more necessary for a purchaser at a revenue sale to get possession than for one at a Civil Court sale, because the former has now been made, under section 56 of the Bill, liable for the Government revenue from the date of his purchase, so that he is under heavy liabilities with no corresponding power of realizing rents from raiyats

36. It is believed that all these considerations combined will, if the Bill becomes law, operate powerfully to induce purchasers to take out certificates without delay. It may be objected that these provisions only apply to the case of bonâ fide purchasers who really wish to obtain possession, and that they will not secure the taking out of certificates by the classes of purchasers mentioned in class (1) of paragraph 34 above, who have either got possession already, or do not want to have it. The objection is just, but the answer to it is that in those cases the remedy lies elsewhere. Provisions against fraudulent benami purchases will be found in other parts of this Act; in this section the object is merely to secure the stamp revenue. Against persons who retransfer after purchase the remedy lies in the Land Registration Act (VII B.C. of 1876). Against those who purchase a diluviated estate in ignorance of the fact, no remedy is necessary; the proper course is to have the estate removed from the rent-roll. A suggestion has been made that the stamp-fee on the certificate shall be treated as part of the purchase-money, but this seems a somewhat arbitrary procedure, and hardly necessary if the provisions now inserted in the Bill prove effectual in inducing all bonâ fide purchasers to take the certificate without delay, as it is believed they will.

37. Section 51.—In addition to the points mentioned above, which apply to this section in common with section 50, there is another point of some importance. In some instances purchasers have demanded that the Collector shall give them possession by metes and bounds; that is, that he shall ascertain and define for them the actual boundaries of the estate, and place them in actual possession thereof. This is not required by the law, and it is difficult to understand how such an opinion has grown up. The wording of section 29 of Act XI was based on that of the former Code of Civil Procedure, Act VIII of 1859, and has in this Bill by a slight transposition of sentences been made identical with that of the present Civil Procedure Code, sections 318 and 319. It is obvious that the possession to be given to purchasers at a revenue sale was always intended to be similar in kind to that given by a Civil Court, and it might therefore be held that it would suffice to use in this section the same words as those used in the Civil Procedure Code. As, however, doubts have apparently arisen on the subject, a provision has been added limiting the duties of a Collector to giving possession in this way.

38. The question as to the precise meaning of the words "removing any person who refuses to vacate" may be answered in the same way as the preceding one, by saying that the words are to be understood in the same sense as in the corresponding section of the Civil Procedure Code. They do not imply forcible dispossession, but merely that the person in question shall be warned to vacate. Under section 331 of the Civil Procedure Code, the consequences of disobeying such a warning would be liability to a civil suit as well as to prosecution under the Penal Code. It has not been thought necessary to substitute more explicit words in this section, because what is clear enough in one Act is clear enough in another. Should the question arise hereafter, a decision of Government or the Board framed in accordance with the above remarks will probably suffice to set it at rest.

39. Section 52.—The words in italics complete the chain of precautions necessary to meet the difficulty raised in the case of Lala Mobarak Lall referred to under section 41. This difficulty is more clearly stated in the case of Balmokoond Lal versus Jirjodhun Roy, 9 I. L. R., Cal., 271. This case is parallel to, and is quoted in the pleadings in, Mobarak Lall's case. In this case after quoting the words of section 8, Bengal Act VII of 1868 (on which the section of the Bill now under notice is based), the Court remarks, "this shows that any omission, informality or irregularity as regards the serving or posting of the notification would not be a ground for setting aside the sale, but it does not lay down that omission to fix the date of sale, in accordance with the provisions of section 6 of Act XI, would not affect the title of the purchaser." In other words section 8 of Act VII is insufficient, inasmuch as it is confined to the serving and posting of notices, and does not therefore cure irregularities of other kinds. The insertion of the words "for the period, at the places, and in the manner by this Act required" will, it is believed, supply the omission, the words "for the period" implying that the notice under section 6 has been issued thirty days before the date of sale. For the further quieting of all doubts as to the effect of the certificate and attestation combined, the words "and that the sale to which they refer was a sale under this Act" have been added.

40. Sections 54 and 55.—Difficulties have arisen in some districts in respect of the payment of surplus sale proceeds to persons other than the late recorded proprietor, as, for instance, when the late proprietor dies and there is a dispute as to succession among his relatives. In such a case it is often impossible for the Collector to decide who is the proper person to receive the amount, and if he refuses to pay any claimant he becomes liable to a civil suit. These two sections, the procedure of which has been taken from the Land Registration Act VII (B.C.) of 1876, sections 48 and 52, have been introduced to meet this difficulty. They give the Collector power to hold an enquiry and either to pay the amount to the claimant or refer the parties to the Civil Court for the settlement of their respective claims. It is further provided on the analogy of section 33 (section 74 of this Bill) that no person who has not presented an objection to the Collector shall at any future time be entitled to claim the surplus sale proceeds. The Collector will thus, it is believed, be protected from having to defend a suit in the Civil Court on a matter in which he is not interested, as under the procedure now proposed it will not be possible for a claimant to include the Collector in any suit he may institute, but only to proceed against the opposite party.

PART V.

41. Section 56.—The law at present (section 80 of Act XI) prescribes "that the party who is certified as the proprietor of an estate by purchase under this Act" shall be liable for the revenue from the latest day of payment. The word "certified" evidently alludes to the certificate issued under section 28 of Act XI But it has been shown in the remarks on section 50 of this Bill, that certificates are not taken out immediately in some cases, and although it has now been proposed to alter the law so as to render the taking of certificates more binding upon purchasers than it is at present, there may still be many cases in which for various reasons the certificate will not be taken out immediately after sale, or at all. It seems therefore advisable to make the purchaser's liability for the Government revenue date from the time when he is declared to be the purchaser, and not to leave it dependent upon his taking out the certificate, a proceeding which it will still be in his power to defer. The wording has therefore been altered to meet this view. The alteration is in accordance with the Full Bench ruling of the High Court in the case of Bhyrub Chunder Banerjea versus Soudamini Debya, 2 I. L. R., Cal., page 141, which is rendered applicable to revenue sales by the ruling in the case of Chatraput Singh versus Girindra Chandra Roy, 6 I. L. R., Cal., page 389. In the latter case also it was noted that in the present law there is no provision as to the date from which the purchaser may commence to collect rents from tenure-holders and raiyats. Section 55 of Act XI (section 63 of this Bill) provides that the defaulting proprietor may collect rents due up to the latest day of payment, and it follows that the purchaser should be entitled to collect those due after that date, but by some oversight no such provision has been made. This omission has now been remedied by the insertion of the words "and shall be entitled to collect rents from all tenants and raiyats" which may fall due after the latest day of payment.

42. Section 57.—In the third section, the words in section 37 of Act XI, "talookdari and other similar" tenures, and the words "and held immediately of the proprietors of estates" have been omitted in order to give effect to the extension of the system of common and special registry which will be found fully explained on the remarks on section 64 below.

43. Section 58—Has been introduced from Act VII (B C.) of 1868, section 12. The first, second and third classes of exceptions being the same as those attached to section 37 of Act XI (section 57 of the Bill), a reference to that section has been substituted for the full text of the exceptions to avoid repetition. In this and the preceding section the words "under-tenants" and "under-tenures," somewhat loosely used, have been replaced by "tenants" and "tenures." The debates in Council on Act XI of 1859 show clearly that the words tenure and under-tenure were at that time used indifferently to mean what in the present state of the law are known as tenures. By the definition in section 3 of the Bill, the term tenures includes under-tenures. The use of the latter term is therefore unnecessary.

44. Section 60.—The words in italics have been inserted with reference to the High Court ruling in Monohur Mookerjea versus Hurmohun Mookerjea, I. W. R., page 27, in order to make it clear that when separate accounts are opened for shares in an estate, the residue of the estate for which no separate account has been opened must also be considered as a share and not as an entire estate, with reference more especially to the rights of a purchaser as laid down in this section.

Part VI.

45. Section 64.—This is section 38 of Act XI. The words "Talookdaree and other similar tenures created since the time of settlement and held immediately of the proprietors of estates" have been omitted, and the single word "tenures" substituted; also after the words "farms for terms of years" the words "so held" have been omitted. The effect of these changes is to throw open to tenures of all sorts and classes the benefits of the system of common and special registry.

It has long been felt that adequate protection against annulment by a purchaser at a sale for arrears of revenue was not secured to tenures by the sale laws, and various expedients have from time to time been suggested and tried. In the earlier stages of the law the principle prevailed of "holding the estate of a defaulter answerable for the punctual realization of the Government revenue in the state in which it stood at the time the settlement was concluded" (Regulation XI of 1822, section 30). It was therefore prescribed that all tenures should be annulled by a sale for arrears. Consequently the purchaser acquired the estate free of all incumbrances. To prevent, however, the abuse of this principle by zemindars voluntarily causing their estates to be sold in order to get rid of incumbrances created by themselves or their predecessors, Government (section 31 of the Regulation) reserved to itself the power of putting up an estate to sale in the first instance subject to all incumbrances whenever such a course should be found necessary. In the event of such sale not producing a sufficient amount to cover the arrear, it was not to be confirmed, but a second sale with power to annul incumbrances would take place.

The provisions above mentioned were, it will be seen, made primarily with a view to the security of the Government revenue, and only in a secondary degree took into consideration the protection of the tenants.

46. The law remained virtually unaltered in the subsequent enactments, Act XII of 1841 and Act I of 1845. In the latter Act the exceptions appended to section 37 of Act XI appear, omitting the third. Farms for not more than twenty years were also included in the list of exceptions, as were also lands held by occupancy ryots. This was the state of the law down to 1859. When Act XI of that year was under discussion, the Government of Bengal proposed a somewhat important change, namely, "that all tenures in an estate, without exception or enquiry, should be allowed to hold good against an auction purchaser as long as the parent estate should be saleable at a price which would cover the arrears of revenue due from it; but that as soon as the parent estate should fail to be saleable at such a price it should be forfeited to Government and the whole of the past settlement under-tenures should be annulled; whereupon Government should proceed to form a new settlement" The framers of the Bill, on the other hand, proposed a system somewhat similar to that at present in force. The holder of a tenure created since the permanent settlement might apply to the Collector for registration; the Collector should then measure and survey the tenure, and if satisfied that its rent was sufficient to pay its share of the jumma of the estate, should register it. The effect of such registration would be to protect the tenure from cancelment under all contingencies. Of those two proposals, that of the Government of Bengal would, if adopted, have probably been more favourable to the tenure-holder than the other, because it granted security complete and absolute without any expense to tenure-holders of all kinds, except in the one event of the estate not realising at sale a sum sufficient to cover the arrears. Even in this event Government in re-entering on the estate and resettling it would most certainly have respected all existing rights so far as they were consistent with the security of the revenue. The utmost the tenure-holders would have had to fear would be some, perhaps not very large, increase of their rents. Moreover, the constantly increasing value of anded property in Bengal would have a tendency to render more and more rare those instances in which an estate did not realise at a sale enough to pay the arrears of revenue. In practice, therefore, the proposal of the Bengal Government would probably have resulted in the most complete security to tenure-holders. The alternative proposal would also undoubtedly give equal security, but it would be rather heavily purchased, for the expense of the measurement and assessment of a tenure, with the attendant legal expenditure, must always amount to a considerable sum.

47. After protracted discussion, the system at present in force, which represents neither of the above proposals, was adopted. Two classes of registry were introduced, one of which protects talukdari and other similar tenures against all auction-purchasers at a sale except Government; the other protects them against all purchasers including Government. The first class is attended by hardly any expense at all; it is only the second which remains expensive.

The experience of more than thirty years has shown that this system has been absolutely unsuccessful. It gives protection only to tenures created by the proprietors of estates, leaving unprotected all the numerous tenures of the second and lower degrees, such as dar-patnidars, dar-haqladars and the like; and it has remained almost entirely a dead-letter, applications for common registry having been very few in number, and those for special registry almost non-existent. The restriction of registry to tenures of the first decree was apparently due to the apprehension expressed by the Government of Bengal that applications for registry would be so numerous that the Collector and his subordinates would be unable to cope with them. This apprehension, as subsequent experience has shown, was groundless.

48. Under these circumstances the Board of Revenue, in 1885, proposed to revive in a modified form the system of double sales prevalent before 1859. But on consideration there were found to be many objections to this proposal. It would undoubtedly be very much opposed by the zemindars, whose interests also must be considered, as it would very seriously affect the price realised by their estates when sold. It would deliver to the auction-purchaser an estate burdened with all sorts of incumbrances, many of which would be probably fictitious or created fraudulently by the defaulting proprietors. In the words of Mr. J. P. Grant when introducing the Bill which afterwards became Act XI, "estates might be purchased by persons in ignorance of the fraud, who would ultimately discover that they had bought a losing concern, or a bag of law suits.....he believed that a general reduction of the value of zemindari property would be the consequence."

The opinions of many of the experienced officers consulted with reference to the Board's proposal in 1885 were also opposed to the system of double sales, and powerful arguments against it in addition to those mentioned above, which it would take too much space to insert here, were adduced.

49. Turning to the laws in force in other Provinces, it appears that in the North-Western Provinces, Act XIX of 1873, section 157, provides that land sold for its own arrears is to be sold free of all incumbrances and contracts made by any one but the purchaser, except farms for less than 20 years and lands leased for houses, and the like. In Assam section 55 of the Land Revenue Regulation, 1886, provides for registry of talukdari or other similar tenures created since the Permanent Settlement and held direct from the proprietor of an estate; the very words, in fact, of section 37 of Act XI, section 71, and lays down that estates shall be sold free of all incumbrances except tenures held from the Permanent Settlement and those registered under section 55. It adds, however, one important class, namely, tenures created in good faith at rent not less than the revenue payable in respect of the land. In the Oudh Revenue Act (XII of 1876), land is to be sold free of incumbrances, except those created by the purchaser and leases of land for buildings, &c. But the system of double sales in force under Act I of 1845 is here introduced, the Chief Commissioner having power to declare that any land in arrear may be sold subject to such incumbrances as he may exempt from annulment. A second sale with power to annul incumbrances may take place if the proceeds of the first sale are insufficient to cover the arrear. On the whole, with the partial exception of the Oudh law, the tendency of recent legislature seems to be in favour of selling land free of all incumbrances except such as are of a distinct and well established nature, the existence of which can give rise to no doubts or dispute.

50. In view of the considerations recited above, the only available resource for on the one hand making over an estate to the purchaser free of all incumbrances of doubtful validity, and on the other hand securing adequate protection to bond fide tenants of all classes, seems to lie in an extension of the principle of registry. It may indeed be doubted—and this is a view held by several experienced officers—whether there is any practical utility in retaining the costly and always uncertain system of special registry. It must always be exceedingly difficult for any Collector to attain to the certainty that the rents of any tenure are sufficient to meet its proportionate share of the land revenue of the estate; and as purchase of an estate of any real value by Government under section 58 of Act XI in consequence of no bid sufficient to cover the arrears being made, is an event of very rare occurrence, it can hardly be said that there exists any real necessity for giving tenures protection against Government. For the present, however, the provision regarding special registry has been left untouched, as opinions regarding this point have not yet been invited; the question will doubtless receive the attention of Council.

51. In seeking for the reasons which have led to the provisions of Act XI concerning registry remaining to so great an extent inoperative, it may be observed in the first place that the classes to which protection is given by this Act are those who are least in need of it. Tenure-holders of the first grade, those, that is, who hold directly from the zemindar, are usually men of substance and local influence, and though a purchaser has by law the power of ousting them from their tenures, he finds it in practice very difficult to do so, and prefers to make a compromise of some sort with them and leave them undisturbed. The first reason therefore for the neglect of registry by tenure-holders is that they feel themselves sufficiently secure without it.

In the second place the process of registry is expensive. Under Act XI the scale of fees was very high, being 25 per cent. on the rental of tenures or farms not exceeding Rs. 500, 5 per cent. on those not exceeding Rs. 1,000, and 1 per cent. on all above that amount.

By Bengal Act III of 1862 the scale of fees was lowered to 5 per cent. on the rental of tenures or farms up to Rs. 1,000, and 1 per cent. on all above that amount. Even this, however, seems high, and the reduction of the rate which affects only the smaller tenures has not had the effect of inducing tenure-holders to register more freely than before.

Thirdly, section 45 of Act XI as it originally stood required that tenures then existing should be registered within three years of the passing of the Act, and tenures created subsequently within three months of their creation By Bengal Act III of 1862 the time for registering tenures existing at the time of the passing of Act XI was extended to three years from the passing of Act III of 1862, that for registry of tenures created between the passing of Act XI and that of Act III to three months from the latter date, and all tenures created subsequently to three months from date of creation. At present therefore no old tenures, but only those created within the last three months, can be registered. The vast majority of tenures are thus excluded from the protection afforded by the law, and that too in most cases not from the laches of the present holders, but that of their predecessors.

52. To carry out therefore effectually the extension of the system of common registry and, if it should still be thought worth while, of special registry also, it is necessary, first, to remove from the text of the Act all words limiting or defining tenures or under-tenures; secondly, to abolish the limitation as to the time within which tenures can be registered; and thirdly, to reduce the fees for registry to a moderate amount. Thus all tenures of every grade and kind will be susceptible of being registered at any time, and at a cost, excepting special registry, which is within the means of the poorest. If after this tenure-holders still do not protect themselves by registry, they will be without excuse, as the law gives them every facility for so doing.

53. Section 66.—In the sixth particular appended to this section, the words in italics have been added to guard against the abuse of the extended system of registry by applications being made for registry of invalid tenures; either the deed constituting the tenure must be produced, or if, as sometimes happens, the deed has been lost, proof that the tenure has been in existence for the period of twelve years fixed by Article 121, Schedule II of the Limitation Act. It has also been prescribed that such deed or proof shall be submitted for the Collector's inspection, and in section 67 it is further provided that the Collector shall consider such proof and grant or refuse registry according as he is satisfied or not. These provisions, it is believed, will effectually guard against fraudulent registry of unauthorized tenures. The mere issue of a notice to the proprietors, a procedure which might have been sufficient when only the greater tenures could be registered, will hardly be of any use now, as a zemindar would probably be unable or unwilling to contest every petty case that may now arise.

54. Section 71—Has been introduced from the Partition Act (Act VIII B.C. of 1876), as the matter to which it refers seems more appropriate to this Bill.

55. Section 75.—This section gives effect to the general extension of the system of registry by enabling tenures to be registered at any time, provided the deeds constituting them (when there are any) have been properly registered under the Indian Registration Act of 1877.

Part VII.

56. Calls for no remarks. No changes have been made in this part of the law.

Part VIII.

57. Section 82.—This has been introduced from Act VII (B.C.) of 1868. The wording has been slightly amplified, and a necessary explanation added from section 78 of the Civil Procedure Code.

58. Section 83.—Section 49 of Act XI contained merely a general provision that the subordinate revenue authorities should act in accordance with instructions received from the superior revenue authorities in respect of the registration of tenures. But this seems hardly in accordance with the more accurate instructions common in recent legislation. It was also to a certain extent superfluous, as the subordination of officers of lower rank to those above them is a general principle hardly needing to be specifically enunciated. Definite provisions regarding appeals have therefore been substituted, and power has been given to the Collector to refer cases for decision to his subordinates. The latter part of section 49 relating to revision of Commissioner's orders in special registry cases has been put into a separate section (section 84 of the Bill).

59. Section 89.—This is section 9 of Act VII (B.C.) of 1868. It has been inserted provisionally at the end of this Bill, as it is very doubtful whether it is necessary to retain it at all. It is a section to remove doubts as to the validity of certain sales of lakhiraj tenures which appear at some time or other to have been held under Act XI. The circumstances under which such sales were held cannot now be traced, and it is not probable that any such sales would be held in the present day. The repeal of this section would not re-open the question, should any such arise, of the validity of past sales, as such action is provided against in section 2 of this Bill. It would seem therefore that the section might fairly be treated as obsolete. The subject, however, deserves consideration.

RESOLUTION ON THE ADMINISTRATION REPORT OF THE JAIL DEPARTMENT FOR THE YEAR 1889.

RESOLUTION.

JAILS.

Dated Darjeeling, the 18th June 1890.

READ—

The Report on the Administration of the Jail Department for the year 1889.

Read also—

The Reports for the years 1887 and 1888, and the orders of Government recorded thereon.

Dr. Purves officiated as Inspector-General of Jails from the 1st January to the 30th April, when he went on furlough, and was relieved by Mr. A. D. Larymore, who acted up to the 14th May. Dr. Lethbridge returned from special duty and took charge of the Department from the 15th May. He was on privilege leave from the 18th July to the 15th August, during which period Mr. Larymore again acted for him. The annual report has been submitted with the usual punctuality, and is as concise as the importance of the subjects dealt with will allow.

2. Judicial Statistics.—The total jail population at the beginning of the year was 13,985. The total number of admissions during the year rose from 81,136 to 84,639, the largest number admitted since 1879. The increase occurs in the number of convicts and under-trial prisoners, while the number of civil prisoners fell from 1,502 to 825, the reduction being due to recent changes in the law. There remained 15,048 prisoners in jail at the close of the year. The figures of the previous year's population were undoubtedly slightly affected by the Jubilee releases of 1887, and those for this year are not above the average of the five years from 1881 to 1886. The following table shows the figures for convicts only for the last ten years:—

	1880.	1881.	1882.	1883.	1884.	1885.	1886.	1887.	1888.	1889.

It will be noted that the number of direct admissions (33,542) in 1889 is the highest that has been recorded since 1879, and that the daily average number of convicts rose from 12,378 in 1888 to 13,591 in 1889. The increase is stated to have been mainly due to the large number of convictions for theft and other minor offences against property prompted by the high prices of food-grains. The following statement of offences against property in the Patna Division, in which considerable scarcity prevailed during the year under report, fully supports the view expressed by the Inspector-General of Jails, and the detailed figures of such crimes in the districts of Mozufferpur, Chumparun, and Durbhunga, which were more especially affected by the failure of crops tend still further to bear it out:—

NAME.	1889.			1888
	Cases of burglary ascertained to be true.	Case of theft ascertained to be true.	Admissions to jail.	Cases of burglary ascertained to be true.	Cases of theft ascertained to be true.	Admissions to jail.

Chumparun ,, ...	961	1,159	616	651	857	383

The proportion of the daily average number of convicts confined in central jails to the total daily average population was 53·68 per cent. against 57·40 in the preceding year. The district and intermediate jails held 43·68 per cent. of the population, the corresponding ratio for the previous year being 39·96. The percentage of the population of subsidiary jails (2·64) was the same as in 1888. The decrease in the percentage of convicts confined in central jails was the result of the recommendations of the Jail Committee for increasing the sleeping space for each prisoner. Most of the district and intermediate jails had accommodation for a larger number of prisoners than they had been holding, but this was not the case with the central jails, which were consequently most affected by the orders in question. In consequence of the large population of the Purneah intermediate jail, and the insufficiency of the staff sanctioned for such jails to control this convict population, the Inspector-General of Jails has proposed its reconversion into a district jail. Dr. Lethbridge is also anxious to reconvert some other of the intermediate jails into district jails, but the Lieutenant-Governor would prefer to wait until the effects of the late scarcity have passed away before dealing with this question on a large scale.

3. The number of convicts released on expiry of sentence rose from 26,452 in 1888 to 28,754 in 1889; the admission of a large number of prisoners with short sentences, which terminated during the year, accounts for the increase. The number released on appeal fell from 1,980 in 1888 to 1,942 in 1889. There had been a steady increase in the number of such releases since 1882, and the slight decrease of last year, although it occurred in a year of numerous admissions, does not show any marked improvement in what is an unsatisfactory feature in the criminal administration of Bengal. The subject will come before the Lieutenant-Governor again when the report on crime in the Lower Provinces comes up for review. There were 1,575 releases under the mark rules as compared with 1,352 in 1888, which shows that the disturbing element in the working of the mark system introduced by the exceptional releases of the year 1887 is beginning to disappear. Thirty-seven prisoners were released on medical grounds against 33 in the previous year, and only two convicts were set free on other grounds as compared with 88 in 1888, when many were released in consequence of special remissions granted to them on the occurrence of Her Majesty's jubilee.

4. The number of convicts transported beyond the seas rose from 797 in 1887 and 803 in 1888 to 829 in 1889. The steady increase is due to the relaxation of the rules regulating the selection of convicts for deportation. The number of prisoners belonging to this Province, who were transported in 1889, was 119 against 97 in 1888. Executions, of which there were 21 in 1888, fell in 1889 to the unusually small number of 17.

5. There were 404 Burman convicts in jail on the 31st December 1888, and 200 were admitted during the year under review, bringing the total to 604. Their conduct in jail has been on the whole good, and, notwithstanding the large increase in their numbers, the offences recorded against them during the year only increased from 434 to 455, of which 271 related to work. One of the convicts was sentenced to capital punishment for having murdered another Burmese prisoner, a convict overseer, and there was another case of serious assault, in which a Burman attacked a Bengali prisoner, but the measures immediately taken prevented him from doing much harm. The Burmese are a dangerous class of prisoners on account of their instability of character, their impulsive nature, and their great impatience of restraint, but their capacity for work is superior to that of other native convicts, and the Superintendents are naturally inclined to appoint them freely to jail offices. It is not, however, safe to have a large proportion of these men as overseers and convict warders, for even holding offices of trust is not sufficient to restrain their longing for freedom. The Jail Committee have therefore proposed the introduction of a ticket-of-leave system for them, a measure which has been advocated by this Government for the last three years. The question is now under the consideration of the Government of India.

6. Of the convicts admitted during the year, there were 60·95 per cent. Hindus, 34·70 per cent. Mahomedans, 1·24 per cent. Christians, 0·36 per cent. Buddhists and Jains, and 2·75 per cent. of all other religions. The corresponding figures of the previous year are 60·57, 35·60, 1·19, 0·50, and 2·14. The number of juveniles admitted in 1889 was 434 against 306 in the preceding year. Both the Reformatory Schools at Alipur and Hazaribagh continue to do excellent work.

7. The number of prisoners sentenced to simple imprisonment rose from 2,143 to 2,434, of those to rigorous imprisonment only from 28,716 to 30,949, and of those to rigorous imprisonment with whipping from 72 to 117, but only 42 prisoners were sentenced to rigorous imprisonment with solitary confinement against 64 in the preceding year. No explanation of the increase in the number of prisoners punished with simple imprisonment has been given, and further enquiries will be made as to the very large number of such sentences in Singbhum (83), Manbhum (60), Puri (59), Cuttack (59) and Patna (79). The number of female convicts increased from 1,218 in 1888 and 1,280 in 1887 to 1,503 in 1889. The number of re-convicted prisoners fell from 3,612 in 1888 to 3,561 in 1889; the recent rules regarding the identification and classification of habitual offenders have been worked with great care both by the Jail and Police Departments; still the Lieutenant-Governor thinks that much more remains to be done. The Inspector-General's investigations in the central jails have led him to the conclusion that there are in those establishments 300 or 400 incorrigible thieves, for whom transportation for life is the only punishment likely to be effective. At the suggestion of the Inspector-General, the Government of Bengal has lately recommended to the Government of India that experiments should be made in the Presidency and Alipur Jails in the system of anthropometry which is said to be so successful a feature of jail administration in the city of Paris. The number of persons imprisoned for failing to give security for good behaviour had been increasing somewhat rapidly since 1884, but the last year shows for the first time a slight decrease, viz., 1,066 against 1,070 in 1888. Of the total number of prisoners admitted during the year, 87·04 per cent. were unable to read and write, 9·48 per cent. were able to read and write a little, and 3·48 per cent. were able to read and write well. The figures of the previous year were 86·64, 10·21 and 3·15 respectively. In the year under review 1,528 judicial sentences of whipping were inflicted against 1,234 in 1888; the number of boys whipped increased from 394 to 485.

8. There were 30,219 under-trial prisoners admitted during the year against 28,454 in 1888. Of these 11 escaped during the year and six remained at large at the close of the year. The number of deaths among the under-trial prisoners rose from 43 in 1888 to 61 in 1889. The daily average number of under-trial prisoners increased from 1,255 in 1888 to 1,379 in the year under report, and the even distribution of these deaths among the various jails of the province does not suggest any particular cause for the increased mortality. The report shows for the first time the average period of detention of under-trial prisoners in Sessions cases separately. The longest period of detention (109·41 days) among these cases occurred in the district of Julpaiguri, and there was a detention for over two months in seven other districts. The tabular statement of these figures which is given is interesting, but shows unsatisfactory results. The average period of detention was 45·81 days in Sessions cases and 13·44 in others. The number of civil prisoners admitted was only 825 against 1,502 of the previous year; this large decrease is attributed to the alteration in the civil laws, which took effect in May 1888. It is remarkable that with a daily average of 54·49 civil prisoners there was only one death.

9. Jail buildings.—The total expenditure on jail buildings during the year amounted to Rs. 2,37,214 against Rs. 2,40,244 in 1888. In the Presidency Jail Rs. 35,220 were spent on the construction of corrugated iron work sheds, a new civil ward, and on other improvements. In the Bhagalpur Central Jail Rs. 10,173 were expended in building a double-storied barrack and improving the jailors' quarters, and at Dacca Rs. 7,736 were expended on the work of constructing double-storied barracks. At Buxar a house for the Deputy Superintendent and a godown for storing rations and clothing were built; these and other improvements were carried out at an aggregate cost of Rs. 19,664. At Khulna and Purulia Rs. 4,694 and Rs. 2,564 were respectively expended in making additions and alterations to the existing jail buildings, and the temporary wards at Faridpur were furnished with corrugated iron roofs at a cost of

Rs. 2,424. A sum of Rs. 53,822 was expended in constructing six subsidiary jails and a new intermediate jail, and in making improvements in other subsidiary jail buildings. The daily average number of prisoners employed on jail buildings was 1,316 against 1,334 in 1888.

10. Guards and escapes.—The total number of warders and head-warders employed in jails and subsidiary jails during the year was 1,587 against 1,584 in the preceding year. It is possible that this staff may have to be increased by the ultimate reconversion of some intermediate jails into district jails, but for the present the increase in the population of those jails may be met by temporary additions to the force of warders until it has been ascertained whether the general tendency to decrease, which has been observable for some years, has been permanently checked or only casually interrupted during a year of scarcity. The general improvement in the appearance and efficiency of the warder guard has been noticed by the Lieutenant-Governor with great satisfaction during his tours of inspection; the offences committed by warders (2,504 as against 1,815 in 1888 and 2,359 in 1887) are still very numerous, but the large number reported under the heads of 'absence from duty,' 'neglect of duty' and 'backwardness in drill' shows that the increase is due to a great extent to the enforcement of stricter discipline.

11. There were only 11 escapes during the year as compared with 21 in 1888 and 13 in 1887. This is the lowest number on record, and is very satisfactory. The only case which calls for notice is that of the two European prisoners who escaped from the Presidency Jail by breaking locks and climbing the outer main wall from a cross wall which was then under construction. They were eventually recaptured by the Calcutta Police and placed on their trial before the Chief Presidency Magistrate, who sentenced them to seven days' rigorous imprisonment. The extraordinary leniency of this sentence, which was, in the Lieutenant-Governor's opinion, wholly inadequate as a punishment for the grave offence committed, had a demoralising effect on the other prisoners in the Presidency Jail, and it is much to the credit of the officials of that jail that they were able to prevent the recurrence of such escapes. The warders who were responsible for the escape were punished departmentally. Of the 11 prisoners who escaped, seven were recaptured; besides these, four of those who had escaped in previous years were apprehended.

12. Prison discipline.—The very important recommendations of the Jail Committee on the subject of the classification and punishment of jail offences, though approved generally, still await the final orders of the Government of India. They will considerably modify future returns on the subject, and, by separating serious from trivial offences, help to make the record of such offences more intelligent and more uniform throughout British India. Despite the increase in the daily average population of the jails, there was a decrease in the number of offences committed from 29,064 in 1888 to 25,107 in 1889, the percentage to that daily average population falling from 234·8 to 184·8; the decrease occurred under every head of breach of jail discipline. Punishments by criminal courts rose from 29 in 1888 to 40 in 1889, and the punishment of reduced diet was awarded in 563 cases against 525 in 1888. Of prisoners punished with solitary confinement, 1276 suffered that punishment only, while 318 more received reduced diet in addition; in 1888 the respective numbers were 1,295 and 352. There was an increase from 245 to 272 in the cases in which corporal punishment was inflicted, and it is a matter for regret that in spite of the repeated orders of Government cases in which less than 10 stripes were awarded should still occur. There were 204 cases of corporal punishment in central jails, where all long-term prisoners and bad characters are confined. Fetters were imposed as a punishment in 7,793 cases against 8,759 in 1888, and in 119 cases they were used for safe custody.

13. Of the total daily average number of male convicts in 1889, 5·70 per cent. were employed as convict officers, as compared with 5·93 per cent. in 1888. The convict officers are reported to have worked excellently during the year, and they seem to have understood that only continuous good behaviour on their part could secure them promotion to the higher grades. The percentage of punishments to the average number of convict officers was 209·2 in 1889 against 200·7 in 1888.

14. The new mark rules, which have been in force since 1887, have continued to work satisfactorily, and the results show that 1,572 prisoners against 1,352 in 1888 had their releases accelerated in consequence of the marks which they had obtained. In the case of prisoners who were undergoing sentences of less than eight years' imprisonment there was a marked increase in the average remissions earned, but the prisoners for longer terms were less successful, because of these a larger proportion become convict warders, their responsibilities are increased, and they are more frequently punished with loss of marks than the ordinary convict overseers are. This is a matter which will doubtless receive the Inspector-General's attention; it does not appear desirable that promotion should involve a disadvantage.

15. Expenditure.—The gross expenditure for all classes of jails, excluding the amount expended by the Public Works Department, rose from Rs. 10,68,161 in 1888 to Rs. 11,91,149 in 1889. The average cost per prisoner amounted to Rs. 79-4-5 against Rs. 77-12-8 in 1888. The charges on account of dieting prisoners rose from Rs. 2,95,680 in 1888 to Rs. 3,89,300. The increase was owing partly to the larger daily average population, and partly to the high prices paid for food-grains. The average value of the chief articles of diet per maund amounted to Rs. 3-14-6 in 1889 against Rs. 3-8-11 in 1888. The increase in the price of rice alone, which is the staple food of the country, was 8 annas and 8 pies per maund as compared with the preceding year. Granaries are now under construction in jails for the storage of grain to be purchased in the cheap season of the year, and arrangements are in progress for the proper cultivation of jail lands and gardens, and for the breeding of fish in jail tanks, and dairies have been started in many jails. It is hoped that these measures will tend to make a considerable reduction in the cost of dieting prisoners during the current year. The total earnings from vegetables and other products supplied from the jail gardens during the year amounted to Rs. 47,827 against Rs. 36,284 in 1888. This result is satisfactory and shows that the matter is receiving greater attention from the Jail authorities.

16. The cost of establishment fell from Rs. 3,95,224 in 1888 to Rs. 3,91,292 in 1889. Four of the jailors, whose appointments had been abolished on the conversion of certain district jails into intermediate jails, were transferred to the Registration Department during the year under report, and one retired. The hospital charges increased from Rs. 46,632 to Rs. 56,464; the increase is partly due to the rise in the prices of food-grains, and partly to the more liberal scale of diet now allowed to sick prisoners. The total cost of clothing rose from Rs. 58,309 to Rs. 70,011 on account of the greater number of prisoners admitted during the year, the clothing for many of whom had to be obtained in the local markets. The clothing has hitherto been manufactured by jail labour, but charged to the Department at the market rates, but this practice has now been done away with, and the cost of raw materials only will henceforth be debited to the Jail Department. The cost of contingencies also rose from Rs. 1,09,213 in 1888 to Rs. 1,28,168 in 1889. There was an increase of Rs. 6,455 on account of municipal taxes on jail buildings, and Rs. 1,083 in the cost of dieting defendants. Rupees 2,028 were paid during the year as compensation for land acquired for the extension of the jail garden at Dacca.

17. The total average cost per head on account of diet, hospital charges and clothing rose from Rs. 29-13-8 in 1888 to Rs. 34-13-11. The Buxar Central Jail was very economically managed, and the Lieutenant-Governor observes with satisfaction that in seven intermediate jails and four district jails, which have been specially noted by the Inspector-General, unusual care and economy were evinced by the officers in charge. In Mymensingh and Gya increased expenditure is accounted for by the unhealthiness of the prisoners, and in only two cases has Dr. Lethbridge found it necessary to call for explanations from the officers concerned of apparent extravagance in management.

18. Employment of prisoners, and manufactures.—The total average number of prisoners sentenced to labour increased from 12,210·17 in 1888 to 13,393·69 in 1889. Of these 5,569·45 or 41·58 per cent. were employed on manufactures, against 5,368·29 or 43·96 per cent. in the preceding year, and 15·3 per cent. were sick, convalescent or infirm against 13·9 per cent. in 1888. The average number of prisoners employed as convict officers and servants, and on gardening and other prison duties was 4,152·38 or 31·0 per cent., against 3,488·35 or 28·5 per cent. in 1888. The net cash earnings increased from Rs. 2,66,898 in 1888, or Rs. 49-12 per head on the average number of convicts employed on manufactures, to Rs. 3,98,530 in 1889, or Rs. 71-9 per head. The total profits on the year's working amounted to Rs. 2,60,096, or Rs. 19-7 per head, as compared with Rs. 2,69,564, or Rs. 22-1 per head in 1888.

19. The average earning of each prisoner in central jails is shown in the following table:—

Presidency	68·4	73·0
Alipur	44·4	43·7
Bhagalpur	21 8	10·5
Midnapur	11·2	15·1
Rajshahye	4·5	12·4
Dacca	3·0	3 7
Buxar	0·9	21·3

The decrease in the earnings of the Presidency Jail was due to the reduction in the quantity of printing work required to be executed during the year. The jute mill in the Alipur Jail is now wholly employed in supplying the requirements of public consuming departments. The indifferent health of the prisoners in the Midnapur Jail affected the earnings to a considerable extent. The castor-oil industry in the Rajshahye Jail was at a standstill for six months during the past year owing to a sudden rise in the castor seed market. The decrease in the profits of the Buxar Jail is combined with a very large increase in the amount and value of the work turned out by it, and is wholly due to the very low rates given by the Ordnance and Commissariat Departments. His Honour trusts that the hopes expressed that better rates will be obtained in the current year may prove well founded, as it is much to be regretted that the prisoners in a large jail, such as the one at Buxar, should be almost exclusively employed on unremunerative labour. The stock of manufactured articles at the end of the year considerably diminished, the stock in hand on the 31st December 1889 being valued at Rs. 1,86,706 as against Rs. 2,66,106 at the close of 1888.

20. Subsidiary Jails.—The Lieutenant-Governor is not satisfied that the Superintendents of Subsidiary Jails visit them a sufficient number of times, or take a sufficient interest in their working. It is to be hoped that this will be remedied in the future, and that especial attention will be paid to the nature and amount of work given to labouring prisoners confined in them in order that it may be ensured that penal labour is imposed on them. The amount expended during the year on subsidiary jail buildings was Rs. 69,481, against Rs. 70,106 in 1888. New buildings were substituted for the old ones in six subsidiary jails, besides the erection of a new intermediate jail at Nya Doomka. The condition of the warder guard was on the whole satisfactory. The average period of detention of convicts in subsidiary jails was 8·52 days against 8·21 days in 1888. The longest detention occurred in the Khondmal, Angul, and Bhola subsidiary jails. From the Khondmal and Angul jails the prisoners could not be transferred owing to an outbreak of cholera in an epidemic form in the Cuttack Jail, to which the subsidiary jails are affiliated. At Bhola the prisoners were employed on work connected with the new subsidiary jail buildings. The average detention of under-trial prisoners during 1889 was 13·92 days against 14·11 days in 1888. In Serajganj, Chandpur, Arrarcah, and Silliguri under-trial prisoners were detained for periods varying from 26·30 to 21·79 days. This excessive detention will be enquired into and dealt with in the Judicial Department. There were 14 escapes against 19 in 1888. Of those who escaped four were convicts and ten under-trial prisoners. All the convicts and four of the under-trial prisoners were recaptured during the year. A most daring escape was effected by two under-trial prisoners from the Serampur subsidiary jail. They contrived to unhook the iron rod on which the hurricane lantern was hung which served to light the ward in which they were confined at night. With this they made a hole in the masonry wall of the building, and then escaped over the outer wall while the sentry was asleep. Excluding the expenditure in the Public Works Department, the average cost per prisoner in the subsidiary jails rose from Rs. 121-6-7 in 1888 to Rs. 122-5-6 in 1889, the increase being chiefly due to the high prices paid for articles of food.

21. Vital Statistics.—During the year Dr. Lethbridge issued the orders necessary to carry out the suggestions of the Jail Committee for providing sufficient superficial area and capacity for each prisoner in the sleeping wards of the jails throughout the province. In the case of barracks in which the prisoners sleep more than four deep between ventilating openings, the space was increased to 100 square feet and 1,200 cubic feet per man from 50 square feet and 750 cubic feet, the minimum space recommended by the Jail Committee for unhealthy jails. The measures taken by Dr. Lethbridge have resulted in materially reducing the accommodation in the old jails which have more than two rows of beds in the sleeping wards, while the accommodation in healthy jails and in the wards of unhealthy jails which are raised 12 to 14 feet off the ground, has been much increased by reducing the space to 36 square feet and 540 cubic feet in accordance with the recommendation of the Jail Committee. Calculated on the revised scale there was accommodation available in the central, district and intermediate jails for 16,335 convicts against 17,008 in 1888 and 17,433 in 1887. There was thus ample accommodation for the 13,232 convicts who represent the daily average strength in 1889, but, as it was not found possible during the year to distribute these men over the several jails according to their capacity, there was some excess in a few of the jails, where the extra prisoners were made to sleep in worksheds and other temporary structures. In the Maldah and Palamow intermediate jails, however, there was real overcrowding, as no temporary extra accommodation was available, and measures have been taken to increase the sleeping accommodation so as to obviate any chance of a recurrence of this overcrowding. Among the undertrial prisoners the female ward in the Hughli Jail was at one time overcrowded, but arrangements are being made for enlarging the capacity of this ward.

The absence of any improvement in the death-rate is mainly attributable to the fact that the health of the prisoners admitted during the year was greatly affected by the general poorness of the crops in many parts of the province. The jails in which the proportion of the daily average sick per mille of average strength was very high were Palamow (111·1), Singbhum (100·7), Gya (100·1) and Midnapur (82·2). The unhealthiness of the Palamow Jail was due more to overcrowding than anything else, and the necessary steps have been taken to remedy this defect. The Singbhum Jail shows some improvement compared with the statistics of the previous year. In consequence of the high mortality in the Gya Jail in 1888, and during the first quarter of 1889, the Lieutenant-Governor appointed a Committee to enquire into its causes, and the officers forming that Committee expressed their opinion that the deterioration in the health of the jail population was due to the general unhealthiness of the district. Sir Steuart Bayley is pleased to observe that the jail is now reported to be perfectly healthy. The Midnapur Jail has been particularly unhealthy for the past two years, especially during 1889, when the proportion of the daily average sick increased from 42·9 in 1887 and 71·4 in 1888 to 82·2, and the death-rate from 34·6 in 1887 and 44·5 in 1888 to 77·2. The receipt of a large number of prisoners in bad and indifferent health from the neighbouring districts was one of the chief causes of the unhealthiness during the past year, and, in spite of the efforts made to improve the condition of the jail, a large number of deaths occurred from chronic diseases of malarious origin. Some improvement has since been effected, but the jail still remains very unhealthy and requires special vigilance.

23. Cerebro-spinal fever proved very deadly during the past year, 19 out of the 27 cases which occurred proving fatal. There were 13 cases with 10 deaths in the Hazaribagh Jail, and 8 cases with 4 deaths in the Alipur Jail. Rajshahye had 4 cases with 3 deaths, and the 2 cases which occurred in the Mymensingh and Jalpaiguri Jails ended fatally. The disease first made its appearance in the Alipur Jail in 1885, and the Committee appointed in 1886 to investigate its origin attributed it to overcrowding and defective ventilation in the sleeping barracks. Notwithstanding the measures which were promptly adopted to remove these defects, it has appeared from time to time in a sporadic form. The experience of the past year, during which the disease suddenly appeared in virulent epidemic form at Hazaribagh, where there is not the least overcrowding, and as suddenly disappeared, has raised a doubt as to whether the origin and causes of the disease have yet been accurately determined. The Superintendent, Dr. Moorhead, has submitted a very careful and elaborate report on the symptoms and course of all the cases in Hazaribagh, which should be of great use in determining the nature and causes of this very fatal disease. The Lieutenant-Governor has accordingly decided that another special enquiry should be held in the matter, and has appointed a Standing Committee to meet at the Alipur or Presidency Jail on the occurrence of every case of cerebro-spinal meningitis in those jails or in any of the other Government institutions in their vicinity. The Committee have been directed to submit their report at the expiration of a year. Of the 132 prisoners that died from cholera, 117 were convicts and 15 under-trial prisoners. The largest number of cases occurred in the Cuttack, Dacca, Buxar, Mymensingh, Chittagong, Midnapur, Rajshahye, and the Presidency Jails. Sites have been provided near all jails for the camping out of prisoners on the outbreak of cholera in an epidemic form, and a sufficient number of tents and extra fetters have been kept in stock for the purpose. There were 9 cases of small-pox with 2 deaths. In the Mymensingh Jail 19 prisoners suffered from the beriberi disease, of whom 16 had been received in the jail in bad or indifferent health.

24. The total number of deaths among convicts was 626, or 46·0 per mille, against 571, or 46·1 per mille, in 1888. Of this number, 590 died in jails, of whom 209, or 35·42 per cent., were received in good health, 207, or 35·08 per cent., in indifferent health, and 174, or 29·49 per cent., in bad health. In the subsidiary jails there were 33 deaths (19 from cholera and 14 from other causes) against 18 in 1888. Out of the 19 deaths from cholera, 16 occurred among the prisoners at Angul, where the free population suffered severely from scarcity of food. The death-rate among convicts in the subsidiary jails was 91·9 per mille against 54·9 in 1888, but the large increase is wholly due to the deaths from cholera mentioned above. Excluding the deaths from cholera, the following jails show the highest death-rate:—Jalpaiguri (179·4), Singbhum (117·3), Palamow (102·6), and Hazaribagh (92·5). In the Jalpaiguri Jail, 10 convicts died against 2 in the preceding year. The increase in the death-rate does not appear to have been due to any want of care on the part of the Superintendent. There were 6 deaths among convicts in Singbhum, against 10 in 1888, and the high percentage is due to the comparatively small average population. A similar remark applies to the mortality in the Palamow Jail. Of the 19 deaths that occurred in the Hazaribagh Jail, 10 were from cerebro-spinal fever. Of the remaining prisoners who died, 6 belonged to a batch of 15 prisoners received from the Palamow Jail. These prisoners were in bad health and should not have been transferred. They were also grievously neglected by the police who were in charge of them on their way to the Hazaribagh Jail. Both the Assistant Surgeon in medical charge of the Palamow Jail, and the head-constable in charge of the convicts in transit, who were directly responsible for this mismanagement have been punished. The following table

The return is satisfactory. Of the convicts discharged during the year, 19·6 lost weight in jail against 20·6 per cent. in 1888, and 19·3 per cent. in 1887.

25. Inspections.—Dr. Purves inspected 11 jails and 4 subsidiary jails, and Dr. Lethbridge 35 jails and 5 subsidiary jails. The Lieutenant-Governor is glad to see that there was a slight increase in the number of visits paid by Judges and Magistrates to the jails within their charges, but notices with regret a falling off in the number of visits paid by non-officials. His Honour attributes considerable importance to these visits and to the record of inspection remarks by gentlemen who can be suspected of no professional or official bias in the matter, and trusts that the report for 1890 will show that the interest taken throughout Bengal by non-official gentlemen in the management of the jails of the province is not in any danger of dying out.

26. The Lieutenant-Governor notices with pleasure that a large number of officers have been favourably mentioned by Dr. Lethbridge, and his special commendation of certain officers will be noted in the Appointment Department. His Honour is also glad to observe that the medical officers in charge of central jails have taken a lively interest in the health of the prisoners; Dr. E. G. Russell deserves special mention for his excellent management of the Rajshahye Central Jail. The thanks of Sir Steuart Bayley are due to Dr. Lethbridge for his efficient administration of the Jail Department, which is one of the most difficult and important branches of the public service.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to the Inspector-General of Jails for information and guidance.

Ordered also that a copy of this Resolution, and a copy of the Report, be submitted to the Government of India in the Home Department.

Ordered also that a copy of this Resolution be published in the Calcutta Gazette.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

C. C. STEVENS,

Offg. Chief Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

RESOLUTION ON THE REPORT OF THE SANITARY COMMISSIONER, BENGAL, FOR THE YEAR 1889.

MUNICIPAL DEPARTMENT—SANITATION.

Darjeeling, the 20th June 1890.

READ—

The Report of the Sanitary Commissioner, Bengal, for the year 1889.

Dr. Gregg, who was in charge of the office of Sanitary Commissioner throughout the year, has again submitted a clear and concise report.

Vital statistics.

2. A period of nine years has elapsed since the last census of Bengal was taken, and the population of the Province, which at that time was sixty-six millions in round numbers, has now no doubt considerably increased, probably in the proportion of at least one per cent. per annum, and it may be confidently assumed that the population of Bengal now exceeds seventy millions. But as there are no trustworthy data upon which the increase can be estimated as in European countries, the census of 1881 is still accepted by the Sanitary Commissioner as the basis of all calculations in his report, and the small improvement in the registration of vital statistics, which the returns of the year show, is therefore discounted to some extent by the fact that the ratios are calculated upon the same population as in previous years.

Births

3. Births are at present registered in Bengal in towns only. It is pointed out by the Sanitary Commissioner that in other provinces births are registered in rural areas as well as in towns, and that there is no reason why Bengal should be backward in this respect. The registration of births was discontinued in rural areas because of the extreme inaccuracy of the statistics collected, and the Lieutenant-Governor is disposed to think that it will be better to wait for some time longer, until birth statistics in towns and mortuary statistics generally are compiled with more efficiency than they are at preset, before complying with Dr. Gregg's suggestion. Births are now registered in 137 municipal towns with an aggregate census population of 2,422,994. The ratio of registered births is only 22·76 per thousand, the ratio of male births being 12·05, against female births 10·70. Dr. Gregg observes that the supposed standard of birth-rate in India is 40 per thousand, and it is probably even higher than this. There are indeed 6 Municipalities in Bengal in which the statistics of birth exceed this ratio; but there are no less than 15 in which the statistics are so imperfectly recorded that the ratio is less than 10 per thousand. Among these is South Suburban Municipality, where the ratio is 7·47. In four Municipalities—Muktagacha, Jhalokati, Goberdanga, and Nasirabad—the ratio is less than 5 per thousand. In a large and wealthy Municipality like Patna the ratio is only 12·98, in Buxar it is 14·71, in Purneah it is 15·45, in Midnapore it is 15·73, in Jessore it is 16·71, in Dacca it is 17·71, in Cuttack it is 17·83, in Berhampore it is 18·89, and in Krishnaghur it is 19·68. When the registration in important Municipalities, at the head-quarters of districts, is still so defective, it appears to be hopeless to attempt registration with any approximation to accuracy in rural areas. It is true that the registration for 1889 shows a slight improvement over that of 1888, when the ratio of births was only 20·63; but the result is still very discouraging, and shows that Municipalities as a body do not pay attention to this elementary and very necessary portion of their duties. The Lieutenant-Governor has observed that during the current year, according to the statements published weekly in the Gazette, birth registration is still extremely deficient.

Deaths

4. The same remarks are applicable to the registration of deaths in Municipalities. The registered mortality in 1889 was 25·03 per thousand, against 24·86 per thousand in 1888. The statistics recorded vary very widely in different Municipalities, as the following figures will show:—

Hooghly ..	31·8	27·5	39·1	Tangail ...	5·3	9·2	18·9

The small improvement effected in the registration as a whole during the past year may be attributed to the special circular issued by Government on the subject, and to the action taken by the Sanitary Commissioner in supplementing the instructions then promulgated; but the registration in many Municipalities is still deplorably defective. There can be no reason why, under proper administrative arrangements, the registration should not be as complete at Patna and Arrah as it is at Gya, for instance, or in Ranaghat and Santipore as it is in Serampore and Utterpara. The South Suburban town is again conspicuous for its imperfect registration. The two newly created Municipalities of Cossipore-Chitpore and Manicktollah, where, in the former case, a mortality is registered of 38·9 per thousand, and in the latter only 14·5 per thousand, afford a marked illustration of good and bad work in adjoining localities. It is obvious that these figures supply very little scope for any observation on the comparative health of Municipalities during the year.

5. The registration of deaths is, however, effected throughout the whole province, and not in towns only, and when the whole area is taken into consideration, it is possible, notwithstanding the imperfection of registration, to deduce some important results. The total number of deaths registered in Bengal during 1889 (excluding still births) amounted to 1,597,478, against 1,515,735 in 1888, giving an annual death-rate of 24·25 and 22·94 respectively. As, in the opinion of the local medical officers, the year under review was not on the whole a more unhealthy one than 1888, the higher death-rate can only be ascribed to better registration, and the improvement, so far as it goes, is therefore satisfactory. The statements which are given of mortality according to sex and age enable some inference to be drawn of the respects in which registration is most deficient. Of the total number of deaths, 856,574 were males and only 740,904 females. The ratio of deaths is 26·2 males and only 22·3 females. As, according to the Census of Bengal, the number of females is slightly in excess of males, it follows that there is a special deficiency in the registration of female deaths, and further examination shows that this is the case in every district. The figures of death, according to age, give an infant mortality of 172·0 per thousand for infants under one year of age, and 26·7 for children of one year and under five years. Although this is the highest rate of infant mortality yet recorded for Bengal as a province, there are reasons for believing that it is very much below the actual mortality. The statement marginally given shows in parallel columns the ratio of mortality among children in Calcutta compared with the ratio given for the past two years in the Sanitary Commissioner's reports, and the only inference which can be drawn from the figures is that the mofussil registration is very imperfect. Both in the mofussil and in Calcutta the infant mortality bears a proportion to the total mortality of all ages of about 31 per cent. But in Calcutta the number of children, for reasons which have frequently been explained, and which it is not necessary to re-state, is very small. The number of children under five years of age is only 6 per cent. of the total population. In Bengal, generally, the number of children under five years of age is no less than 16 per cent. of the population. The fact that the registered mortality of children shows the same population to the total population in Calcutta and in the mofussil is therefore conclusive evidence of the deficiency of registration in the mofussil. There is no reason for believing that the actual infant mortality in Calcutta is materially higher than it is in other parts of Bengal. It is only necessary to add that in the mofussil the registration of the deaths of female children is conspicuously deficient, and that of the total number of deaths under five years of age 258,518 are male and only 225,513 are female deaths. The Lieutenant-Governor hopes that the Sanitary Commissioner's attention will be given to these figures, and that in future reports their meaning may be further elucidated. The question of infant mortality in India merits special enquiry from a statistical point of view, and it would be interesting to compare the figures now furnished for Bengal with those of admitted accuracy in Europe.

	Calcutta.			Province of Bengal

6. The Lieutenant-Governor observes that in none of the districts of Bengal is the total registered mortality below 15 per thousand, and acknowledges that this is an improvement over previous years. The registration is worst in Mozufferpore (15·78), Chumparun (16·52), and Durbhunga (17·64). In the 24-Pergunnahs the ratio is only 18·74. This result is not creditable to the police of these districts. The districts in which registration has been most successful are Pooree (44·4), Balasore (38·9) Darjeeling (36·2), Julpigoree (33·2), Noakholly (32·0), and Purneah (31·0). The figures given in the margin are quoted as showing that in many districts the registration of deaths among the whole population of the district (excluding municipalities) is more successfully accomplished by the executive police agency than it is at the municipal head quarters of districts, where special arrangements and special laws are in force for ensuring accuracy, although, as the result shows, without effect.

Cholera

7. During the year under review 171,103 deaths were registered in the province from cholera, showing the high ratio of 2·59 per thousand of the population. The disease prevailed with much severity during the hot weather, especially in the month of April, when there were 33,003 deaths. The diagrams furnished with the Sanitary Commissioner's report are exceedingly interesting, and a great improvement over those given in former years, as they show for each district the incidence of cholera in proportion to the population, and not, as was formerly the case, the number of cholera deaths only. The most remarkable feature in the cholera history of the year is the excessive mortality in the Orissa Division, especially in Pooree. The ratio of deaths from cholera in the Pooree district was no less than 20·01 per thousand, in Balasore it was 13·74, and in Cuttack it was 8·29. With the exception of Purneah, in which the cholera mortality was 9·5 per thousand, the Orissa Division stands out in marked prominence as the home of cholera during the past year. The remarks of Dr. Walsh, the late Civil Surgeon of Pooree, on the prevalence of the epidemic in the town of Pooree, where the deaths from cholera were 23 per thousand on the population of the town, are quoted by the Sanitary Commissioner, and though objectionably worded they indicate a condition of affairs which imperatively calls for improvement at the hands of the municipality. He writes:—

"The increase of cases from February to March coincides with the arrival of 20,000 pilgrims for the Dol Jatra. These people are tired, and, as regards health, below par; probably also one or two of them are already suffering from the premonitory stage of cholera when they enter the town. While in Pooree they eat hardly anything but the Mohaprosad rice prepared in the temple and the half-ripe fruit and vegetables which are exposed for sale in the streets. The Mohaprosad is often sold to them after it has been kept for days. It is then in a fermented condition, unwholesome, and liable to bring on diarrhœa, the general precursor of cholera. The tanks also in the town of Pooree are all extremely holy and extremely filthy. It is the duty of every pilgrim to drink out of all these sacred tanks, and it is the custom of many of them to defile the tanks either with fœces or urine before they drink. The cholera poison is thus easily spread among a large number of people in a poor state of health, and very susceptible to the attacks of any infectious disease. The permanent inhabitants of the town draw their drinking water, as a rule, from public or private wells, and do not suffer much from cholera. January, February, August, September and October give a total number of nine deaths only. These are the months during which only very few pilgrims visit Pooree. In short, the chief causes of cholera in Pooree are fatigue after long journeys, unsuitable or unwholesome food (both these predisposing causes prepare the subject and render him susceptible to the action of the cholera poison), and active cholera germs communicated by tank water. If the pandas were only amenable to the elementary forms of reason, or if the Municipal Commissioners would display a little more firmness and desire to improve the health of their fellow-townspeople, much might be done to reduce this source of danger. A mandate in the name of Jagarnath would stop the people from drinking indiscriminately from all the tanks, and one tank might be set apart and used only for drinking purposes For a time the municipality, acting on my advice, forbade bathing in a certain selected tank, but they did not remain firm, and gave way to popular opinion, which seemed to be in favour of making this tank as dirty as all the rest. Until the people learn, or are forcibly taught (by means of section 277 of the Indian Penal Code), that water used for drinking purposes must not be defiled, so long will it be impossible to check the prevalence of cholera during the religious festivals in Pooree."

It is deplorable to think that the rate of mortality from cholera alone in the town and district of Pooree—a mortality which is largely due to preventable causes—was not less than the rate of mortality from all causes combined in an ordinarily healthy city or rural area in more favoured countries.

8. The outbreak in Purneah, of which the figures have already been given, was the severest known for years. It is supposed to have originated at the Caragola Fair, and so to have spread over the district. The insufficiency and impurity of the water-supply along the principal roads and communications in all the districts of Bengal is undoubtedly a prolific source of cholera. Dr. Gregg truly observes:—"Until the water-supply of the province is improved, and adequate sanitary arrangements made at fairs and other places where a large number of people assemble, I am afraid that there will be little or no diminution of the death-rate from cholera in Bengal." And again:—"The well-known predisposing causes, viz., polluted water, local insanitary conditions, imperfect drainage, errors of diet, and importation, are indicated as exciting and favouring, if not absolutely originating, this disease; but, as usual, the evidence is in the main confirmatory of the view that outbreaks of cholera are traceable to pollution of drinking water."

Small-pox.

9. The total number of deaths from small-pox during the year was 8,665, or ·13 per thousand of the population. The ratio was higher in towns than in rural areas, and this is attributed by Dr. Gregg "to neglect of vaccination, which is not creditable to Municipal Commissioners." The decrease prevailed with the greatest severity in Pooree, Chumparun, and Bankoora.

Fever.

10. The total number of deaths from fever was 1,101,521 or 16·72 per thousand of the population. The ratio of urban mortality was 10·84, and of rural mortality 16·02. There is a steady increase, year by year, in the number of deaths recorded from fever, but it is probable that this result is due to improvement in registration and increase in the population rather than to greater unhealthiness of climate. The lowest mortality from fever is invariably in the month of June, when it gradually rises till it reaches its maximum during the drying up of the rains in November and December. The death-rate was highest in the 14 districts noted in the margin, and the cause, in all districts alike, is attributed to impeded drainage. Many extracts from the reports of Civil Surgeons are given, which show that the prevalence of malarial fever in Bengal is not due to inundations, which on the contrary are beneficial to health as a means of flushing, and that it is only when the surface drainage is obstructed, and the water sinks into and stagnates in the soil, that the locality becomes malarious. The Lieutenant-Governor observes that the province of Orissa is remarkable for the comparative absence of fever, and that the district of Pooree, which in other respects has attained the unenviable notoriety of being the most unhealthy district in Bengal, shows the smallest fever mortality. The Sanitary Commissioner's report throws no light on this coincidence, but the point is one which seems to merit further enquiry and explanation.

Expenditure on sanitation in Municipalities.

11. After making the necessary adjustments on account of the amalgamation of the Suburban Municipality with the town of Calcutta, the total sanitary expenditure incurred in mofussil Municipalities during the year is reported to be Rs. 12,81,031, against an expenditure of Rs. 11,30,661 incurred in 1888. The principal increase is under the head of conservancy and water-supply. The general result is undoubtedly satisfactory. The Sanitary Commissioner remarks:—"It will be seen that on the whole Municipal Commissioners are doing what they can to improve the sanitary condition of their towns; but although a good deal has been done, and is being done, I am again compelled to remark that in many cases municipal income is wasted on temporary works and on works of minor importance, while works of a more needed, substantial, and lasting nature, such as drainage, water-supply, and public latrines, are neglected." The Lieutenant-Governor is glad to notice that during the present year Municipalities have applied in several cases for loans in order to undertake important works of permanent sanitary improvement, and desires to take this opportunity of again assuring Municipal Commissioners that such applications will always receive the most favourable consideration from Government.

Rural sanitation

12. The Sanitary Commissioner's report does not touch on the work of sanitation under District Boards. The truth is that, although the promotion of sanitation is a duty entrusted under the Local Self-Government Act to District Boards, little or no progress is made in this direction, because the Boards possess no funds for the purpose. The Boards in Bengal are not vested with powers to impose local taxation to meet the requirements of local sanitation. And yet no grievance presses more hardly on the people than those which are created by the insanitary condition of the country. Constant complaints come to the notice of Government, through the vernacular press and elsewhere, of the necessity of improved drinking water, and in a hardly less degree of improved drainage, from almost every district of these provinces. The agency for the execution of sanitary reform in rural areas, and the means by which such reforms may be executed, are questions now under the consideration of Government.

Appointment of a Sanitary Board

13. Dr. Gregg was indefatigable during the year in his inspection of Municipalities and in the preparation of schemes for their sanitation. A copy of his more important inspection memoranda constitutes a very useful annexure to his present report. Since the close of the year a Sanitary Board, consisting of Sir Henry Harrison, Member of the Board of Revenue, as President, and Colonel McNeile, Chief Engineer and Secretary to Government in the Irrigation Branch of the Public Works Department, and Dr. Gregg, the Sanitary Commissioner, as members, has been appointed, and a whole-time officer will be placed at the disposal of the Board as Sanitary Engineer. The function of this officer will be to accompany the Sanitary Commissioner on his tours; to work in concert and concurrence with him in the preparation of designs, plans and estimates; to guide the Municipalities in getting up projects, and, after these have been approved by the Board and under the advice of the Chief Engineer, to inspect the works while in course of construction and report to the Board on the progress made. It is intended that he should be the right-hand man of the Sanitary Commissioner in all matters involving engineering knowledge and experience. The Sanitary Board will be the executive agency through which the Government will act in the Sanitary Department, and it is hoped that, if judiciously worked, it will exercise a powerful initiative and a valuable control in all departments of sanitary work.

14. The thanks of Government are due to Dr. Gregg for the services he has rendered to the cause of sanitation during the year. The Lieutenant-Governor is glad to acknowledge also the good work done by Surgeons-Major Gupta and Waddell, and Assistant Surgeon Norendro Nath Gupta, Deputy Sanitary Commissioners of the Metropolitan, Darjeeling, and Eastern Bengal Circles, to which Dr. Gregg draws attention.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

H. J. S. COTTON,

Secretary to the Govt. of Bengal.

REPORT ON THE WORKING OF THE LICENSED WAREHOUSE AND FIRE-BRIGADE ACT IV (B.C.) OF 1883 IN CALCUTTA DURING THE YEAR 1889-90.

No. 62J., dated Calcutta, the 16th June 1890.

From—HARRY LEE, Esq., C.S., Chairman of the Corporation of Calcutta,
To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Municipal Department

I HAVE the honour to submit the following report, under section 30 of Act IV (B.C.) of 1883, of the jute screw and warehouses in Calcutta for the year ended 31st March 1890.

2. At the close of last year there were 69 sanctioned warehouses on the register within the limits of the town; three new warehouses have been newly established, and 25 warehouses in the amalgamated area have been added to this number, bringing the total up to 97. A complete list, arranged according to the Acts under which they were originally licensed, is appended to this report.

3. Nine applications for new licenses were received during the year as shown below—

Locality.	Nature of application.	Remarks.
1. No. 72, Shobha Bazar Street...	For licensing existing godowns for storage of jute.	Refused, as there was not sufficient cart space.
2. ,, 25, Budree Dass Temple Street.	Ditto ditto ...	Sanctioned by the Commissioners.
3. Nos. 78 and 79, Shobha Bazar Street.	Ditto ditto ...	Ditto ditto.
4. No. 58, Gourebere Road ...	Ditto ditto ...	Ditto but license not taken out this year.
5. ,, 67-5, Strand Road ...	Ditto ditto ...	Still under consideration.
6. Nos. 93 and 94, Shobha Bazar Street.	Ditto ditto ...	Ditto ditto.
7. No. 1-1, Gailiffe Street ...	New construction ...	Sanctioned.
8. ,, 24, Budree Dass Temple Street.	Ditto ditto ...	Still under consideration.
9. ,, 55, Gourebere Lane ...	Ditto ditto ...	Ditto ditto.

4. The total amount of license fees realized during the year from the 97 warehouses mentioned above amounted to Rs. 27,529-8.

5. Only one prosecution against the owner of premises No. 134, Durmahatta Street was instituted before an Honorary Magistrate for allowing the premises to be used for storage of jute without a license, which resulted in the owner being convicted and fined Rs. 5 only.

6. The letter from the Chamber of Commerce, recently forwarded to me with your remarks regarding the funds for the support of the Fire-Brigade, is still under consideration by the Commissioners, but a reply will be shortly sent. It is satisfactory to note that no fire broke out in any of the jute godowns during last year.

7. The subjoined statement shows the receipts and expenditure during the year under review—

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL, AND OF THE METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN ASSAM, FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY, THE 20TH OF JUNE 1890.

TOWARDS the end of last week rain was falling in fair amounts in Orissa and Behar and heavily in North Bengal, while over the strip of country, including East and South-West Bengal and Chutia Nagpur, cloudy weather prevailed; but rainfall was considerably below the normal. At the commencement of the present week pressure was above the normal in all districts by uniform amounts, very little under a tenth of an inch, and as a steady—though at times a slow—fall has been going on in the lower districts during the greater part of the week, while small irregular changes have been taking place in the northern districts, the marked change in the rainfall distribution may be due to the relatively low pressure in Orissa and South-West Bengal. The rainfall in the north and east of the province has been scattered and largely below the normal, while in Orissa and the adjacent parts of the neighbouring districts falls have been almost general and considerably above the average. Cloudy weather has prevailed with, for short intervals, low temperature, especially over the western half of the province, and the wind circulation, except when a shallow depression formed near the Orissa coast at the end of the week, has been normal.

During the first four days of the week, pressure changes were slight and irregular, excess remaining between a twentieth and a tenth of an inch, with the isobars running almost north and south; but about the middle of the week a brisk fall set in in Orissa and the north-west corner of the Bay, the low pressure area becoming distinct on Wednesday, the 18th. A narrow trough of low pressure then ran from the head of the Bay in the usual north-westerly direction, and the intensification of the depression at the lower end on Thursday was accompanied by a slight deepening along the length of the trough. Pressure was considerably below the normal on the 19th, and gradients very steep to the south-east of it, but winds, though cyclonic, were everywhere light. Temperature was lower, and general rain fell in Orissa and South-West Bengal, but was not so general in the east and north The depression after remaining two days close to the Orissa coast moved over Chutia Nagpur, when rain fell at all the western stations, fairly heavy amounts being reported by many stations. It appears to have filled up on Friday, as little or no trace of its existence remained after the very rapid rise which was general in the south-western districts. The influence of the depression was not wide, as the weather conditions in East Bengal, North Bengal, and a considerable portion of South-West Bengal have scarcely been affected, rainfall being light and scattered and temperature above the normal in these parts throughout the week.

Pressure—Has been on an average above the normal in all districts except Orissa and Chutia Nagpur, defect being very slight in the latter, and under a twentieth of an inch in the former. Pressure changes were of no importance till Wednesday, the 18th, when a brisk fall of about ·08 inch set in at the Orissa stations, continuing on Thursday, when defect amounted to ·2 inch at False Point and about 15 inch at the other stations. On Friday the depression was over Chutia Nagpur, and was rather more shallow and defused, defect being over ·15 inch only at Ranchee, but exceeding ·1 inch in Ganjam, Orissa, Chutia Nagpur and South-West Bengal. Gradients were very steep to the south-east of the depression, the difference between False Point and Tavoy at one time being very nearly half an inch. Pressure was then lowest at False Point and was very slightly above 29·4 inches.

Temperature.—Changes have been irregular and seldom of any importance, There was considerable defect in the western districts in the early part of the week, and again at the end when general rain fell during the existence of the depression. In the north and east it has generally been above the normal, and changes usually small. The means in Behar, North and East Bengal are all above the normal, excess being 1·3° in South Behar, 1·1° in North Bengal, ·8° in North Behar, and 3° in East Bengal. Defect in Chutia Nagpur is 1·7°, and in Orissa 1·5°, while in South-West Bengal and Assam it is about half a degree.

Rainfall—Has been above the normal in Orissa only, the average fall being 3·6 inches, or 1·14 inches in excess. In all the other districts defect is large, 2 inches in East Bengal, 1·9 inches in North Bengal, 1 inch in Chutia Nagpur and North Behar, ·8 inch in South-West Bengal, and ·6 inch in Chutia Nagpur. The only districts where general rain has fallen during the greater part of the week are Orissa, Midnapore, 24-Pergunnahs, Howrah, part of Mymensingh, Julpigoree, Coooh Behar, and the Darjeeling Hills. In these last three, however, the falls have not been nearly so heavy as during the previous two weeks. The days when rain was most general in all districts were, Saturday. Thursday, and Friday. Very scattered falls were received in South Behar, except on Friday, and in Chutia Nagpur, except on Saturday and Friday. The heaviest fall in North Bengal was 10·6 inches at Mickilgunge, and generally in Julpigoree, Coooh Behar, and the Darjeeling Hills amounts were between 5 and 10 inches, and in the other districts nearly always between 1 and 2 inches. The heaviest falls in Orissa and South-West Bengal were 7 inches at Pooree, Tumlook, and Mohesreka (Oolooberiah, 5 inches at Dum-Dum, and 4·6 inches at False Point. In East Bengal amounts were rather variable, ranging between 1 inch and 5 inches. In Behar falls were at several stations over 4 inches, but generally between 1 and 2 inches, while in Chutia Nagpur they were under 1 inch at nearly all stations.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the seven meteorological divisions of the province for the week ending Friday, the 20th of June 1890 :—

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph and from observations made at 6h., 10h., 16h., and 22h.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.
